NATIONS STRUTTING HIMSELF TO DEATH, JUDGE DYER SAYS

ANSWERS CRITICISM OF LIQUOR FINES

"Can't Run the Federal Court and if He Makes Objections I'll Soon Show Him," Judge Asserts.

"The trouble with a whippersnapper like him is that if you give him a bit of authority and stick a feather in his cap he will strut himself to death."

This was Federal Judge Dyer's retort when informed that Gus. O. Nations, Chief Prohibition Enforcement Agent in St. Louis, had criticised the proceeding in the Federal Court yesterday when 38 persons charged with violating the Volstead law pleaded guilty and were assessed fines aggregating $7400.

Violators of the Volstead law, as to manufacture and sale of liquor, took advantage of Judge Faris' absence and flocked into court to plead guilty before Judge Dyer. Experience has shown lawyers in such cases that Judge Dyer imposes comparatively light fines, while Judge Faris frequently imposes jail sentences in addition to fines.

Hearings Resumed Today.

Judge Dyer did not disappoint those who entered pleas of guilty and at 12:30 p. m., when court adjourned on account of the death of Joseph F. Gordon, Clerk of the Federal Court at Cape Girardeau, where Judge [illegible] is presiding, other defendants in liquor cases waiting to be heard were informed that when court convened today the hearing of please would be resumed.

Enforcement Agent Nations telegraphed to Special Assistant Attorney-General John C. Dyott, in charge of prosecution of Federal liquor cases here, who is attending court at Cape Girardeau, protesting against the manner in which the cases here were being disposed of, and recalled a promise made some time ago by Dyott that he would personally prosecute all violations of the Volstead act in St. Louis.

"The proceeding was an outrage," Nations said to a Post-Dispatch reporter, after he had telegraphed Dyott. "The money from the fines assessed would not pay the railroad fare my staff spent in making cases, much less office expenses."

Attention Called to Figures.

His attention was called to the fact that if the fines imposed yesterday were a fair average the 600 liquor cases on the present docket would yield about $238,200, while the salaries received by him and his assistants amount to $20,000 a year, and other expenses of his department were perhaps not in excess of $10,000.

"Well," he continued, "some of these cases were hard to make and many of the defendants were flagrant and persistent violators. It was a shame to let them off so easy. I had Dyott's promise that he would appear in court when these cases came up, and, of course, I had in mind the fact that if he were here Judge Faris also would be present."

Dyott, when asked for a statement, said: "I cannot prevent defendants from entering pleas of guilty at any time, and the Court can accept such pleas and sentence the defendants without me or any other representative of the Government being present. I can't be worried about what Nations thinks. If the defendants want to plead guilty that is their business, and I can't help it. Nations wants to run the whole Government. He wants to be court and jury. Well, he shall not run my office, and he may as well know it."

Judge Dyer's Comment.

Judge Dyer's eyebrows arched into a heavy frown when he heard of Nations' criticism.

"He can't run the Federal Court," said the Judge, "and if he comes into court and makes any objections to the way the docket is being handled by me I will soon show him. I am not concerned with what he thinks is the best policy in enforcing the Volstead law or any other law.

"We are facing a condition in the Federal Court here and not a theory. The docket is fearfully congested and that is due to the many liquor cases. I believe the docket should be cleared and I think the

CUNARD LINE TO TEST DAUGHERTY'S LIQUOR RULING

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—Officials of the Cunard Line announced tonight that they had launched steps to bring a test case in the United States Supreme Court of the ruling of Attorney-General Daugherty that ships flying a foreig nflag could not bring liquor for passengers within the three-mile limit.

The line sent its attorneyst, Lord Day and Lord of New York, to Washington today to confer with the Attorney-General and to arrange for petitioning for an injunction to restrain the Government from putting the liquor ban into effect.

BRITISH TO PAY $50,000,000 INTEREST TO U. S. OCT. 16

LONDON, Oct. 11.—"The British Government," it was semiofficially stated today, "is taking steps to pay $50,000,000 into the New York Federal Reserve Bank on Oct. 16 on account of this year's interest on Great Britain's debt to the United States."

This $50,000,000, the statement explains, represents payment on account of the interest. The exact amount due will not be settled until the conference in Washington to be headed by Sir Robert Horne, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, and the United States Government officials.

LETTER FROM CARNEGIE SEEKING FUNDS FOR START IN LIFE FOUND

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBIA, Pa., Oct .11.—An officer of the First National Bank of Columbia, digging through old files yesterday, found a letter written in February, 1868, by a young man who had been a telegraph operator here, but who had launched in business for himself.

"My brother and Henry Phipps wish to borrow $15,000 for four months. They'll pay 8 per cent on their joint note endorsed by me," the letter stated. "If your bank is flush, telegraph me at New York."

The officers turned down the application.

Records indicate, however, the applicant got the money elsewhere and used it to purchase the Union Iron Mills at Pittsburg. These mills paid a few thousand per cent on the investment and helped form the foundation of the fortune of the man who swung the deal—Andrew Carnegie.

PASTOR STANDS ALL DAY IN RAIN TO WIN $5 OFFERED BY VOLIVA

By the Associated Press.

WAUKEGAN, Ill., Oct. 11.—The Rev. Robert E. O'Brien, pastor of an independent flock in Zion City, today had complied with the terms of an offer from Wilbur Glenn Voliva, overseer of Zion—$5 "if he will stand in front of a newspaper office all day to show the people what a fool he is." Rain beat upon Mr. O'Brien nearly all day but he held his post from sunrise to sunset. He said he would give the award to Zion City poor.

DOOR KEY IN STOMACH 50 YEARS

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 11.—A door key that his father "lost" more than 50 years ago was found by surgeons operating on the stomach of Philip J. Keifer, 59, recovering today in the Ashland Boulevard Hospital. Shown the key, Keifer said he "probably would have got a licking" if his father had known who was responsible for losing it.

SALESMAN DEFENDS WOMAN CANDLER REFUSED TO WED

"FINEST WOMAN I EVER MET"

Says He Carried Auto Loads of Soldiers for Chaperone-General and That They Never Were Alone.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 11.—Wilbur Le Gette, formerly of Atlanta, Ga., now living here, volunteered the statement today that he was the traveling salesman mentioned by Asa G. Candler, in the statements published by Mrs. Onezima De Bouchel, involving the alleged reports of visits to her rooms in Atlanta during a Confederate reunion in 1919.

Candler, 71 years old, founder of the Coca Cola company, broke his engagement to marry her, Mrs. de Bouchel said in Atlanta yesterday, when she told of the stories which, she said, Candler declared had been brought to him.

"There is no finer woman on earth than Mrs. De Bouchel," said Le Gette in declaring that charges against the woman were a "fabrication of scandal mongers."

Le Gette said that he had not seen Mrs. De Bouchel for more than a year, the last meeting being in New York when Mrs. Le Gette and he met her at a hotel prior to her departure for Paris. The first information of the reported charge against his character, he said, came to him yesterday upon reading newspaper dispatches.

"I met Mrs. De Bouchel in Atlanta on the first day of the Confederate reunion in the fall of 1919, having been introduced by a young lady from Virginia," he said. "Upon reading the newspaper statements of Mrs. De Bouchel that she had been accused of receiving attentions of two men in her room, I realized that I must be the salesman referred to.

Tells of Meetting Candler.

"Mr. Candler and I were the only two men who could be mentioned as spending time with Mrs. De Bouchel during that convention, and she was constantly in my company, she being chaperone general of the convention and I entertaining delegates, and there were always several young ladies present.

"But never at a single time was she with me alone. At noon the first day she informed me that she had an engagement with Candler for luncheon. The young ladies and myself accompanied her to the Piedmont Hotel and on that occasion I first met Candler.

"Later the whole party left the hotel to inspect a new piano in a store at which I was engaged as salesman."

"While in the store Candler made an engagement with Mrs. de Bouchel to go to his home that evening. I was at the hotel that same night when Mrs. de Bouchel returned from Candler's home with several of the girls.

"I was not her sweetheart—far from it. I almost played the part of a chauffeur for her. She made a practice during the convention of loading old soldiers into my car and taking them on a sight-seeing tour of Atlanta.

"Ready to Go to Atlanta."

"And I want to say in defense of the finest woman I have ever met that it was practically an impossibility for her to entertain gentlemen in her rooms except in the presence of the girls she chaperoned, and during the whole convention she was kept busy from nine in the morning until two the next day.

"If there were any men associating with Mrs. de Bouchel outside of myself and Mr. Candler, they had to go some. Mrs. de Bouchel was a pleasing and beautiful character. She always conducted herself as a lady and never gave any man an opportunity for making unconventional advances."

Let Gette said that he had no communicated with anyone in Atlanta since reading of the statements by Mrs. de Bouchel but had immediately sought newspapers to say what he could to clear charges against Mrs. de Bouchel. He said the charges were astounding to anyone who knew Mrs. de Bouchel and that he was prepared to go to Atlanta at any time to "defend the honor

SHAPLEIGH SUPPORTING FOES OF VOLSTEAD ACT

Republican Leader Says Brewster Seems to Have Got on Wrong Tack.

A. L. Shapleigh, chairman of the board of the Shapleigh Hardware Co., who has been active in Republican politics in St. Louis and Missouri for many years, yesterday said to a Post-Dispatch reporter that he is working to bring about the election on Nov. 7 of men who are opposed to the Volstead act.

"I am doing everything I can to secure the election of men who are opposed to the Volstead act as it now stands and who are in favor of amending it," Shapleigh said.

He was asked if his statement could be taken to mean he is opposing the election of R. R. Brewster, Republican senatorial nominee, who has announced he is opposed to any amendment of the Volstead act which is not in strict accord with the spirit of the Eighteenth Amendment.

"He who runs may read," was the reply. Then Shapleigh added: "Brewster is a fine fellow, but he seems to have got off on the wrong tack."

Shapleigh was asked about reports that he is one of several St. Louis Republicans seeking to organize a Republican Reed-for-Senator Club. He said he had not heard of any plans for such a club. "But you can't tell what the future may bring forth," he added.

Shapleigh is a member of the executive committee of the Missouri Division of the National Association Opposed to Prohibition. He frequently has been placed in charge of finances in Republican campaigns and he often is invited to participate in party councils.

CROWD ATTACKS DETECTIVE ACTIVE IN MURDER CASE

Statement Accusing Hayes of Killing Rector and Singer Called 'Frameup'—Bricks Thrown at Fleeing Officer

GROUP OF CITIZENS DISPERSED BY POLICE

Pearl Bahmer, Who Was With Schneider When Bodies Were Found, Arrested.

By the Associated Press.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Oct. 11.—Frank P. Kirby, a Middlesex County detective, credited with having obtained the statement from Raymond Schneider on which Clifford Hayes was charged with the murders of the Rev. Edward Wheeler Hall, rector of the Episcopal Church of St. John the Evangelist, and his choir leader, Mrs. Eleanor Mills, was attacked by a group of indignant citizens early today.

Kirby was met by the group of citizens as he emerged from the Pennsylvania station on his return from Somerville, where he had sought unsuccessfully to obtain a confession from Hayes.

Members of the crowd protested angrily to Kirby against the arrest of Hayes, declaring they considered it a "frameup" to quiet the indignation of citizens and soothe an aroused Governor, by making it appear that the mystery had been cleared.

Pursued by Crowd.

Kirby retorted with equal candor at first, at the same time walking rapidly away from the railroad station in the direction of police headquarters. Before he had proceeded far he found himself surrounded by the crowd which pressed closer and closer to him. He looked around, decided the crowd was thinnest behind him, and turned and ran. The crowd ran after him with threats of tar and feathers. The pursuit led past a pile of brick. Many in the crowd stopped long enough to get an armful with which to hurl after the fleeing officer.

Reaching the station platform, Kirby espied the open door of the baggage room, dived inside, closed the door and bolted it, just as leaders in the crowd reached it.

Rescued by Police.

Outstanding developments in the case included the arrest of Pearl Bahmer, 15 years old, who was with Schneider when the two bodies were found, as an incorrigible, also of Nicholas Bahmer, her father, held on a criminal charge preferred by the girl; and the intimation by one of the chief investigators that Hayes' arrest did not solve the mystery—"that we've just started to work on the case."

Middlesex County detectives expected to interview Mrs. Francis Hall, widow of the slain rector, again today.

Turns Against Schneider.

Pearl Bahmer, who was with Schneider when the bodies of Mr. Hall and Mrs. Mills were found two days after the murder, on more than one occasion has given newspaper men working on the case reason to believe she knew more than she was telling. Incidentally, she has turned against Schneider, once admittedly her sweetheart, and has sought to convey the impression that he knew more about the murders than Hayes, whom he accused of the crime.

The authorities turned part of their attention to checking up new stories told by Pearl Bahmer. She sought in her latest story today to turn suspicion on her father, who, she asserted, had more than once threatened to cut her throat. Mrs. Mills' throat was cut and the story told by Schneider of an attack by Hayes fails to explain this fact.

The girl said that after she had walked with her father as far as Buccleuch Park on the night of Sept. 14, and had had the encounter of which she had told earlier, with Schneider, Hayes and Leon Kauffman, her father took her home and told her to go at once to bed. This, she said, was around 10 o'clock. Looking out of her window, she declared, she saw her father walking about and muttering to himself.

Bahmer Has Prison Record.

Bahmer was uncommunicative in his cell today. A partial check of his record showed Bahmer had served a prison sentence for highway robbery and a term in the workhouse for malicious mischief.

Schneider, it was disclosed today, told four diferent stories about his knowledge of the slayings before he

ARMISTICE TERMS, AS SUBMITTED BY ALLIES, SIGNED AT MUDANIA

LONDON, Oct. 11.

By the Associated Press.

FORMER PREMIER VENIZELOS of Greece will act as the chief plenipotentiary for Greece at the forthcoming peace conference between Turkey and the allied Powers, it was announced here today.

The place and date of this conference have not been determined as yet.

Two conferences are being arranged for, one to fix the general Near Eastern peace terms and another to provide for neutralization of the straits of the Dardanelles.

It is believed, according to expressions in authoritative quarters here, that all the governments would welcome the attendance of the United States at both conferences and it is considered probable that both the Greeks and the Turks will make formal requests to this effect.

It is believed the firts conference will be arranged for early November, with the second general conference sitting early in December and possibly concluding the entire settlements by Christmas.

GIRL ELEVATOR OPERATORS SAID TO TALK TOO MUCH

Director of Public Safety Tells of Complaints—He Plans Ordinance Requiring Licenses.

Following receipt of many complaints that girl elevator operators in downtown office buildings talk so much that they fail to operate their cars properly Director of Public Safety McKelvey today announced that he soon would prepare and send to the Board of Aldermen the draft of an ordinance requiring elevator operators to be licensed as chauffeurs are.

Complaints about the elevators have been more numerous in recent weeks than formerly, the Director asserted, adding that he had been told that doors were closed before passengers were entirely out of the cars and that stops were skipped.

At the same time the Director made public a report showing that his department had collected for inspection during the six months ending Oct. 1 a total of $90,089.45, as compared with collections of $75,345.90 during the same period the previous year. The increase resulted from more frequent inspections. The department is now on a self-sustaining basis.

DISCOVERY EXTENDS KNOWN LIMITS OF STELLAR SYSTEM

New Far-Flung Bunch of Stars Found, According to Harvard Observatory Bulletin.

By the Associated Press.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 11.—A new outpost of the stellar system has been found. As a result, man's knowledge of the limits of the milky way has been extended by 50,000 to 100,000 parsecs, or light years. That is, the known stellar system probably has a great diameter of between two quintillions, one hundred quadrillions of miles, and two quintillions, four hundred quadrillions of miles. This represents a newly estimated great diameter for the Gallactic system of 350,000 to 400,000 parsecs. It was only a few years ago that scientists placed the furthermost limits of the milky way at 30,000 parsecs.

In the official bulletin issued at the Harvard Observatory yesterday regarding this far-flung bunch of stars, a slight qualification was made saying that further observation was being made to justify the present belief. Observatory officials, however, said that for practical purposes it could be assured that the cluster had been established as typical and, this being true, a new boundary for the starry spaces had been found.

By the Associated Press.

ROME, Oct. 11.—Fascisti today invaded and occupied the offices of the Housing Commissioner here and forced the dismissal of all the women clerks, replacing them with ex-service men. The Fascisti sent a letter to Premier Facta accusing the Housing Commissioner's office of dishonesty and incompetence and stating that they were forced to take justice in their own hands.

GREEKS REFUSE TO SIGN CONVENTION

They Were Not in Touch With Athens—Turks Look to Allies to Enforce Provisions for Evacuation of Thrace.

By the Associated Press.

MUDANIA, Oct. 11.—The armistice convention signed by the representatives of the Turkish Nationalists and the allied Powers here late last night contains the exact terms as submitted by Lieutenant-General Harington, the British delegate and the specifications of which were made public yesterday by the Associated press.

Ismet Pasha, the Turkish representative, held out for a larger number of gendarmerie in Eastern Thrace and argued lengthily on several other points, but eventually gave way on every point of the allied demands.

Gen. Harington and Gen. Charpy, the latter the French delegate, departed for Constantinople this morning after a few hours sleep aboard their warships.

The final agreement was reached at 11 o'clock last night, after two sessions. Then followed a recess while the secretaries made formal copies which the delegates verified. It was about daybreak before the signatures were affixed.

The agreement is under date of midnight tonight, and goes into effect three days after signature, midnight Oct. 14-15.

Greeks Refuse to Sign.

The Greeks refused to sign the convention because they were out of touch with their home government, and the terms were not fully approved by Athens authorities. The Turks will look to the allies to see that the Greeks fulfill the conditions.

The agreement provides that the Turks will be permitted a gendaremie of 8000 in Thrace and Ismid. They asked for 10,000.

The Thracian boundary as specified by the agreement was from the mouth of the Maritza, along its course to the Bulgarian boundary. The clause to which the Greeks object on this subject is presumably one referring to a small but important slice of land along the railroad near Adrianople.

Neutral Zone Outlined.

Definite delimination of the neutral zones was decided upon. The demarkation follows a line 15 kilometers from the coast along the straits of the Dardanelles and 40 kilometers from the coast of the Bosphorus. It is provided that neither the allied nor nationalist troops may advance across these lines. The allies' representatives agreed not to increase the number of troops or to undertake the construction of fortifications.

The portion of the railroad along the right bank of the Maritza River from Svilergrad to Lule-Burgas will be subject to supervision to be determined by a mixed commission of the allies.

Gen. Harington had informed Ismet Pasha that the convention embodied Great Britain's last word and that the other Powers gave their unqualified support to the terms.

On his part Ismet had replied that he hoped his Government would accept the conditions set forth, and promised a reply by 5 o'clock in the evening. In the meantime the British commander returned to Constantinople, where he remained until early in the afternoon, proceeding back to Mudania on the Iron Duke to hear the Turk's decision.

The Turkish delegates were somewhat dismayed and disappointed over the turn of events in the past two days. The new attitude taken by France after the Paris conference puzzled them and they were amazed that French friendship, on which they counted as a main prop in the

INSURANCE RATE CUT EXPECTED TO TOTAL $2,000,000

B. C. HYDE'S ORDER EFFECTIVE NOV. 15

State Superintendent Indicates Possibility of Further Reduction if Such Action Is Found Justified.

Reductions of 10 per cent in the rates of 149 fire, lightning, wind and hail insurance companies operating in Missouri, ordered yesterday by Ben C. Hyde, State Superintendent of Insurance, will total between $2,000,000 and $2,500,000 in a year, it was estimated today by representatives of the companies. This is based on premium collections of $19,986,378 for 1921, considered a bad year for the companies. The order is effective Nov. 15.

In announcing the 10 per cent reduction Hyde declared he still is of the opinion that a 15 per cent cut ordered Jan. 4 last, and later withdrawn, would be justified. He indicated that if further facts are obtained to support this belief, the reduction would be increased.

Decline to Comment.

St. Louis attorneys and officers of the Missouri Inspection Bureau, who represented the majority of the companies in an inquiry held by Hyde last June, had not received copies of Hyde's order today and would not comment on the attitude to be taken by the companies until they examine the order.

Hyde's original order for a 15 per cent reduction in rates was issued Jan. 4, to be effective Feb. 15. This step was taken, it was said, without conferring with the Attorney-General, and the companies sought a restraining order on the claim they had not been granted a hearing. A temporary injunction was granted Feb. 4 and on Feb. 15 Hyde withdrew the order, stating he would renew his rate-cutting action and later called a hearing on earnings and condition of the companies, which led to the 10 per cent cut announced yesterday.

Hyde's Explanation.

In his explanation of the rate cut, Hyde said, "Speaking broadly, a reduction of insurance rates is absolutely necessary in order to prevent great injustice to the insuring public.

He condemned what he said was an "indefensible practice" of paying commissions to favored cities or agencies in excess of the regular scale, in a desire to get business. Such commissions, he said, are charged to the public as underwriting expense, and in a period of five years would amount to millions of dollars. Condition of the companies over the period 1917-21 was considered by Hyde in ordering the rate cut.

Reinsurance, as handled at the present time, increases rates, Hyde said, and a credit should be allowed for this for rating purposes. "It never was the intent of the rating law that one or more middlemen in the form of reinsurance companies should receive a profit," Hyde stated.

"Goes Ever Upward."

He attributed some of the losses to lack of rigid inspection, stating, "it is impossible to give an exact figure representing losses of the companies due to over-insurance. The figure is generally estimated, however, as 30 to 50 per cent. As long as it is possible for the companies to receive higher rates from their own rating bureau, they have little interest in their losses. They accept risks, good, bad and indifferent; they pay the losses, good, bad and indifferent, and their rating bureau increases the rate to cover new losses, good, bad and indifferent. Thus the vicious circle, over-insurance, losses, higher rates, goes ever upward."

He gave the 1921 experience of the companies as proof of this contention. Hyde said insurance was written in 1920 and previous years at boom valuations, but in 1921, when valuations sagged, the losses became enormous. In 1921, he asserted, the loss ratio jumped to 70.95 per cent of the premiums, as against 40.78 per cent in 1920. Premium collections in 1921 were shown to be $19,986,373; losses, $14,182,260, and expenses, $8,369,732.

Urges "Proper Inspection."

Proper inspection, he said, would have saved the companies the high losses. "Unless the companies are responsible to the public for a reasonable and economical service, then you have a cost-plus system," he said, "with no limit to cost and no incentive or obligation on the part of the companies to reduce losses or expenses."

"If the companies will not enforce economy and reduce losses, then economy must be forced on them. If the present rating and auditing bureaus can only function to increase rates, the answer probably will be found in another direction, perhaps a State-controlled rating bureau, such as in force in Texas."

Hyde charged the companies had not fully carried out an agreement made when the first cut of 15 per cent was withdrawn, to file complete reports on the experiences of the companies over the five-year period. "It is a difficult, if not impossible thing, to obtain from the fire insurance companies sufficient, dependable data from which to compute a reasonable rate. They not only fail to co-operate; they fail to furnish accurate information," Hyde said.

"We think the officers of the companies are good business men," he said. "They know more about their Missouri business than the reports indicate. They should be made to realize the public insists on a fair deal, and will never accept less."

Tells of Report Submitted.

A report was submitted, Hyde said, for 116 companies, in stead of for the 149 concerns operating. "This report, in addition to being worthless because it failed to include all the companies, shows the 1921 expenses for the 116 companies to be $350,882,504, and the premium income to be $19,212,517—even charity forbids any other characterization of such a report less than the word 'careless,'" the statement says.

"In all the proceedings," Hyde asserted, "we think the companies acted in bad faith. They at no time furnished the information they agreed to furnish, and which was required by this department.'

method I am using is best for that purpose.

"About a year ago there was a congestion such as this in the New York Federal courts. Judge Pollock of Kansas was sent there to help out. In a week he collected $50,000 in fines and had the docket cleared. He was game enough to do it, and I am game enough to do it here."

Judge Dyer said he did not believe in heavy penalties which would cause defendants to elect to go to trial under such circumstances.

Statement From Bench.

When court convened today Judge Dyer said from the bench:

"I want to say for the benefit of the public and press that nobody controls this court and if anyone seeks to control it it would give me a great deal of pleasure to send that person to jail for contempt.

"Congress, in its wisdom, left the imposing of penalties for violation of the Volstead act to the discretion of the courts. This docket is badly congested. If each case were to be tried before one Judge it would require at least five years to dispose of the docket.

"I believe that first offenses against the Volstead act should be punished by fine. Holding this view, it is easily understood why defendants, knowing the attitude of the court, come in, plead guilty and take their medicine. I recognize the authority of no one to make suggestions to this court, except representatives of the Attorney-General's office.

Great Deal of Loose Talk.

"There has been a great deal of loose talk published in newspapers by people seeking notoriety. I want to say I am here temporarily clothed with all the authority of any Judge of the United States Court. I am here to administer justice, and I'll administer as I see it, without fear or favor and regardless of criticism of anyone."

Nations, who was in the building, was not in court when Judge Dyer spoke. He had a stenographer there to check up on the day's docket.

Calling attention to the congestion of cases in Federal Courts throughout the nation, Judge Faris two weeks ago told the Post-Dispatch that the greatest relief from the conditions is affarded the courts by the defendants who, when arrainged, plead guilty and accept small fines or jail sentences. Judges of nearly all of the Federal District Courts, he said, had adopted the practice of imposing the small fines and jail sentences to induce such pleas. He pointed out that 821 cases were pending trial in the Federal Court here, and estimated that an average of five criminal cases could be tried by juries each week. As there were only 12 weeks of the term devoted to criminal cases, he said, he cold reduce the number only about 60, without the many pleas of guilty expected.

Total of $10,270 in Fines Assessed Against 57 Liquor Defendants

At today's session of court Judge Dyer received pleas of guilty to violation of the Volstead act from 5 defendants and assessed a total of $10,270 in fines.

Mrs. Vito Guiccione, 1031 North Tenth street, $50, for possession of whisky which she said she kept for medicine for her children; William Wallick, Compton and Lucas, $50; Albert Hague, 6301 Easton avenue, $100; Elmer Schutten, 926 North Second street, $100; Frank Bendera, 6400 South Broadway, $200; George Kalich and Sam Kaprisco, 1000 Mississippi avenue, $250 and $100 respectively; Peter Vrickovich and Simo Avdolovich, 2300 Chouteau avenue, $200 and $100 respectively; Charles Nava, 601 Franklin avenue, $100; Manuel Kopros, 700 Market street, $100; Charles Mittino, 3044 Easton avenue, $100; Robert P. Rochow, bartender, Tenth and Pine streets, $100; Henry Vocke, 1235 Market street, $250; Antonio Ganaro, 3401 Market street, $250; Michael Ems, King's highway and Nottingham, $150; Clarence L. Becker, Nineteenth and Market streets, $100; Frank Buneta, 2911 Chouteau avenue, $100; Nicholas Schroeder, proprietor, and Charles Masterson, bartender, at 3815 North Tenth street, $300 and $100, respectively; Robert and Edith Wells, negroes, 2130 Chestnut street, $50 each; John Batchelor and father, J. M., Crystal City, Mo., $200 and $250, respectively; John Schraut, 601 South Vandeventer avenue, $250; Charles M. Hade, 302 Olive street, $250; George Pincich, 1733 South Tenth street, $150; John Schmidt, bartender, and George Stehle, proprietor, $200 jointly; Anthony Lishchynsky, 1700 Chouteau avenue, $100; Dennis O'Keefe, 2 North Twelfth street, $100; Peter Lambert, $50; George Shachlewich, 2442 South Second street, $600; John Berra, Mario Pagona and Arthur Tieman, St. Louis County, $250 each for first two and $120 for Tieman, who rented them a barn in which they operate da still; Mike Bottini, $100; Edward and William Pusterri, $250 for Edward and $100 for William; Lawrence Jout, $200; and Nick Pogono, Crystal City, Mo., $250.

14 of Schooner's Crew Missing.

By the Associated Press.

HALIFAX, N. S., Oct. 11.—Fourteen members of the crew of the Glouester schooner Marshal Foch, discovered today to have run ashore on Sable Island, are missing. Eight of the crew have been landed.

The vessel, which sailed from Halifax last week for the banks, was found resting on an inner bar about 300 yards from shore.

A lifeguard reported having seen dories rowing westward on a heavy sea.

WHEELER IS HERE TO REPLY TO SENATOR REED

Anti-Saloon League Counsel Will Make Three Speeches in Missouri Upholding Dry Law.

Wayne B. Wheeler, general counsel of the Anti-Saloon League of America, arrived in St. Louis last night from Washington, D. C. to make three speeches in Missouri against what he said was "the program of the 'wets' to nullify the Eighteenth Amendment."

He announced that in these three speeches he would answer statements by Senator Reed and the publicity agent of the Anheuser-Busch interests that prohibition is a failure and the national prohibition act is unreasonable. The beer and light wine amendment advocated by the "wets" is an issue this year in most of the states, he declared.

Wheeler will speak tonight at Marshall before the State Synod of the Presbyterian Church; tomorrow night at St. Joseph, and Friday night at Hannibal.

"SHUFFLIN'" PHIL DOUGLAS HELD

Wife of Former Pitcher of Giants Declares He Beat Her.

By the Associated Press.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Oct. 11.—"Shufflin" Phil Douglas, former star pitcher for the New York Nationals, who was banished entirely from organized baseball for offering to desert his team, is in the city jail today on charges of disorderly conduct preferred by his wife, who called officers to their home and declared Douglas had beaten her.

Officers said they found Mrs. Douglas with both eyes blackened. She was quoted as saying she had been abused in the presence of her two children. Douglas with his family arrived here, his former home, recently from Florida, where he completed the season with the Lakeland, Fla., semiprofessional team.

reached the story of Hayes' commission of the crime, on which the authorities acted.

His final story fails to jibe with facts about the murder, brought out from other sources—notably his insistence that neither Hayes nor he had cut Mrs. Mills' throat after the shooting, although an autopsy showed the head had been almost severed.

Broad Discrepancies.

There are broad discrepancies in his story of his whereabauts on the night of the murders, and that told by Pearl Bahmer. Schneider said he was with Pearl for several hours that night before he saw Pearl going out with her father, and started trailing the pair with Hayes.

Pearl first said he was with her until 9 o'clock. Then she said he was not with her at all. Detectives say they have practically established it that he was not with her and they are trying to check up on his movements between 8 and 11 o'clock—the period in which the murders are known to have been committed.

Schneider says it was about 1 o'clock when Hayes shot the minister and the choir singer "by mistake." Witnesses have agreed that the screams and shots were heard at about 10:30 o'clock.

Hayes Adheres to Story.

Hayes adheres to his story that he and Schneider had come upon the bodies of the slain pair while hunting for Pearl and her father, that Schneider had stolen the minister's watch, and that they had both decided to say nothing about their find.

Disbelief in Schneider's story apparently has gripped hundreds of citizens of New Brunswick. There was a report today that several leading business men were planning to start a public fund for Hayes' defence but this could not be confirmed.

Authorities today turned their attention to investigating a report that a blood-stained basket, seen near the bodies the day they were discovered, had disappeared. The basket was filled with rags and papers, some of which bore large splashes of what appeared to be blood, it was asserted.

Announcement was made that a committee of citizens in the Sixth Ward, where Clifford Hayes lived, "would hold tag day" on Sunday for the purpose of raising funds for his legal defense.

Thomas F. Hagerty, counsel for Hayes, announced today he had proof that Hayes was at home in bed at the hour when Schneider charges he committed the crime.

Schneider declared Hayes shot the pair on the deserted Phillips farm about 1:30 on the morning of Sept. 15. Hagerty said Hayes told him, and his statement was confirmed by his entire family, that he returned home at 12:45 and went immediately to bed. Hayes admitted he had been in Buccleuch Park that night, with Schneider, hunting for Bahmer and Pearl, the lawyer said, but denied that he had been on the Phillips farm.

DESLOGE-FARRAR WEDDING GUESTS ARRIVE TOO LATE

Holder of Legion of Honor Medal and Bride Have Ceremony "a Little Early."

Citations for bravery in the World War meant nothing to Joseph Desloge, son of Mr. and Mrs. Firmin Desloge of the Washington Hotel, yesterday at noon. His marriage to Miss Anne Farrar, daughter of Mrs. Bernard G. Farrar of 14 North King's highway, was set for that hour.

Guests numbering between 50 and 75, all relatives, had received invitations to attend the ceremony. Many of them arrived, shortly before the designated time, at the home of Mrs. Andrew Sproule, 5175 Lindell boulevard, the bride's aunt, where the marriage was to be held. They found the bride and the bridegroom there. Also the priest, the Rev. Father Spencer, of St. Roch's Church.

They waited. Twelve o'clock came and 12 o'clock passed. They fidgeted. One more hardy than the rest approached the young couple and asked a timid question.

"Why, we are married!" the couple answered. "We were married before 12 o'clock."

Today the bridegroom admitted that the marriage had been held a "little early." "Just to get started," he explained to a Post-Dispatch reporter. And the holder of the Legion of Honor medal and several citations wouldn't say that it was held earlier because he was nervous at the thought of facing all the guests. The bride said nothing.

ARMISTICE TERMS, AS SUBMITTED BY ALLIES, SIGNED AT MUDANIA

negotiations, did not yield the results they expected.

At the session of the conference Monday night Ismet Pasha expressed dissatisfaction at the terms the allies offered. He said to Gen. Harrington, "but your new armistice convention is in contradiction to the assurances given to me by Gen. Charpy. The convention, instead of paving the way for peace, only makes matters worse."

Gen. Harrington replied: "Gen. Charpy has assented to the terms."

After the close of the proceedings Ismet, in the course of conversation of the recurring subject of France's promises, said: "It was upon France's suggestion that our army ceased operations against the Greeks, France promising us favorable armistice terms. France's responsibility there is considerable.

"If no agreement is reached our army will insist on marching into Thrace, but every day's delay—caused by our reliance on favorable armistice promises—diminishes our military advantage."

It was probably by accident that the anchorage of the British dreadnought Iron Duke had been changed so that the great warship lay straight in front of the doors of the conference hall, the veranda of which overhangs the water when the armistice terms were submitted. Throughout Monday evening the sight which continuously confronted Ismet as he sat at the bare black table, was the bulk of the giant battleship.

Under the armistice terms, the Greeks will evacuate Thrace within 15 days and the allies will complete the transfer to the Turks in an additional month. The Turkish civil administration will follow closely on the heels of the departing Greeks, the entire transfer being under the supervision of the allied missions and allied forces provisionally occupying Thrace, not exceeding seven battalions. The number of Turkish gendamer in the province during the interval is left undefined to the discretion of the Kemalists, subject to allied approval.

The Turks, on their side, undertake not to place an army in Thrace until peace is ratified, while new neutral zones will be delimited by fixed commissions.

There remains the difficult discussion of the peace conference and particularly the question of whether the Russian and Black Sea states shall participate in it.

ATHENS, Oct. 11.—Martial law was proclaimed in Athens last night. This action has been taken to prevent hot heads in army from opposing the Government's decision in accepting the loss of Eastern Thrace.

A decree of martial law signed by Constantine on the eve of his abduction was not made operative because of the fall of the Government.

Armistice Terms Agreed To by the Turks at Mudania

MUDANIA, Asiatic Turkey, Oct. 11.

FOLLOWING are the specifications contained in the armistice convention submitted by the allies to the Turkish Nationalists and signed here last night by the representatives of the Turks and the allied Powers, the terms coming into effect three days from the signing.

The convention, as submitted to the Nationalists, contains these specifications:

1. The Greek evacuation of Thrace shall be carried out within about 15 days.

2. The Greek civil authorities, including the gendarmerie, shall be withdrawn as soon as possible.

3. As the Greek authorities withdraw the civil powers will be handed over to the allied authorities, who will transmit them to the Turkish authorities the same day.

4. This transfer shall be wholly concluded throughout Eastern Thrace within a minimum period of 30 days after the evacuation of the Greek troops.

Turkish Gendarmerie to Enter.

5. The civil authorities of the Angora Government shall be accompanied by such forces of the nationalist gendarmerie as are strictly necessary for the maintenance of law, order and local security. The total strength of these officers and men shall be left to the discretion of the Nationalists, subject to approval by the allies.

6. The various operations in the withdrawal of the Greek troops and the transfer of the civil administration shall be carried out under the direction of the interallied missions located in the principal centers. These missions will do their utmost to prevent excesses of any kind.

7. In addition to these missions, allied contingents shall occupy Eastern Thrace. These contingents amountin gto about seven battalions will insure the maintenance of law and order and act in support of the interallied missions.

8. The withdrawal of the interallied missions and contingents amounting to about seven battalions, will insure the maintenance of law and order and act in support of the interallied missions.

8. The withdrawal of the interallied missions and contingents will occur in 30 days after the completion of the evacuation of the Greek forces. This evacuation may occur earlier, provided the allied Governments are agreed that adequate provision has been made for the maintenance of law, order, and the protection of the non-Turkish population. If the Turkish gendarmeries function normally, the interallied missions and contingents may be withdrawn before the expiration of 30 days.

Turks to Leave Neutral Zone.

9. All troops of the Angora Government shall be withdrawn outside the zone of allied occupation with all possible speed. New neutral zones in the Chanak and Ismid areas shall be defined by mixed commissions, consisting of one officer of each of the allied armies and one officer of the Angora Government.

10. In the Constantinople Peninsular zone the allied occupation will extend east of the following line: Starting at a point on the Black Sea seven kilometers to the northwest of Podema and then proceeding to Strandja, Murtekli, Kichtaglu, Sinrekli, Cara, Sinan Tchiftlik, Kadikeu, Yenidje, Fladina, Tchiftlik and Calicratia.

11. Included in the Gallipoli Peninsula zone of allied occupation is all that part of the peninsula south of the Bakla and Bulair line.

12. Until the withdrawal of the allied troops and the cessation of allied occupation in each of the zones referred to, the Angora Government undertakes to respect the said zones.

13. The Angora Government will undertake not to transport troops into, nor raise and maintain an army in Eastern Thrace until the ratification of peace.

JUDGE DYER FINES DOCTOR $500 FOR SELLING MORPHINE

Dr. Frank Alexander Pleaded Guilty—Judge Faris Makes It Rule to Give Jail Sentences in Drug Cases.

Dr. Frank Alexander, 2701A Market street, pleaded guilty before Federal Judge Dyer today to having sold morphine on April 28 to an addict informer for $20.

Vance J. Higgs, former special Assistant Attorney-General in charge of narcotic and liquor cases, representing Alexander, pleaded for leniency for his client on the ground that he resisted the enticements of the addict long and earnestly, refusing seven or eight times to sell him morphine, but yielding at last when the addict told him he was going on a journey and needed the drug to allay his sufferings en route. Whereupon, Alexander yielded to his importunities and accepted the $20 in payment for the drug.

Judge Dyer said the narcotic law was the most important law on the criminal statutes, and must be enforced, since drugs robbed users of mind and body. He then fined Alexander $500.

The maximum punishment is $2000 fine and five years in the penitentiary. It is the invariable custom of Judge Faris, in whose place Judge Dyer is sitting, to send drug sellers to the penitentiary. He has repeatedly announced from the bench that drug sellers need expect nothing else.

Samuel Wolff, also represented by Higgs, pleaded guilty to selling an ounce of opium to a Chinese informer. He was fined $500.

JEWELL REPORTED SEEKING AGREEMENTS WITH ROADS HERE

The visit of B. M. Jewell, president of the railroad shop crafts federation, who has been in St. Louis since Monday, is for the purpose of negotiating with the management of the Frisco, Wabash and Missouri Pacific roads, for an agreement on the Baltimore-Chicago plan. This was stated today by John Scott, secretary to Jewell, in an announcement made at Chicago.

Scott said the three roads, which have their general offices in St. Louis, were "hard hit," and that the striking shop men were still holding out.

Jewell has refused to say anything about his errand here.

An audit of the books of William ibel, Clerk of the County Court of Louis County, was demanded to- by the Clean Election League, in letter from J. Porter Henry, chair- of the Executive Committee, to court. A certified abstract of y balance ascertained to be due ounty from Seibel was also de- nded.

The County Court will meet this ernoon. Presiding Judge Wiet- pt said this morning he thought league's demands would be dis- ed then. Later he said he did think the court "could get nd to the matter" today. He Associate Judge Stille declared y would vote to order an audit request was found to be in ac- ance with law. Specific Questions Asked.

Specific questions were asked the rt in the league's letter, as to bel's accounts.

"We ask," the letter said, "in ler that the people of St. Louis nty may know, why the quarterly ports of Clerk Seibel for the last rter of 1921 and the first quarter 1922 were not filed and settlement made with the County Treasurer prior to July 7, 1922, at which time the records of the Treasurer's of- fice show that the sum of $4541.74 was paid into the county treasury the first quarter of 1922, and further ask why the reports from County Clerk for the second the third quarters of 1922 have far not been filed with the y Treasurer.'

His t to the County Court for the quarter of 1922, filed in his office, shows a deficit for that of $64.38. It was learned he has prepared, or is prepar- his report for the third quarter, ended Sept. 30. This statute provides that the County Clerk "shall render his accounts to and settle with the County Court at each stated term thereof, pay into the county treasuary any balance which may be due the county, take duplicate receipts therefor, and deposit one of the same with the Clerk of the County Court within five days thereafter."

Records of Palments.

The stated terms of the County Court begin on the first Mondays of February, May, August and November, and usually one term runs into the next. Seibel is finishing his third four-year term as County Clerk, having taken office Jan. 1, 1911. The records of the County Treasurer show that his payments on the whole time have been as follows:

Jan. 17, 1912, $507.43, period covered not shown.

Jan. 14, 1913, $951.96, period covered not shown.

Jan. 10, 1914, $782.93, period covered not shown.

July 26, 1915, $2783.50, first and second quarters, 1915.

Jan. 8, 1916, $1675.48, third quarter 1915.

March 8, 1916, $8927.85, fourth quarter 1915.

Feb. 5, 1917, $9095.79, year 1916.

Feb. 4, 1918, $4077.67, year 1917.

Sept. 16, 1918, $268.23, first quarter 1918.

Jan. 29, 1919, $3532.38, third and fourth quarters 1918.

May 9, 1919, $380.53, first quarter 1919.

Sept. 26, 1919, $1365.79, second quarter 1919.

Feb. 6, 1920, $3768.92, third quarter 1919.

Feb. 6, 1920, $682.88, fourth quarter 1919.

Aug. 23, 1920, $968.89, first quarter 1920.

Aug. 23, 1920, $2163.21, second quarter 1920.

Jan. 28, 1921, $245.53, third and fourth quarters 1920.

July 29, 1921, $3584.46, first and second quarters 1921.

Nov. 17, 1921, $2033.19, third quarter 1921.

July 7, 1922, $4541.74, fourth quarter 1921.

July 7, 1922, $761.20, first quarter 1922.

Judgment Not Included.

These figures do not include payment of a judgment of $18,085.40 rendered against Seibel in the Clayton Circuit Court, Jan. 18, 1915, obtained in a suit to recover excess fees retained. The final payment on the judgment, plus interest, was made July 25, 1918, after ouster proceedings had been filed against him. The ouster suit was afterwards dropped.

The records show that Seibel sometimes paid the excess fees of two quarters at the same time and twice paid the excess fees of a whole year in a lump—for the years 1916 and 1917.

Seibel's reports for his present term, from Jan. 1, 1919, to June 30, 1922, show that receipts of his office in that time were $87,154.48, and the expenses $66,722.52. The difference, $20,431.96, allowing for the deficit of $64.38, represents excess fees reported paid to the County Treasurer. The Treasurer's records show payments from him during this same period totaled $20,496.34, for the excess fees, plus the deficit. Again, during this same period warrants drawn by the County Court in Seibel's favor, including advances, amounted to $55,392.45.

Salary Is $3000 Year.

Seibel's salary is $3000 a year, and under the law he retains this amount from his fees, accounting for it in his reports to the County Court. He also receives $100 a month from the road and bridge fund as ex-officio clerk of the Board of Road Overseers, comprising the County Judges, and about $700 a year, which the law permits him to retain without accounting for, from hunting and fishing license fees, at 15 cents a license. Thus his income from the office is nearly $5000 a year.

The County Treasurer, under the law, has no way of knowing what warrants are intended for, but must honor them if the funds permit. The County Clerk keeps the vouchers for all warrants, which explain their purpose. He also keeps a record of warrants. The terms County Clerk and Clerk of the County Court are synonymous.

Treasurer Eble said today that the county cannot pay some salaries for the remainder of the year because of the customary dearth of tax collections at this time.

Seibel is chairman of the Republican County Committee. He is a lieutenant of Fred Essen, political "boss" of the county. Seibel's chief deputy, Walter Miller, is Republican candidate for County Clerk and is opposed by Ed Tiffin of Ferguson, Clean Election candidate.

MRS. HARRY R. BRENN AND HER SON

This photograph of Mrs. Harry R. Brenn and her year-old son was made when she appeared yesterday at Clayton to answer a charge of complicity in arson and grave robbery. She obtained a change of venue from Justice Stecker's court to that of Justice Werremeyer. Her preliminary hearing has been continued to Oct. 19.

Mrs. Brenn's husband, who was wounded in action with the 138th (St. Louis) Infantry, has been missing since his garage at Oakville, St. Louis County, burned on the night of Sept. 25. A body which was burned in the fire, and which was at first supposed to be Brenn's, was found to be the body of Miss Celestine Schneider, which had been stolen from Mount Hope Cemetery.

The affidavit on which the venue change was granted alleged prejudice on Justice Stecker's part, but the move appeared to be merely one to gain time, possibly in the hope that Brenn may be discovered, and to enable Mrs. Brenn's counsel to prepare a defense. Mrs. Brenn, a German war bride, has denied that she had any knowledge of the suspected plot to make her husband's life insurance, in the sum of $6000, payable to her.

BERGMAN'S SHORTAGE PLACED AT $46,409

Audit of Accounts of Former Secretary of Meyer Dairy Equipment Co. Completed.

The Circuit Attorney's office was informed today that a completed audit of the accounts of Arthur Bergman, former secretary of the Meyer Dairy Equipment Co., had shown his shortage to be $46,409.71. At the time of his arrest, on embezzlement charges, July 4, the shortage was estimated at $36,400.

Bergman, who lives at 7143 Forsythe boulevard, is to be tried soon. He was secretary-treasurer of the company up to the time of his disappearance May 11. He returned from New York and surrendered in July.

Third Warrant Issued.

A third warrant, charging grand larceny and embezzlement, was issued today against Bergman. It charges the theft of $3200 from the company, and it was based on a check drawn on the company Oct. 29 last, and deposited to the credit of Oscar J. Pim, a broker, a friend of Bergman, who permitted Bergman to make deposits in his name. The reason given by Bergman for wishing to do this was that he was having trouble with his wife.

Bergman is said to have told Pim that the check against the company represented dividends declared by the company on stock held by him.

Bergman related, at the time of his arrest, that he had spent much of the money taken from the company on a woman with whom he became acquainted in 1920. Bergman's wife filed a suit for separate maintenance a year ago, and later withdrew the suit.

Kept Two Automobiles.

Bergman's salary was $2200 a year, and he had an expensively furnished house and two automobiles. He has been at liberty on $10,000 bond. The new warrant appears to indicate a purpose, on the part of the Circuit Attorney's ofifce, to ask a severe sentence for Bergman, who is expected to plead guilty.

WOMAN "GRATEFUL" FOR STATEMENT

By the Associated Press.

ATLANTA, Ga., Oct. 11.—When informed today of the statement of Wilbur Le Gette in Los Angeles, Mrs. Onezima De Bouchel said that she did not "recall the name right away," but remembered that during the Confederate reunion here in 1919 there was a man attentive to one of the members of the chaperon staff from Virginia. "I am very grateful for the gentleman's statement," she declared, adding, "I am fighting the battle alone and need all the suport I can obtain."

Harry Gamble, attorney for Mrs. De Bouchel, arrived here shortly after noon and at once went into conference with his client.

Asa G. Candler Sr. was in his office during the day, but refused to see reporters or have anything to say for publication. Mrs. De Bouchel announced yesterday that Candler had broken his engagement to marry her because of reports reflecting on her and which she denied. Following the conference with Mrs. De Bouchel, Gamble issued a statement saying in part:

"What her remedy is, is a matter for the careful consideration of her attorneys. We shall in all probability consult Georgia counsel."

"A deep sympathy for a lonely old man, whose children had grown away from him and a companionship I craved, rather than love, inspired my engagement to Asa G. Candler Sr., said Mrs. de Bouchel today.

"I do not want a single penny of the Candler money," she asserted, "but they will have to pay and pay dearly for their effort to wreck my reputation with insults."

"Mr. Candler shall tell to the world that the slander of unprincipled men is not the reason he has cast off the woman whom he asked to be his wife," she reiterated today. "He must disclose the slanderers of my character; tell me and the world that women are not always fortune-hunters—that heritage of pride does not succumb to material desires. This shall be done."

Corresponded After Meeting.

Mrs. de Bouchel, whose announcement of her engagement to Candler several months ago attracted national attention, is of the French type. Her eyes are grayish blue and her hair auburn. She is wealthy and is said to have descended on both sides of her family from the French aristocracy.

When Mrs. de Bouchel attended the Confederate reunion in Atlanta as chaperon-general, she related, Candler entertained the ladies of her court, sent them candy and flowers, placed his automobile at their disoosal and otherwise acted as a gentleman would.

After she had returned to her home in New Orleans, a correspondence developed, she continued. The capitalist told her "how his daughter before her marriage had always met him at the door and placed her arms around his neck; but that now it was 'hello, father,' as she passed him to embrace her husband."

Herself lonely and susceptible to the idea of a union based not upon love but upon a "companionship ideal," their ideas grew gradually together, she said. The Louisiana woman took a trip to Switzerland and on her return Candler met her at the pier in New York, she said.

"Ideal Type of Gentleman."

"Those rugged elements of his character, which enabled him to rise from a comparatively low station in life to the height of financial standing attracted and fascinated me," she continued.

"While he did not have a background of generations of courtly refinement, he possessed all the elements of a gentleman. He was, I thought, the ideal type—kind, considerate and solicituous of my welfare."

"The most outstanding ruin of the debacle which confronts me today," she continued after a pause, "is that the strong masterful personality is plastic, molded into shape by the wills of others. At heart, I believe him to yearn for the Utopia we had planned, but he was overcome by the desires of others. And the worst of all is his lack of faith in me.

"That he could be made to believe in the face of my proof the slanderous statements of dastardly slanderers; that I should be condemned without a hearing—these things have seared into my soul. And from this wound has risen the determination that the honored name of my ancestors shall not be blackened without defense, even though only a woman is here to bear the sword."

Was a Reigning Beauty.

Left an orphan early in childhood in New Orleans, where she was born, Mrs. de Bouchel attended the Holy Cross and the Ursuline convents there. Later she finished her education at Notre Dame in Canada. She then returned to New Orleans, as a reigning beauty.

After a marriage which ended unhappily she became convinced that the "young man" is incapable of fidelity to his marriage vows, she said, adding that she became a "man hater" until her engagement to Candler occurred.

Candler's only reply to Mrs. de Bouchel's published statements was issued through his attorneys after he was said to have left Atlanta yesterday. He asserted that confidential information given him by friends had made a marriage with Mrs. de Bouchel impossible and that he would not disclose the names of his informants.

Statement by Attorney.

"Mr. Candler sincerely regrets that Mrs. de Bouchel should have given such publicity to an unfortunate private affair," the statement issued by W. D. Thompson, attorney, read. "Certain friends brought him information in confidence, which made it impossible for a marriage between them to have been a happy one. He communicated this to Mrs. de Bouchel. He has not and would not disclose it to anyone else. He feels it would be unfair for him to disclose the names of his friends and thereby shift to them a responsibility which he alone will bear, unless these friends, at the proper time and place, volunteer to repeat what they told to him."

"The statements of Mr. Candler's friends are utterly unfounded and untrue, and I do not believe that they are even believed by him," Mrs. de Bouchel said in reply to the statement issued by Thompson. "At any rate, the first statement in his letters to me before I came to Atlanta, accused me of receiving men in my room during the reunion here in 1919. This I disproved in the presence of Mr. Candler and his son. Then they charged me with pleading with a traveling salesman to come and see me in my room at the Piedmont Hotel and only allowing him to leave me on his promise to come and see me in New Orleans."

U. R. OPPOSES BUSES ON CAR-LINE STREETS

Officers Say It Would Be Less Possible to Give Service at Uniform Reasonable Rate.

Rolla Wells, receiver of the United Railways Co., and A. T. Perkins, manager for the receiver, have sent a letter to the Board of Public Service, protesting against the granting of a permit for operation of motor busses on downtown streets now occupied by car tracks.

The board granted such a permit Sept. 29 to the United States Bus Transit Co. of New York, after a public hearing of which general notice was given, and at which the United Railways receiver did not appear in person or through a representative.

The bus company has announced its purpose to start service on east-and-west and north-and-south lines, and on a night theater loop, this fall. It will charge a 10-cent fare.

Streets Objected To.

The streets named by Receiver Wells in his letter of objection are Grand boulevard, along which the bus line proposes to operate for its entire length; Delmar boulevard, Washington boulevard and avenue, Twelfth street and boulevard and Seventh street from Washington avenue to Papin street.

"We desire," Receiver Wells wrote, "to promote in every possible way transportation which will result in increased comfort, convenience and economy to the people of St. Louis. We believe, however, the granting of a permit for the use of the said streets will have the effect of decreasing the comfort, convenience and economy of the majority of the people."

Would Jeopardize Uniform Fare.

The bus line, the receiver says, would "cut into the cream of the business," and would make it less possible for the United Railways to maintain service at a uniform reasonable fare on all its lines. The streets named are already congested, Wells says.

The fact that the United Railways paves the streets between the car tracks, and on either side of the rails, is also cited, with the prediction that the bus line would use this paving without any adequate compensation to the city.

Appeal in Mayfield Case.

By the Associated Press.

AUSTON, Tex., Oct. 11.—Attorney-General Keeling, acting for Secretary of State Staples, has announced filing of an appeal on the temporary injunction granted by Judge Scarborough in the Navarro County District Court to the First Court of Civil Appeals, at Dallas. The injunction restrains Staples from placing the name of Earle B. Mayfield, Democratic Senatorial candidate, on the ballot next month.

90 Pct. of Bootleggers in Court Are Foreigners

38 Appearing Before Judge Dyer Show Things in Common, Including Large Family—$7400 in Fines Assessed.

Your bootlegger—nothing personal intended—may run to many ages, shapes and sizes, but the class as a whole has several outstanding characteristics, if the 38 who appeared before Federal Judge Dyer yesterday, pleaded guilty and paid fines totaling $7400 may be taken as representative of their fellow workers in this forbidden industry.

Ninety per cent are foreigners. At least their names, appearance and Judge Dyer's vigorously expressed opinion indicate this to be the case.

Virtually none, contrary to popular belief, gives outward show of suddenly acquired riches. A diamond tie pin, a few heavy watch chains, a silk shirt of lettuce green, were the only indications of opulence among all the 38. Perhaps a display of wealth is considered bad form—when the Judge is inquiring concerning a hard-working bootlegger's ability to pay a fine.

Many bootleggers have large families and are quick to assert the fact. Children and fines frequently go in inverse ratio when Judge Dyer is presiding.

Bootleggers inspire their counsel with just enough confidence for the attorney to assert that "I understand the facts are these"—then follows a more or less plausible evplanation of the law violation—frequently not so easily "understood" by the Judge.

"Tell It to the Marines."

Judge Dyer expressed dissatisfaction yesterday with the stories, or lack of them, from several defendants.

"Where did you get it?" the Judge asked Berra.

The latter's face didn't change expression.

"He doesn't understand English," his attorney offered.

"Here's some he'll understand—$250, and keep him in jail until he pays it," the Judge snapped back.

Berra paid, and left the courtroom muttering in some language.

Chris Domeco, arrested with whisky in his horse-drawn cart on the King's highway viaduct, couldn't remember where he got the liquor, nor to whom he was taking it. "Tell such stories to the Marines," said Judge Dyer. "And pay a $200 fine also," he added.

Similar cases had cost defendants with better memories $100.

Counsel for Tony Battisto, 324 South Fourth street, sought clemency for his client by asserting that Tony was now an American citizen.

"Not 100 per cent American, or he wouldn't violate our laws," declared the Judge. "He's just a pretender. Because of his five children, however, I'll make his fine $100."

Reference to Foreigners.

Judge Dyer here made his remarks that 90 per cent of the men who appeared before him in liquor law violation cases were foreigners.

"They come into this court and are naturalized," he said. "They take an oath to uphold the laws of the United States, then go out and violate them. These men care nothing for the Constitution, nor the country, either, but the country will soon be finding it necessary to handle them in some way.

"There's been only one real 100 per cent American before me today, and he was a negro. He told the truth like a man, and I let him off with a light fine. The liars don't find me so easy."

The negro was George Zomphier of 2128 Chestnut street, who had sought to oblige a railroad porter by purchasing two five-gallon containers of whisky from a Greek who covered a regular route with his wagon.

"The porter was going to pay me $16, just what I was getting ready to give the peddler, when all at once here was a policeman," said Zomphier. "The Greek left without getting his money, I didn't get any $16, but the policeman got me and the whisky."

Zomphier's readiness to divulge the names of the Greek and the porter won him clemency in the form of a $100 fine.

"Kept Whisky for Friend."

Louis Locatell, proprietor of a lunchroom and saloon at 408 Market street, told a story apparently disclosing even less guilt than the negro.

Although hardly at fault, he was willing to plead guilty to possession, because a policeman stepped into his place of business just in time to see Locatell, who had consented to keep a pint of whisky for a customer; handing it back over the counter to his friend.

"This looks like a case for a jury," declared Judge Dyer, "but since it appears to be your second offense, and as I don't believe your story anyway, I'll fine you $250."

Louis Berra kept a hardware store at 5209 Southwest avenue—also a quantity of pre-prohibition wine and whisky, for family use, he said, in his living quarters to the rear. In a generous moment he sold a glass of whisky to a policeman, an old friend, for 50 cents.

Fines From $50 to $500.

"Sell hardware, but not hard liquor," said the Judge, and imposed a $50 fine.

This was the smallest fine of the day. The largest were $500 ones imposed on Gioacchino La Barero, Joseph La Barero and Sam Sapenza, who pleaded guilty of running a still on the St. Charles Rock road, St. Charles County. The size of operations, indicated by 15,000 gallons of mash found, was reflected in the fines.

Ernest H. Feld, who appeared as the typical steady small merchant, smiled genially at the Judge, as he explained he thought he should get off lightly because the half-pint of whisky found in the combination grocery and saloon he has conducted at Twentieth and Branch streets since 1888 was discovered in that part devoted to cabbages and horseradish.

"Just like the old days in Kentucky," said Judge Dyer. "The women bought dry goods in front, the men wet goods in the rear. You look like a good man, but I'm afraid you're one of those good men who sometimes seek a little more money than they are entitled to by law. The fine will be $100."

One defendant, caught with six ounces of whisky in his saloon, thought the "little bit" of liquor found entitled him to some leniency. It was for his own use, anyway.

"A little for yourself, and a little for somebody else, maybe," said the Judge, and he made the fine comparatively little—$100.

ORDER FOR DISMISSAL OF PROHIBITION AGENT REPORTED

Allen Said to Have Been Instructed to Set Out H. B. Wahl, Recently Wounded.

An order for the dismissal of Harry B. Wahl, prohibition enforcement officer here, was received today by William H. Allen, Federal Prohibition Director, from D. H. Blair, Internal Revenue Commissioner at Washington, according to information received from Allen's office in Kansas City. The reason given was "because of irregularities."

Wahl now is in the Liberty Hospital, 4269 Delmar boulevard, suffering from a bullet wound in his left arm, reported to have been inflicted in the accidental discharge of a pistol he was cleaning Sunday afternoon at his home, 4428 Swan avenue.

Allen said to a Post-Dispatch representative: "I suppose the investigation of the irregularities was made by the intelligence unit, but I have no knowledge of it myself. The order for Wahl's dismissal did not state the nature of the irregularities."

Members of the family said they knew of no investigation of Harry Wahl's activities as an enforcement agent and were positive he still was connected with the department. Because of complications arising from Wahl's wound, physicians have not permitted visitors to see him.

PLATOON PROTECTION

A well-selected list of good bonds, drawing interest day and night, Sundays and holidays, rain or shine, is an ideal investment and at the same time a splendid protection against the embarrassing results of the unexpected.

When not needed, bond interest accumulates added surplus which can be invested in more good bonds to draw additional interest to buy other bonds—an endless chain of profit making and taking.

Then, too, a good bond is always saleable or it can be used as security for a quick loan in sudden emergency.

Buying bonds is a habit which can be cultivated with profit by everybody who has surplus money—even a small weekly or monthly balance, and it requires no particular financial knowledge to buy good bonds.

Any reputable bank, investment house or trust company will be pleased to offer sound advice to prospective bond purchasers, and to discuss the wisdom of accumulating investments.

3 MEN FORCE COUPLE TO DRIVE THEM ABOUT ST. CLAIR COUNTY

They Leap on Auto and Direct Tour; Give Man 50 Cents Carfare From Wife's Purse.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Chapman of 1609 Henrietta street, East St. Louis, were the unwilling conductors of a tour of Western St. Clair County, last night, at the insistence of three forceful young men who leaped onto Chapman's machine as he was driving home from Alton, about 10:30 o'clock.

It was after 1 a. m. when Chapman reported to East St. Louis police that while driving on the Brooklyn road, between Venice and Brooklyn, he passed three young men. One of them jumped onto the rear of his touring car and, punching a revolver through the curtain, told him to stop.

The trio climbed into the car and commanded that he drive on. He drove to the edge of East St. Louis and then, at the men's command, turned and drove back into the county. The tour continued for nearly two hours. At Third and State streets, Madison, he was ordered to stop and he and his wife forced to get out. The robbers gave him 50 cents which they took from Mrs. Chapman's purse, for "carfare home," and, with the advice that the car would be found on the Brooklyn road where they first met, they departed. The only thing they took besides the automobile was Mrs. Chapman's cameo ring.

The machine has not been found.

1800 STRIKERS BACK AT WORK

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BLOOMINGTON, Ill., Oct. 11.—Of 1800 employes of the Chicago & Alton shops here who went out on strike July 1, the last came back to work today and nearly all of the nonunion men departed. The company announced that 74 cents an hour for first-class mechanics would be paid.

This is 4 cents higher than the scale fixed by Labor Board, and which precipitated the walkout.

KNIGHTS OF THE TIGER'S EYE

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BALTIMORE, Md., Oct. 11.—The Emerson Den of Baltimore, Invisible Jungle, Knights of the Tiger's Eye, has been organized here, and many Baltimoreans are said to have become Tigers. The Knights of the Tiger's Eye have a sworn duty, to drive from the earth the Ku Klux Klan.

Gowned and hooded, the Jungle Knights will look like his satanic majesty when on parade. A flaming red robe, topped by a black hood in the shape of a cat's head, and a white tiger's eye sewed to the front of the cloak, composes the regalia.

HEARING ON VIADUCT RECONSTRUCTION CASE

Missouri Public Service Commission Receives Arguments of City and Railroads.

The Missouri Public Service Commission met at the city hall today to hear arguments in the case of the city against the Terminal Railroad Association and the Missouri Pacific Railroad regarding reconstruction of the Fourteenth street viaduct, which was knocked down by a train, Feb. 12, 1920, and has since been out of commission.

Complaints on Delay.

Persons served by the viaduct and merchants in its vicinity have repeatedly complained of the inconvenience and damage caused by delay in its reconstruction.

The city has had money available for its share in a new viaduct for Fourteenth street from a bond issue passed in May, 1920. At that time the city estimated that a 60-foot viaduct could be built for $525,000, but preferred an 80-foot viaduct, at an estimated cost then of $595,000. The railroad companies demurred on the ground that they had no available funds. Costs have since dropped and a 60-foot viaduct can be erected for about $450,000.

City Would Pay 20 Per Cent.

The city, which at first agreed to pay half the cost of a new viaduct in order to expedite the work, is contending today that it should not be called upon to pay more than 20 per cent of the cost, pointing out that other cities do not assume more than 20 to 25 per cent of the cost of eliminating grade crossings. It will be shown that the city has paid $1,925,640 and the railroads only $410,117 of the cost of the viaducts in the Mill Creek Valley over Twelfth, Fourteenth, Eighteenth and Twenty-first streets, and Compton and Jefferson avenues and Grand boulevard.

An 80-foot viaduct also will be insisted upon, as the opening of Twelfth street to the south is said to be taxing the Twelfth street viaduct to its capacity and the overflow must be taken care of by the Fourteenth street structure.

OPPOSITION TO SENATOR REED URGED BY W. C. T. U. STATE HEAD

Mrs. Nellie G. Burger Says He Has Grossly Misrepresented Best Element of Missouri.

Opposition to Senator Reed regardless of party was urged by Mrs. Nelle G. Burger, president of the Missouri Woman's Christian Temperance Union, in her annual address today at the convention at the Planters Hotel. A resolution to the same effect was presented to the delegates by the Executive Committee for adoption Friday. Under the caption of "The Menace of Reed," Mrs. Burger said:

"The re-election of Senator Reed would throw the shadow of reproach across the fair name of Missouri. For 12 years he has grossly misrepresented the best element and the best interests of Missouri. For 12 years he has obstructed all uplifting and forward-looking legislation and brought to the mind of our many critics the sobriquet, 'Poor old Missouri' ".

She called attention to Reed's opposition to prohibition legislation and to the maternity bill, the selective draft and the Food Administration, declaring: "He was a traitor to the party which elected him." Mrs. Burger is a Democrat.

"There are no party lines among the liquor crowd," she exclaimed. "When, oh, when, will the dry forces of Missouri learn the same lesson."

SLAYER OF ROBBER EXONERATED

Justifiable Homicide Verdict in Rose Inn Holdup Case.

A Coroner's verdict of justifiable homicide was returned last night at Clayton in the case of the killing of Joseph Resnick, 19 years old, of 2829 Stoddard street, who was shot Sunday during an attempted holdup at Rose Inn on the North and South road.

Deputy Constable George J. Roth, who killed Resnick, himself suffered five bullet wounds, from which he is now recovering. Nick Seibrel of Wellston, a plumber, foreman of the coroner's jury, instituted a relief fund for Roth by contributing $10. Other jurors contributed their fees, binging the total to about $20.

Sheriff Willman feels that his deputies need pistol practice, so next Sunday he is to be host to his six assistants at his farm near Clayton, on the Clayton road, at which time target practice will be held. "It is highly essential that an officer of the law be able to pull his 'gun' quickly and fire accurately," said the Sheriff.

MODIFICATION OF 8-HOUR DAY AGITATES LABOR IN FRANCE

Unions Demand Enforcement of Limit After Action by Minister of Marine.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Oct. 11.—Agitation and unrest prevails in labor organizations throughout France, due to the modification of the eight-hour regulation for marine employes, recently promulgated by the Minister of Marine. The labor unions now demand the enforcement of the eight-hour day in the other classes of labor.

The printers' union has given notice to employers that the union will not condone the practice of its members of working overtime at the ordinary tariff. The employers say that, owing to the scarcity of compositors, wages are not limited to 3½ francs an hour, which is the scale rate, but have been increased to 4 francs an hour in many cases. It is pointed out that the printers are receiving nine hours' pay for an eight-hour day, and for this reason, employers contend, time and one-half for overtime should not be demanded.

The practice of disregarding the eight-hour day with the consent of the workers is quite general in French workshops.

ROSSKOPF ELECTED SCHOOL BOARD HEAD

Jesse McDonald Vice-President—Name of Theodore Roosevelt Chosen for New High School.

Harry Rosskopf was formally elected president of the Board of Education at the regular meeting of the board last night and former Judge Jesse McDonald was elected vice president. The selection of the two at a conference of the board members last Thursday, after Mrs. Benjamin F. Bush had declined to accept election to the presidency, was published at that time in the Post-Dispatch.

Mrs. Elias Michael, recently appointed to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of Dr. Henry L. Wolfner, was seated formally last night, although she was sworn in as a member of the body two weeks ago and has participated in conferences and committee meetings.

Rosskopf, an attorney, and candidate on the Republican ticket for Judge of the Circuit Court, served six months as president of the board in 1021 in filling the unexpired term of W. Frank Carter.

A resolution presented by Stephen M Wagner for the naming of the new South Side high school in honor of former President Theodore Roosevelt was adopted, as was also a resolution for the sending of a picture of the school to the widow of the former President.

Permission of the city will be requested by the board to mark street crossings with white lines in the vicinity of school buildings in the interest of the safety of pupils in a campaign suggested by Superintendent of Instruction Maddox to stop jay walking by the children and teach them to cross the streets at the corners.

FOUR DEAD AFTER MUTINY OF IRISH IRREGULAR PRISONERS

Search of Cells Reveals Revolvers and Explosives—Hierarchy Condemns Anti-Treaty Rebellion.

By the Associated Press.

DUBLIN, Oct. 11.—Four persons are dead and a number of others wounded, following the mutiny of Irish irregular army prisoners in the Mount Joy jail yesterday. The dead are one national soldier, two policemen and one mutineer.

A search of the cells of the mutineers after the disturbance had been quelled revealed materials for use in making bombs, explosives, revolvers, ammunition and several bombs.

A definite pronouncement against the antitreaty rebellion was made yesterday by the Irish hierarchy and is expected to have an important influence on the situation. The hierarchy issued a pastoral letter condemning in the strongest terms guerilla warfare against the Free State Government and declaring that "the killing of national soldiers is murder before God."

Denouncing robberies and the destruction of roads and railways, the letter enjoins that persons guilty of such crimes shall not be given absolution or admitted to communion if they persist in such evil courses.

PASSING OF "WHITE FRONT" LUNCH ROOM FORECAST

Restaurant Owners Say Warmer Tints Are Desirable to Warm Customers' Mental Processes.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—The passing of the "white front" lunchroom in favor of one with colors was more likely to soothe the esthetic tastes of the diners, was foreshadowed at yesterday's session of the convention of the National Restaurant Association by speakers who arraigned the cold aspect of white tiled cafes. The white tilings so popular in lunchroom circles may be all right for sanitation purposes and for hot climates, but in this country, where warmer tints are desirable in winter, other color schemes may become the vogue, most of the speakers agreed.

William Childs of the Childs' chair of restaurants, told delegates that the colorful tiling bids fair to supplant the plain white tiling, especially in the Northern states. In the kitchen, where presumably chefs and dishwashers are not bothered by esthetic sensibilities, white is the best from the health standpoint, but the customers' mental processes must be warmed up in winter as well as his digestive apparatus.

WORLD WIDE SLUMP IN SHIP BUILDING SHOWN

American Loss Greatest; U. S. Building Only 6 Per Cent of World's Tonnage.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—A world-wide slump in shipbuilding, with the United States showing by far the greatest loss, is disclosed in figures compiled by Lloyd's register. With reference to this country the register shows that:

1. Counting only ships on which work actually is in progress, the United States is led by England, France and Holland, with Japan and the British dominions right on the heels of the United States.

2. The United States is now building only 6 per cent of the world's tonnage; England is building 60 per cent, and the other maritime nations 34 per cent combined.

3. This country now has only 150,000 tons of ships in the yards; has not contracted for any new ones since last July 1, and has largely suspended work on those already on the ways.

4. America's decline since the post-armistice peak of vessel construction has been 4,036,000 tons—a goodly percentage of the decline for all the world, which aggregates only 5,346,000 tons.

5. Her shipyards are building only one-third as much tonnage as they were a year ago; Great Britain's are building one-half.

6. America is building today only 2000 tons more of freight bottoms than she was at the outbreak of the world war in July, 1914; all other nations, taking into account the wholesale suspension of building during the last three months, aggregate 919,000 tons above the pre-war construction total; Great Britain is building 1,200,000 tons, compared with 1,750,000 she had under way in July, 1914.

Lloyd's points to these figures as a "striking indication of how the volume of shipbuilding is falling off through the scarcity of new orders to replace work to be completed," continuing:

"During the past quarter the shipyards of all countries combined started on new work aggregating only 187,527 gross tons, while in the same period 476,000 tons of shipping were launched, the launchings being more than two and one-half times the volume of new work."

In the United States, it is shown, there have been virtually no new launchings in the three months, or no new orders. Great Britain's launchings have been nearly four times her new contracts.

The register also notes a sharp decrease in the construction of tankers throughout the world, the decline in the past quarter having been 140,000 gross tons.

Convicts Foil Escape of Two.

CHICAGO, Oct. 11.—The principle upon which the Joliet prison honor farm is being conducted stood the test last night when two men who intended to flee were prevented from doing so by their fellow prisoners.

NIGHT FLYING WITH AIR MAIL IS PLANNED

Government Hopes to Make Schedule of 28 to 30 Hours Across Country.

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, Mich., Oct. 11.—More than 12,000 pounds of first class mail is delivered from three to four hours earlier each day than would be the case if the postoffice department had no air mail service, Assistant Postmaster General Henderson declared today in an address at the International Aerial Meet. The point of view of the department, he added, "is that the people of the country are entitled to and should be given full advantage of additional speed in the matter of handling mail matter."

Henderson explained that the air mail service at present consists "of a relay advance of mail from New York across the continent and visa versa, that is to say, no particular mail is taken for a complete trip across the continent."

"We advance certain mail into Cleveland which misses the late night trains out of New York," he said, "we take from Cleveland into Chicago mail which otherwise would go into Chicago on a train too late for delivery in the afternoon. This process is repeated in relays across the continent with the net result that we advance approximately 12,000 pounds of first-class letter mail each day, a matter of some three or four hours."

Henderson further explained that "to get from the airplane all that it may offer in the shape of postal service it will be necessary to fly at night.

"If we are successful in this, it will mean that we will be able to make a transcontinental flight from New York to San Francisco in one continuous movement flying from New York to Chicago in the daytime, Chicago to Cheyenne at night, and from Cheyenne to San Francisco during the early part of the second day. We should be able to establish and maintain a schedule of from 28 to 30 hours between New York and San Francisco if this night flying experiment proves out."

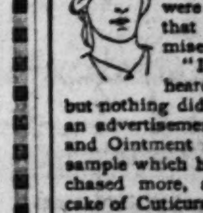
Cuticura Heals Severe Itching Burning Pimples



"I was troubled with a breaking out of pimples on my face and arms, which later formed sore eruptions and spread. The itching and burning were so severe at times that it made me very miserable.

"I tried everything I heard of and was treated but nothing did any good. I read an advertisement for Cuticura Soap and Ointment and sent for a free sample which helped me so I purchased more, and after using one cake of Cuticura Soap and one box of Cuticura Ointment I was healed." (Signed) Mrs. V. Kelley, 502 Second St., Manistee, Mich.

Keep your skin clear by using Cuticura Soap and Ointment for every-day toilet purposes and Cuticura Talcum to powder and perfume.

STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION FAVORED

Constitution Committee Also Recommends Teachers' Retirement Fund.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Oct. 11.—The creation of a State board of education of six members with supervision over the public schools of the State and power to select a commissioner of education, and the granting of authority to the General Assembly to authorize the establishment of "teachers' retirement funds," were the outstanding recommendations of the committee on education to the constitutional convention today. Mrs. W. W. Martin of Fayette, one of the four women delegates in the convention, is chairman of the Committee on Education.

The proposal recommended by the committee provides that the General Assembly shall provide for the election of the State Board of Education of six members, in whom shall be vested the supervision of instruction in the public schools of the State. The board is directed to report the condition of the schools to each regular session of the Legislature together with the recommendations of such changes in the school laws "as in its judgment will promote the educational interests of the State."

Retirement Fund Proposal.

A proposal which will authorize school units to provide retirement fgunds for the teachers was recommended on the appeal of teachers of St. Louis and Kansas City, according to the committee. The proposal follows:

"Retirement fund. Nothing in this Constitution shall prohibit the General Assembly from authorizing the establishment of teachers' retirement funds."

The committee added the following: "This is a new section and is offered in response to appeals from teachers of Kansas City and St. Louis, and an apparent sentiment in favor of any school having the right to provide retirement funds for its teachers if it wish to do so."

Alfred N. Gossett of Kansas City submitted a minority report in which he struck out the proposal authorizing the establishment of the retirement funds.

The proposal creating the State Board of Education provides that it shall select the Commissioner of Education, fix his compensation and prescribe his duties. The Commissioner shall be removable at the discretios of the board.

An amendment adopted recently by the committee of the whole was attacked vigorously in the convention today on the ground that it would allow the creation of a State constabulary.

John S. Haymes of Buffalo opened the fight against it. He was assisted in the attack by J. O. Allison of New London. The amendment in question follows:

"The Governor shall be a conservator of the peace throughout the States and shall be responsible for the execution of the laws, and may call to his aid any and all local peace officers of the State."

George H. Williams of St. Louis, who introduced the amendment, declared it was not his purpose to have a State constabulary established or have a force similar to the Texas Rangers. Williams said the proposal would authorize the Governor to direct the enforcement of the law in emergency cases. He said the calling out of State militia by the Governor to preserve order entails much cost and causes ill feeling.

PILOT HINTON STARTS FLIGHT OF 300 MILES TO GUADELOUPE

Customs Officer at San Juan Accepts His Petition Against Requirement of Health Bills.

By the Associated Press.

SAN JUAN, PORTO RICO, Oct. 11.—Lieut. Walter Hinton, on a airplane flight from New York to Rio Janeiro, departed at 8:35 o'clock this morning for the island of Guadeloupe. With favorable conditions he hoped to reach Point-A-Pitre, 300 miles away, in five or six hours. After taking on gasoline they are expected to continue on toward Martinique this afternoon.

By George T. Bye.

SAN JUAN, P. R., Oct. 11.—Acting Collector of Customs Siegmun has accepted the petition of Lieut. Hinton to the effect that the SC II is not a merchantman and therefore there was no need of our having the port bills of health he required. The fine of $5000 which he assessed us on our arrival yesterday will be submitted to the Secretary of the Treasury at Washington for adjudication and the intercolonial friendship voyagers will be permitted to proceed.

The distance from here to Guadeloupe is an even 300 nautical miles, and 100 more to Martinique.

STRONG EARTHQUAKE SHAKES ROME; NO DAMAGE REPORTED

Great Alarm Is Caused by the Shock Among the Population of the City.

By the Associated Press.

ROME, Oct. 11.—A strong earthquake shook this city today, causing great alarm among the population. No damage, however, had been reported up to 1 o'clock this afternoon.

Sons and Daughters—and the Library Table

"SHOW me the home," said Lincoln, "and I will tell you the strength of the nation."

Whatever keeps mothers and fathers and sons and daughters grouped around the library table instead of adventuring afield for mental stimulation and amusement—that influence builds strength for the nation.

The radio industry leaped last year with one bound into the group of the first five industries in the country. It did this not because it was a novelty, but because it brought into the home the best mental stimulation of the entire world.

With one mighty sweep it took the news of the nation, the greatest renditions of its music, the words of its greatest statesmen and lecturers, and delivered them all at the library table—alive, vibrating with humanity, instant; undulled by the barriers of space, undelayed by time. Radio has made the home the listening post of the nation—and De Forest made present-day radio possible.

DE FOREST

De Forest Radiophones* are radio receiving sets of all types, from the simplest to the most elaborate, whose reception range runs from thirty or forty up to thousands of miles. Some are used with outside aerial; others with the inside loop aerial which stands unobtrusively on your library table. These perfected instruments bring in broadcasting clearly and without distortion, either through head phones or loud speakers, or both.

Since De Forest's invention of the vacuum tube (without which present-day radio would be still a dream) the De Forest name has consistently stood for the greatest achievements in radio. Remember this fact for your protection and for your greatest pleasure and profit. Whether you buy complete sets or build your own from De Forest laboratory-precision parts, rely on the De Forest dealer near you. He will explain how simple it is, and how satisfactory, to "listen to the world" with De Forest.

IF KIDNEYS ACT BAD TAKE SALTS

Says Backache often means you have been eating too much meat.

When you wake up with backache and dull misery in the kidney region it may mean you have been eating too much meat, says a well-known authority. An excess of meat may form uric acid which overworks the kidneys in their effort to filter it from the blood and they become sort of paralyzed and loggy. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog you must relieve them, like you relieve your bowels, else you have backache, sick headache, dizzy spells; your stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges.

Either consult a good, reliable physician at once or get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize acids so they no longer irritate, thus often ending bladder weakness.

Homemade Remedy Stops Coughs Quickly

The Best Cough Medicine You Ever Used. A Family Supply Easily and Quickly Made. Saves About $2.

You might be surprised to know that the best thing you can use for a severe cough, is a remedy which is easily prepared at home in just a few minutes. It's cheap, but for prompt results it beats anything else you ever tried. Usually stops the ordinary cough or chest cold in 24 hours. Tastes pleasant, too—children like it—and it is pure and good.

Pour 2½ ounces of Pinex in a pint bottle; then fill it up with plain granulated sugar syrup. Or use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup, if desired. Thus you make a full pint—a family supply—but costing no more than a small bottle of ready made cough syrup.

And as a cough medicine, there is really nothing better to be had at any price. It goes right to the spot and gives quick, lasting relief. It promptly heals the inflamed membranes that line the throat and air passages, stops the annoying throat tickle, loosens the phlegm, and soon your cough stops entirely. Splendid for bronchitis, croup, hoarseness and bronchial asthma.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions and don't accept any thing else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

KEEP LOOKING YOUNG

It's Easy—If You Know Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets.

The secret of keeping young is to feel young—to do this you must watch your liver and bowels—there's no need of having a sallow complexion—dark rings under your eyes—pimples—a bilious look in your face—dull eyes with no sparkle. Your doctor will tell you ninety per cent of all sickness comes from inactive bowels and liver.

Dr. Edwards, a well-known physician in Ohio, perfected a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil to act on the liver and bowels, which he gave to his patients for years.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel, are gentle in their action, yet always effective. They bring about that natural buoyancy which all should enjoy by toning up the liver and clearing the system of impurities.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are known by their olive color. 15c and 30c.

SIX PERSONS INJURED IN FIVE AUTO ACCIDENTS

Fifty-Seven Street Lights Extinguished When Machine Hits Post, Breaking Circuit.

Fifty-seven street lights and outside display lights within a radius of several blocks from Fourth street and Chouteau avenue were extinguished last night when an automobile knocked down a pole at that corner, breaking the circuit.

Police found the wrecked automobile in searching for the damage to the light circuit. Mrs. Bertha Robben, 28, of 2826 Franklin avenue, was found in the automobile, in a dazed condition, suffering lacerations of the head and bruises. At the city hospital she told police she had been riding with her husband, George J. Robben of 2806A Franklin avenue, from whom she is separated, and a man known to her as George Frank. Her husband was driving the car, she said, when it swerved suddenly into the pole. Robben and the other man, who left the scene, are being sought by police.

Collision With Street Car.

Mrs. Mildred Bardelmeyer, 34, of 4254 Arsenal street, suffered a concussion of the brain, when an automobile she was driving collided with a southbound Tower Grove street car at Grand boulevard and Pestalozzi street, at noon. Miss Mary A. Rigle, 17, of 4258A Arsenal street, riding with Mrs. Bardelmeyer, suffered lacerations of the face and body.

Miss Mary F. Brown, 46, of 5330 North Market street, suffered contusions of the body and an injury to her right leg at 7:25 p. m. when knocked down by the automobile driven by Frank Blattermann, of 3402 Williams place, as she was crossing the street in front of 2325 Union boulevard.

Hugh McNamee, 40 years old, of 5858 Maple avenue, assistant secretary and treasurer of the Board of Education suffered a fracture of the right leg at 11 p. m. when struck by the automobile of Charles J. Daly Jr. of 5937 Julian avenue, at Union boulevard and Hodiamont tracks.

Woman Hit by Backing Auto.

An automobile driven by Mrs. A. H. Nagle of 1823 La Salle street backed up instead of going forward when she let out the clutch at Broadway and Olive street and struck Mrs. Catherine Stannard, 55, of 5660 Kingsbury avenue, who was crossing the street. Mrs. Stannard was treated for possible fracture of the left knee. Mrs. Nagle told police that she had stopped to allow a street car to receive passengers and that she thought she had shifted to first speed forward but instead had placed the gears in reverse.

SENATOR REED DENOUNCED BY SPEAKER AT KLAN CONVENTION

Preacher at Kansas City Terms Him Un-American—Officers Say More Than 15,000 Attend Meeting.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 11.—Vigorous denunciation of Senator James A. Reed and a pronouncement of its doctrines featured the first open meeting in Kansas City of the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan last night, in convention hall. It was estimated by klan officers that more than 15,000 persons were admitted to the hall and several thousand others turned away. The night meeting followed an afternoon initiation of 400 members in the hall.

Five speakers were on the platform. They were John R. Jones, KlEagle of the klan; the Rev. E. L. Thompson of Kansas City, the Rev. John W. Darby, Kansas City; William Parker, editor and publisher of the Menace of Aurora, Mo., and Glen L. Bruner, nonpartisan candidate for the Jackson County Circuit Court judgeship.

"The klan does not discriminate against any politics or any religion." Jones said. He attacked Thomas Pendergast and Joseph B. Shannon, Kansas City political bosses.

"The greatest question before the klan today is the well-being of the American public," the Rev. Mr. Thompson said. "There are two great branches of God's people today. They are the Roman Catholics and the Protestants. I am a Democrat. My father was born in Georgia and I was born and reared in Texas. I am an American first. I am against Jim Reed because he is un-American.

"Last week there appeared in the Catholic Register, the official publication of the Catholic Church in Kansas City, a list of business men who belong to the klan. All Catholics were asked to boycott these merchants. I believe the klan is justified in boycotting all Catholic merchants and business men in the face of the order given to Kansas City Catholics."

NEGRO REPORTS $1100 THEFT

Tells Police Money Was Stolen From Flue Hole in Home.

Finis Parker, a negro of 1110A Franklin avenue, told the police last night he had used a flue hole in his home as a banking place to hide $1100 while he was absent at work yesterday. When he came home at 2 p. m., he said, he found the padlock on the front door broken and the tin covering of the flue removed and the money gone. He said the thief had overlooked $400 additional which had been hidden under a vase on a table in the same room.

Miss Alberta Foege of 4411 Norfolk avenue reported to the police that a sneak thief in her home yesterday took $50 from the rafters in the basement, where it had been secreted by her father.

Refuses to Renounce Syndicalism.

By the Associated Press.

EL CENTRO, Cal., Oct. 11.—Roscoe Thurman, convicted in the Imperial County Supreme Court of criminal syndicalism, was offered probation by Judge M. C. Conkling if he would renounce revolutionary beliefs. Thurman said he preferred the sentence of from one to 14 years' imprisonment in San Quentin penitentiary which was imposed upon him. His attorney announced yesterday an appeal would be taken.

Ship's Bartender Off for Havana.

By the Associated Press.

SEATTLE, Wash., Oct. 11.—"Os" Williams, bartender on the Shipping Board steamer President Madison, plying between Puget Sound and the Orient, has packed his cocktail glasses carefully, thrust his white aprons and jacket into a brown bag, and left here for Havana. "I got a telegram from Mr. Lasker of the Shipping Board," "Os" explained. "It said 'Lock up the bar and get off the ship.'"

Kellogg's Bran means so much to the health of every one who eats it!

Start eating Bran today! You can't afford the delay of a day—for BRAN—Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled, is nature's own remedy for constipation. Eliminate constipation or its symptoms from your system and you add years to your life. Free yourself of illness that can be directly traced to this distressing condition!

Authorities state that 90% of human illness has its beginning with constipation, which clogs the eliminative passages, backing up poisons and creating toxic conditions. At this stage the blood becomes affected and then follows the disorder of various organs. Bright's disease, diabetes, most cases of rheumatism, hardening of arteries, headaches, brain fag, etc., are directly caused by intestinal poisoning.

Pills and cathartics can give no adequate relief. They are not only temporary in their effect, but tend to aggravate already dangerous conditions. Kellogg's Bran causes neither discomfort nor irritation, and its action is absolutely positive. Bran sweeps and cleanses and purifies! Its work is wonderful!

Physicians indorse the use of Kellogg's Bran for constipation because it relieves constipation, naturally. Eat Bran regularly—at least two tablespoonfuls daily; in chronic cases with each meal—as a cereal, sprinkled on other cereals, or in many other appetizing ways such as in raisin bread gems, pancakes, macaroons, etc. Recipes on every box. All grocers sell Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled! Start with Kellogg's Bran today.

P. S.—Kellogg's Bran, eaten regularly, will clear up a pimply complexion and overcome an obnoxious breath.

REVOLUTION AT BALLOT BOX URGED BY BORAH

Idaho Senator Points to Leaping Taxes, Declaring Situation Is Making Bolshevists.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BOISE, Idaho, Oct. 11.—Senator William E. Borah demanded "a political revolution conducted at the ballot box" in the keynote speech of his Idaho campaign Monday night. He told an audience of 500 people that filled the auditorium, gallery and stage of a Meridian church that taxes in every community, every state and the nation have leaped since 1915, and declared the situation was making bolshevists. He insisted that "a fight for fiscal relief is a fight for the American home," and urged upon the people the "necessity of taking into their own hands the instrumentalities of power in politics."

The Senator laid down this program of relief: Add nothing to our present burden; cut all government to absolute essentials; bring home every American soldier in Europe; reduce the army to 100,000; collect the interest on the national debt; restore the excess profits tax law; pass a Federal inheritance tax law; give complete publicity to income tax payments; establish a rural credit system based on agricultural interests and not commercial interests.

"Instrumentality of Interests."

When he began his assault upon the convention system of nominations Senator Borah said that 50 years ago it was not a bad institution. But today, he went on, it has become an instrumentality in the hands of special interests from one end of the country to the other. Under the convention system, he asserted, 2 per cent of the people control 85 per cent of the political power. He read excerpts from the New York Times to show that the ticket nominated by the Democratic convention recently held was named entirely by one man. He said the same thing was true of the Republican convention in that State, and declared that the Government under a convention system is "just as autocratic as the Government in Russia."

"If the American people," he said, "want to trust their affairs to the hands of a few men, the convention system does it for them."

Praises Pennsylvania System.

He praised the primary system and the women voters of Pennsylvania for, as he alleged, overturning the corrupt Penrose machine and sending to the Senate such men as Pepper and Reed, and to the Governor's chair such a man as Pinchot. He quoted a statement alleged to have been made by Secretary Weeks of the War Department, to the effect that the American voter has neither time, ability nor capacity to conduct his affairs, and said this was the doctrine of those who favored the convention system.

And he predicted that after not so many more years of conventions "they" would even pass laws so a man cannot be an independent candidate for office. Then, he said, the voters would have to choose between the men put up by the parties or stay away from the polls.

At the door of the convention system Senator Borah laid the apathy of voters who are tending more and more to remain away from the polls.

When he came to the Idaho Republican platform which contains a convention plank, Senator Borah declared that "nobody in the State is paying the slightest attention to that platform made at Wallace."

DEFER CROSS-CONTINENT FLIGHT

By the Associated Press.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Oct. 11.—Lieutenants J. A. Macready and Oakley Kelly, aviators, who last week broke the record for sustained flight here in the big monoplace T-2, and who had intended to start today on a nonstop flight to New York, announced last night that they would postpone that flight because of unfavorable weather in the Middle West.

Telegraphic reports from Charles Mitchell, weather forecaster at Washington, advised the flyers that strong head winds would be encountered between Tucumcari, N. M., and a point well east of St. Louis. His forecast was for a storm of probably severe intensity in an area which the aviators planned to traverse at night. The aviators said they would wait until favorable conditions were reported.

NOTED ENGINEER IS PUT IN JAIL

Daniel C. Willoughby Admits Passing Worthless Check.

By the Associated Press.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 11.—Daniel C. Willoughby, widely-known industrial engineer, was fined $50 here yesterday after he pleaded guilty of passing a worthless check for $25 at a local hotel. He said he was unable to pay the fine and was locked up.

Willoughby's plans for the port of Brest were used by the United States during the world war, and his scheme for the development of the port of Boston now is being carried out.

Income Tax Law Lectures.

A special course of six lectures on income tax law will be given by Washington University, beginning Oct. 31, at the request of the War Tax Committee of the Chamber of Commerce. Lectures will be given Tuesday evenings. Both men and women will be permitted to enroll for the course. Ralph R. Neuhoff, of the Law School faculty, will have charge of the class.

NAMED ON ANTHRAX COMMISSION

American Expert Will Take Part in Investigation at Geneva.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—The United States will be represented on a commission of the International Labor Bureau at Geneva, it was said yesterday, but it was declared that the State Department has made no appointment in this connection. Instead, it was explained Dr. Marion Dorset of the Department of Agriculture, an anthrax expert, has been named by that department to represent the Government on the Anthrax Advisory Commission, which has been set up by the Labor Bureau and which will investigate methods for prevention of anthrax.

America is not behind in fine woolens

$60

There are the distinctive tweeds of Scotland and the Parnell worsteds of Ireland and some English fabrics that are nowhere else duplicated—and we have all of these—but the Prescott American suiting woolen is in its way quite as distinctive and surely unexcelled in quality by any.

In shades of gray and blue and brown that in their softness, some in their daring, are beyond woolens of lesser quality. There are stripes and mixtures and color combinations—as many as there are many tastes.

When you have selected your particular Prescott woolen and it has been custom tailored—then you will have a suit as fine as a suit can be—though the cost will be but sixty dollars.

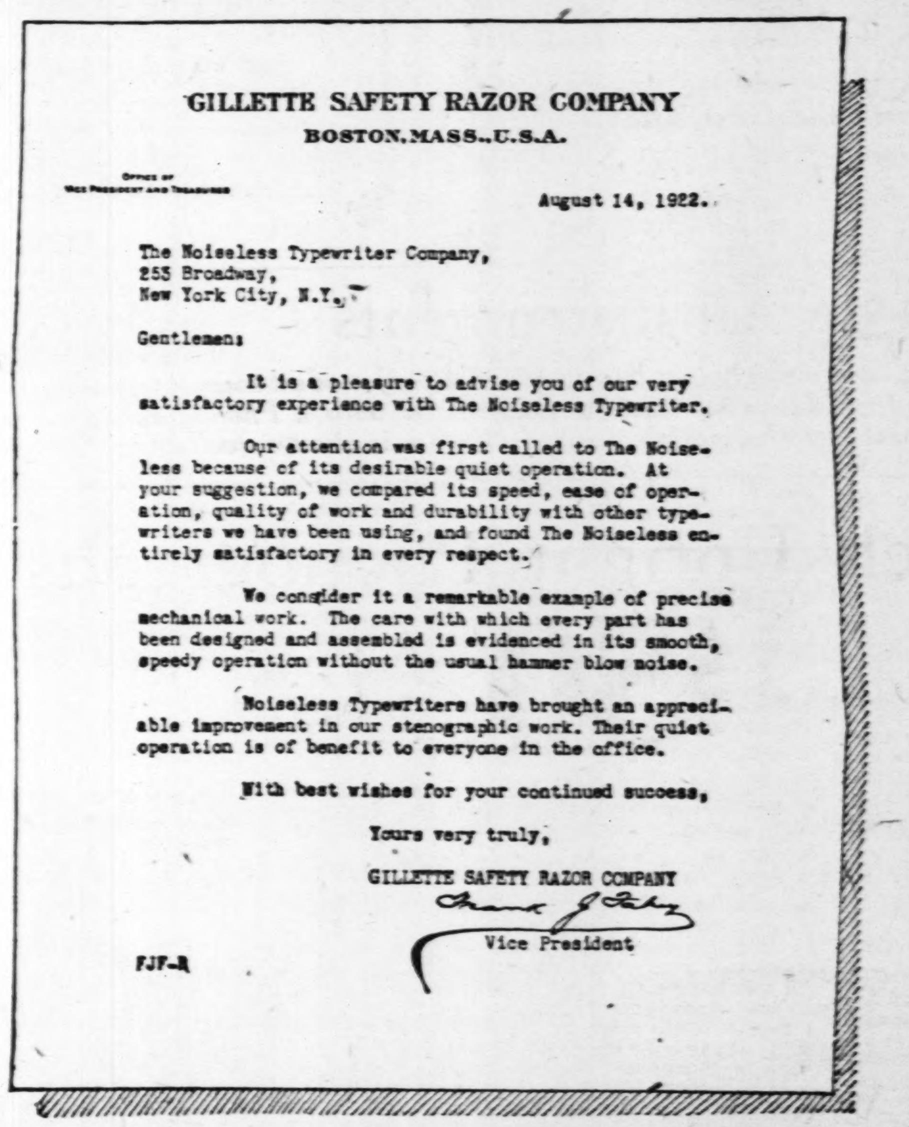
The Gillette Safety Razor Company admittedly keen judges of good machinery, and purchasers of only the best in supplies, say of The Noiseless Typewriter



GILLETTE SAFETY RAZOR COMPANY
BOSTON, MASS., U.S.A.

Office of
Vice President and Treasurer

August 14, 1922.

The Noiseless Typewriter Company,
253 Broadway,
New York City, N.Y.

Gentlemen:

It is a pleasure to advise you of our very satisfactory experience with The Noiseless Typewriter.

Our attention was first called to The Noiseless because of its desirable quiet operation. At your suggestion, we compared its speed, ease of operation, quality of work and durability with other typewriters we have been using, and found The Noiseless entirely satisfactory in every respect.

We consider it a remarkable example of precise mechanical work. The care with which every part has been designed and assembled is evidenced in its smooth, speedy operation without the usual hammer blow noise.

Noiseless Typewriters have brought an appreciable improvement in our stenographic work. Their quiet operation is of benefit to everyone in the office.

With best wishes for your continued success,

Yours very truly,
GILLETTE SAFETY RAZOR COMPANY
Frank J. Fahey
Vice President

FJF-R

FRANKLY, don't you prefer quiet to noise? Wouldn't you much rather have your office quiet—than to have it rattling with the unproductive clatter of typewriters?

Time was when this noise was necessary. But it is not any longer! The Noiseless has proved, in test after test, held by many of the world's greatest business institutions, that it is not only quiet, but faster, easier to operate, and more accurate than any other stock typewriter made.

It has won its way to a great, world-wide success by conspicuous service. It has proved the futility of noise by demonstrating the greater productive power of quiet.

Let us bring you The Noiseless for a trial demonstration. Test its speed, ease of operation, quality of work, durability and adaptability with any typewriter you desire. There will be no obligation on your part. We simply want you to know that you can get quiet, and, at the same time, the most satisfactory work any typewriter could do. Call, write or phone.

DEMOCRATS NOW ATTACKING HYDE TO DIRECT ATTENTION AWAY FROM REED

Decided Change in Strategy of State Committee Indicates That Re-election of Senator Is Thought to Be Certain and Fight Is Now to Save State Ticket.

BREWSTER PLAYING VIRTUALLY LONE HAND

Both Candidates Speak in North Missouri, Reed at Hannibal to Crowd of 1200, and Brewster to 150 at Louisiana.

By CURTIS A. BETTS,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

HANNIBAL, Mo., Oct. 11.—Political strategy has dictated to the Democratic State Committee a change in its plan of campaign, and now every effort is being made to direct attention away from Senator Reed, and to concentrate the fight on Gov. Hyde and the State administration.

So far the Republican State Committee has done nothing to meet the situation and, in fact, has done little to aid Brewster in his campaign, a condition which has led to considerable speculation among politicians as to whether there is a real Republican organization effort to elect Brewster, or whether he is to play virtually a lone hand throughout the campaign.

Whether the Democratic organization has concluded from this situation that there is little occasion for concern regarding Reed's election, and has determined that the only place there is call for a real political fight is for the candidates on the State ticket, with Reed profiting only indirectly, has not been disclosed, but the change in the system of operating the campaign this week is apparent.

Difference in Plans.

From the beginning the difference between the Democratic plan and the Republican plan has been particularly noticeable to the newspaper correspondents, who have attended meetings of both Reed and Brewster.

In the first place, the Democrats have two large tents which are shipped from place to place. Each is transported in a special railroad car, with a superintendent and a corps of workers. When the crew begins unloading and setting up the tents in a small Missouri town, virtually every inhabitant soon knows about it and a crowd almost as large as that which gathers in the small town to watch the circus unload is quickly on hand.

The tent is usually standing all day. There is a mystery about a large tent, and when the band begins to play at night several thousand persons are attracted, and almost without exception the tent is filled for Reed's meeting.

In addition to that, for the first two weeks of the campaign Reed had either Senator Stanley of Kentucky or Senator Robinson of Arkansas with him, and usually a woman speaker, a woman who opposed him in the primary and who is on the platform to appeal to women not to desert the Senator in the general election campaign. Then careful local arrangements have been made. The Senator is greeted on arrival by a dozen or so Democrats of more or less local prominence and there are numerous conferences during the day, to which loyal supporters of the Senator bring Democrats who are suspected of being off the reservation, to meet the Senator and not infrequently are they brought into line.

Brewster Virtually Alone.

How different is the Brewster tour. Traveling only with newspaper correspondents and one Republican representing the state Committee, whose duties have not become apparent to the correspondents, and possibly not even to Brewster, Brewster enters the town. Sometimes there are one or two Republican politicians at the railroad station to meet him and sometimes he finds his way as best he can to the hotel.

Usually there is no band, and frequently there are no evidences of advertisement of the meeting.

Yesterday when Brewster stepped from a Burlington train in Louisiana, he looked about the platform and saw a stranger who appeared to be looking for somebody he didn't know. "Are you looking for Brewster?" he asked. The stranger replied that he was. "I'm Brewster," the candidate said, and then several other local Republicans came forward, and Brewster was escorted to the hall for the meeting.

He has had with him no speaker of national reputation, and no woman speaker to appeal to the women voters particularly.

Big Audiences Hear Brewster.

In spite of these handicaps, Brewster has been having remarkable audiences. He has been in Democratic counties and his audiences usually have been several times the size of any audiences at any previous Republican meetings in those counties.

The first two weeks of the campaign there was nothing about one of the Democratic meetings which even indicated that there was any other candidate on the Democratic ticket than Reed. But with the beginning of this week that changed.

Mrs. R. E. Oldfather, chairman of the Democratic Women's City Committee of St. Louis, joined Reed Monday in Canton and will be with him the remainder of the week. Mrs. Oldfather tells the audiences she opposed Reed in the primary, and then tells them that it is the duty of all Democratic women to support him in the election.

After a brief introductory speech about Reed, Mrs. Oldfather launches into an attack on Gov. Hyde.

Dumm Now With Reed.

A. T. Dumm of Jefferson City, a member of the Democratic State Committee, joined Reed here last night, and will be with him the remainder of the week. Dumm is a polished orator, and because of his familiarity with State Capitol conditions is the big gun for the attack on Hyde.

Like Mrs. Oldfather, Dumm starts out with an explanation that he opposed Reed in the primary, but that he is supporting him in the general election and that all true Democrats should do likewise.

Following Dumm, Reed takes the platform. He says virtually nothing about himself. He makes no defense of his record. He makes no promises for the future. He lambasts Hyde. He talks about high taxes. He talks tariff and attacks Secretary of the Treasury Mellon. He discourses at considerable length about the Constitution, but he has very little to say about Brewster.

Very clearly the Democrats are trying to make Hyde and high taxes the issue of the campaign. Such an issue could have little bearing on the senatorship contest. It could deal only with the State ticket, the Judges of the Supreme Court and the members of the State Senate and the House of Representatives.

Mrs. Oldfather's Speech.

Mrs. Oldfather, in her speech last night said "The primary choice should be your choice, whether you are a defeated candidate or whether you are a private in the ranks.

"The State administration has its Hydes, its high taxes, its Brother Bens and its incompetents. The national administration has its Newberrys, its Goldsteins and its Hardings. In St. Louis we have the Kiel dynasty with its horde of leeches."

"The Democratic ticket in this campaign has not the support of a single metropolitan newspaper. The Globe-Democrat pretends to be independent, but it is as much Republican as it ever was. It is trying to keep up the differences between Long Democrats and Reed Democrats of the primary days. There should be no Long Democrats nor Reed Democrats now. We should all be just Democrats."

Concluding her remarks, Mrs. Oldfather brought Reed into the political class of one Andy Gump, a mythical comic strip candidate for office. Gump is advertised as "the candidate who wears no man's collar," and Mrs. Oldfather announced that "Senator Reed wears no man's collar except his own."

Dumm's Attack on Hyde.

Dumm's speech was largely devoted to statistical matter about state affairs. He charged that the Hyde administration had reduced taxes on the corporations, and had increased the farmers' taxes. He mentioned the 25-cent reduction in the corporation franchise tax and a slight reduction in the State income tax.

"How many of the great mass of the people are directly interested in the corporation franchise tax or the income tax?" Dumm asked.

He then said assessments on farm property had been increased by the Hyde administration from $778,711,000 to $1,767,000,000.

He gave what purported to be the figures of the expenditures of many departments of the State government, all showing increases of from 80 per cent to 300 per cent under the Republican administration.

Substance of Reed's Speech.

Reed opened his speech with the statement that the primary had settled all differences which had existed within the Democratic party "as far as a primary can settle them."

"We sometimes think," he continued without indicating that he referred to any particular persons, but many who heard him thought he probably was referring to President Wilson, "That the world hangs upon the deeds of one man. But the individual counts for no more than the drops of rain which fall into the sea. Only principles are eternal. The only use man is as he affects the general current of events."

A feature of Reed's speech which attracted particular attention came at the conclusion of a violent attack on Hyde and a criticism of the Hyde measures in the last Legislature, many of which have been suspended by the Democratic organization under the referendum, and which will be voted upon at the November election.

Among the measures which were sponsored by Hyde and which will be submitted under the referendum, though not through the efforts of the Democratic organization, is the county unit school bill, which had the active support of the State Teachers' Association.

Against All Hyde Bills.

"To be on the safe side," said Reed, "it might be well to vote against every law that has been referred" in this general statement is included the county unit school law and Reed's statement commits him and the Democratic ticket to opposition to that law.

Referring to a recent criticism by Hyde of the Supreme Court, Reed referred to Hyde as a "blotherskite, who stands up to vomit on the Supreme Court." About 1200 persons heard Reed, not a large audience for a political meeting in Hannibal. The general political condition in Marion County appears favorable to Brewster, though there is a local division in the Republican party, with the postmastership of Hannibal as the cause. Joe Ohern, a Hannibal druggist, who is chairman of the Republican County Committee is a candidate for the office, and has the ear of the State organization. In a faction opposing him are Berryman Henwood, Charles Rendlin and J. B. Jeffries, local Republicans of influence. It may be that the division will not seriously affect Brewster, but it is not helping solidarity of action in the Republican ranks.

Democrats Also Divided.

However, the Democratic division here is as noticeable as any place in the State. Breckinridge Long men controlled the old County Committee and a majority of the newly elected County Committeemen are Long men. Soon after the primary the committee adopted resolutions affirming its support of Woodrow Wilson and instructing committeemen to the congressional convention to vote only for Wilson men for members of the State Committee.

Influential members of the committee were not present at the meeting last night. James L. Clark, the chairman, who is a railroad engineer, pleaded that he "needed sleep." Ben E. Hulse, the Long manager in Hannibal during the primary, also did not find it convenient to attend.

There will be some Marion County Republicans who will vote for Reed, but it is the general opinion of informed politicians of both parties that Brewster will get many more Democratic votes than he loses Republican votes.

Different in Ralls County. . .

In Ralls County, which adjoins Marion, and where Reed spake yesterday afternoon, there seems to be a different situation. Reed has the support of Drake Watson, former Speaker of the Missouri House of Representatives, and other Democrats of influence. Watson said last night that he was confident there would be few Ralls County Democrats who would refuse to vote for Reed, and said that the least the Reed forces expected there was that Reed would get the usual Democratic majority. He said he believed Reed would receive more Republican votes than he lost Democratic votes.

LOUISIANA, Mo., Oct. 11.—R. R. Brewster, Republican nominee for United States Senator, speaking yesterday afternoon to about 150 persons in Louisiana, the home of Ed Glenn, manager of Senator Reed's primary campaign, attacked Reed on the prohibition question and accused him of hypocrisy and insincerity in his campaign.

"There should be an end of hypocricy and insincerity in politics,"

AND WHEN IT IS ALL OVER, THEY'LL KNOW WHY BULGARIA GOT INTO WAR

By the Associated Press.

SOFIA, Bulgaria, Sept. 15.

THE trial of the members of the Radislavor Cabinet which brought Bulgaria into the war on the side of Germany, will soon enter its second year. Two hundred and fifty witnesses gave testimony during the first six months. Then it took one month to read the indictment. The Crown Prosecutor spoke for 17 days, and then D. Tonchef, former Minister of Finance, and one of the accused, spoke for 20 days to explain his part, and has not yet completed his introduction. Ten more of the accused Cabinet Ministers and about 20 barristers are yet to speak.

The defendants already have been three years in prison, where they have been preparing their speeches and other features of their defense. The Judges are mostly peasants and some of them have remarked that if they listen another year or two they will be able to pass their first examination to the bar without attending the university.

JAPAN TO RETURN KIAO CHOW TO CHINA ON DEC. 2

Troops Will Be Withdrawn, Authority Will Be Turned Over, and Chinese Flag Will Be Hoisted.

ENDS CONTROVERSY BEGUN 24 YEARS AGO

Action Based on Treaty Signed in Washington; China to Pay Japan for Actual Investments.

By the Associated Press.

TSING TAO, Shantung, Oct. 11.—Japan has decided to restore the leasehold of Kiao Chow to China Dec. 2. On that date Japanese troops will withdraw, civil and military authority in the Kiao Chow district will be handed over to China and the Chinese flag will be hoisted for the first time since Germany acquired the territory in 1898.

The fixing of the definite date for the restoration of Kiao Chow was announced today by the Japanese members of the Shantung commission which was appointed to work out the details of the evacuation as provided in the treaty between Japan and China, signed at Washington.

This will end the international controversy which began when Germany established a naval base 24 years ago, and which later figured in the diplomatic affairs of Paris and Washington.

China's bankruptcy will not be permitted to interfere with the restoration program.

The amounts which China must pay for Japanese investments in the district will be only what Japan paid to Germany for private German investments and what Japan actually has invested since 1914, it was announced.

RUSSIA CLAIMS RIGHT TO SEAT AT NEAR EAST PARLEY

"We Are a World Power and Insist on Voice in Questions Where We Have Interests," Tchitcherin Says.

CALLS BLOCKADE OF STRAITS UNJUST

Soviet Foreign Minister States Resumption of Relations With U. S. Has Been Blocked by America.

By the Associated Press.

MOSCOW, Oct. 11.—Russia as a world Power must be reckoned with in the consideration of all matters bearing upon her interests, such as the freedom of commercial navigation through the Dardanelles, and therefore any proposition to leave the soviets without representation in the first conference proposed by the allies for settlement of the Near Eastern question is altogether unsatisfactory to the Moscow Government.

In expressing this view M. Tchitcherin, soviet Foreign Minister, said: "We are not making threats and are not rattling the sword, but we do insist upon proper consideration in all questions relating to the Near-East, particularly the commercial freedom of the straits.

"Russian Interest Involved."

"Questions in which we have tremendous interests will naturally be discussed at the first conference, and the Russian Government feels it should be invited to that as well as to the one to be held later.

"Russia today has recovered and is a word power to be reckoned with. We believe that the action of the allies in blockading the straits, thereby cutting off trade from our Southern ports, while we are striving to re-establish our economics by our own means, despite the failure of the Genoa and Hague conferences to help, is very unjust and we will act accordingly."

With reference to the United States, M. Tchitcherin said there were several obstacles preventing resumption of friendly relations with Russia.

View of America's Stand.

"Secretary Hughes," he said, "has taken a stand which has blocked the possibility of the United States and Russia coming into closer relationship, for the time being at least. The United States seems to look upon Russia as a vacuum, so far as trade is concerned, and somehow the Americans still regard us as bandits and robbers, and apparently will for some time before they change their views, despite our willingness to meet the United States half way in any impartial proposals.

"The suggestion to send an official commission of inquiry to delve in our affairs is a closed incident, according to the American Government's declaration. America apparently has not agreed with us that it was only fair that we be allowed to send a committee to the United States to look into trade affairs and conditions generally, whereby Russia ultimately might be able to learn and profit by the American methods of doing things commercial.

"We were also ready unconditionally to allow private American business men to enter Russia for preparing or discussing business."

FORMER GERMAN CROWN PRINCE IS LOSING ILLUSIONS

Interviewer Says Exile Has Made Him Philosophical; Regrets He Can't Help Reunite Germany.

WOULD LIKE TO BE HOME AND TO VOTE

By the Associated Press.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 11.—Regret that he cannot go back to Germany to aid in reuniting his country is the principal emotion of the Crown Prince in exile, at Wieringen, Holland, according to an authorized interview with him printed today in the Baltimore Sun. The cabled interview, which is copyrighted by that paper, was given to Henry L. Mencken, the critic and essayist, who has been in Central Europe for several months.

Mencken comments on the dreariness of the island, which is entirely cut off from the mainland for weeks during the winter. His narrative proceeds:

"But this deadly isolation has failed to make any noticeable impression on the spirit or frame of the Prince. There are touches of gray in his sandy hair, but he still is erect as a drill sergeant, and as quick in speech and movement. Very tall, slim and lithe, and now smooth shaven, he looks much like a big boy.

"But certainly there is nothing immature about his ideas. Among all the Germans I have talked to during the past six weeks, ranging from high officials to newspaper editors and from university professors to business men, I can recall none whose views of past and present events contain less of illusion. He discusses the war objectively and with great shrewdness and accepts his present position uncomplainingly. It is uncomfortable, but so is every other German position.

Facing Stupendous Tasks.

"'Germany,' he said, 'faces stupendous tasks and almost intolerable burdens and it is naturally hard for any German to have to stand by without taking a hand. Isincerely wish I could be more actively employed, but certainly have no desire to complicate the present situation by raising factional questions. It would be absurd, of course, to say dynastic considerations do not interest me, but they assuredly take second place in my thoughts. In such days as these I am, first of all, a German citizen and soldier. As such my duty is precisely that of every other good German—to subordinate personal fortunes and even personal opinions to the common good. What we need today above all is national unity. A thoroughly united Germany would be unbreakable.'

"I asked the Prince if he would vote, supposing himself at home.

"'Certainly,' he answered, 'my wife always votes. Why shouldn't I?'

"Watchful Maj. Mueldner evidently feared I would ask him how he would vote, but the Prince himself saved the situation.

"'I refuse to answer,' he said, with a smile. 'The ballot is secret by law and I always try to obey the laws.'

Prince Is Philosophical.

"The Prince takes a philosophical view of the extravagant tales about him circulated in America during the war. For example, the stories of wholesale burglaries in France. He collects such tales with humorous interest and was apparently delighted with several I contributed from the archives of the Creel Press Bureau.

"'Such nonsensical libels,' he said, 'do not annoy me half as much as their authors probably think. Abuse of that sort goes with the trade I was born to. If Germany had won a sweeping victory, I'd have got as Crown Prince far more than my fair share of the glory and applause. In defeat I receive perhaps rather more than a fair share of the blame and execration both at home and abroad, but such are the fortunes of war for commanding officers. I doubt that any sane American seriously believes today I was guilty of the fantastic crimes laid to me during the war. That madness must necessarily pass. Meanwhile, it gives me no concern.'

On the European Situation.

"Like most Germans, the Prince believes the European situation will never be genuinely removed until the United States takes a hand in it. 'It rather surprises me,' he said, 'that the United States as a nation shows little concern about the immediate future here. Things go steadily from bad to worse.

"'Europe simply cannot buy the surplus of the natural products of the Western Hemisphere. Thus, one-half of the civilized world sees its crops rotting in field and warehouses and the other half faces starvation. The underlying cause of all this disorganization and distress is the Versailles treaty. It was made in anger and in total disregard of the most elementary economic laws and common sense. Today the fact that it is utterly unworkable is obvious to everyone. It is doing almost as much damage in France, in fact, as to Germany, and scarcely less to the other allies and the neutrals. The speech of Reginald McKenna in New York last week ought to be accepted by the whole world as a plain warning. McKenna knows the situation thoroughly and he told the simple truth.

"'The entrance of the United States into the war threw the balance toward the allies and was largely responsible for their victory. But the United States opposed the treaty before it was signed and has never ratified it since. I am in hopes that the view of it thus indicated will win over those who still believe it can be executed. Failing in that hope, I see no way out save through a catastrophe. That catastrophe, remember, is not remote, it lies directly around the corner.'

"The Prince told me he was very eager to see the United States, but that, he said, must wait for better times. This is no day for Germans to be traveling. There is too much work to do at home, and too little money."

French Diplomat Justifies Turk Action in Seeking Restoration of Lands

Franklin-Bouillon, in Interview With Clare Sheridan, Declares Kemal's Claims Are Based on Principles America Fought For.

By CLARE SHERIDAN,

(Copyright, 1922, by the Press and Pulitzer Publishing Cos., the New York World and the Post-Dispatch.)

MUDANIA, Oct. 11.—The British at Constantinople had declared the Mudania conference a military one and had forbidden the presence of journalists. On Friday, the fourth day of the conference, they revoked this decision and gave us permission to attend in the belief that there was no possibility that the journalists would be able to find transportation.

Five correspondents, however, got together and chartered a small tugboat. We were an American, a Britisher, an Austrian, a Hungarian and a Turk, all working for American papers.

The six-hour trip across the Sea of Marmora was like a dream. The sunset behind Europe colored the calm sea like shot silk. The brightest moon rose over Asia and illuminated the way like day.

In the small hours we beheld the lights of warships and the little town, the existence of which was unknown to the world a week ago and which today holds the fate of world peace. It was too late to go ashore and we got no sleep on the hard deck, where we shivered in the dawn and were devoured by mosquitoes.

At 7:30 in the morning the French, British and Italian representatives landed at our pier and as we slept in our clothes we were ready to follow them through the little cobblestoned village of bungalow houses draped with Turkish flags and laurels to the town hall, where the conference was being held.

On a veranda overhanging the sea, the Turks, allied officers and journalists discussed the situation in groups or hurriedly wrote telegraphic messages which it was almost impossible to dispatch.

No Greeks at Conference.

There are no Greeks at the conference. They are living on board a disreputable-looking old liner which flies no flag and is half-hidden and wholly protected behind the British flagship. They discreetly prefer not to land.

The French and Turks are running this show, for the British control does not extend here. Upstairs in a sunny room with its three sides of windows overlooking the bay, M. Franklin-Bouillon has his workroom. He has chosen not to participate in the disputes of the conference and so the conference circles round his room.

He is tired and worn out by the responsibility of the last few days. For 24 hours the situation hung on by a thread. But for the fact that Lord Curzon was known to have arrived in Paris and to be conferring with Poincare, the Turks would never have consented to delay. At the quickest it takes nearly three days for a wireless message and reply to reach Mudania from Paris.

The conference was called together too hastily, before the Governments had time to exchange opinions and to agree upon matters of policy. The delays, therefore, are inevitable, but cannot be prolonged. The resources of Mudania bear the strain; it is too small a place for such big business.

Turks Showing Unusual Patience.

Meanwhile the Turkish Government is giving an example of great moderation and patience unusual in a victor.

My gratitude is due to the French Admiral, Dumesnil, whose friendship for America prompted him to take pity on my homelessness and extend the hospitality of his flagship. Yesterday evening on the moonlit deck of the cruiser M. Franklin-Bouillon talked to me eloquently of the spirit and achievements of these people so long considered mere pawns on the chessboard of European policy.

"Alone they have defended themselves; out of nothing they have built something," he said. "They have created arms and men with the spirit of possibilities. They have an animated nationalistic soul, which is undefeatable. Can one doubt they are a people with a future?

"But who understands them? How many people have ever been to Angora? The pity is that people remember only the old Turkey of Abdul Hamid and the massacres, for which every man has hatred and contempt.

"I myself have fought for the Armenian cause when they were persecuted and fought the old Turkish regime with all my energy. But people ignore the new Turkey born out of the war. The Turks themselves admit their faults in the past. Every man in Angora will tell you, from Mustapha Kemal down to the merest cobbler, that Turkey made the fault, even committed the crime, of taking sides with Germany.

People Not Responsible.

"But it was not the people who did this, it was the clique around the Sultan in the pay of Germany. But the mistakes of allied diplomacy did more than anything to draw Turkey in on the wrong side.

"But if Turkey made a huge blunder they have paid for it. They have lost 2,000,000 men in the war and have renounced all non-Turkish provinces from Arabia to Mesopotamia and Syria. Now they have concentrated in the homelands.

"The Turks ask nothing save that the lands in which they represent an enormous majority be left to them by the European Powers. This is their whole policy. In fact, they mean to stand and die by the very principles that Europe, and more particularly America, proclaimed sacred—the people's right to self-determination.

"There is not in the whole of the Turkish claims a single article that can be attacked from that standpoint. This is a new Turkey which managed to save the country from ruin, partition. The crisis today was entirely created by false politics and false pride.

"France has no desire to break with England. France is still a most loyal ally and wants only to prevent England from adopting a disastrous course. Also, France wants to protect the Turkish people, whose cause is just.

"It is well to remember that, in spite of the campaign started in English and American papers which speak of massacres by the Turk," said M. Franklin-Bouillon.

In reply to my question, "Why does France seek to help Turkey?" he said:

"Out of love of justice. France has no other motive. France asks nothing, expects nothing, desires nothing. She has the same economic interest in the country as England and Italy, but nothing more." And then he laughed because of my expression of incredulity and disbelief of this national and individual disinterestedness.

M. Franklin-Bouillon looks like a large edition of H. G. Wells, with more forcefulness. He is half English and spoke that language before French. He is a man with a passion for music and beauty, and would rather have been a composer than a politician, but said, "I think I may regard the politics I am doing today as a kind of harmony."

"A Horror of Power."

He added, "I love to be able to direct but have a horror of power."

M. Franklin-Bouillon has given up years which should have been devoted exclusively to French political life for the cause of Eastern people because they appeal to him. Fifteen days ago the war stopped on account of a simple telegram from him to Mustapha Kemal, which begged the latter for the sake of their old friendship and the memory of fateful days past, "to cease all military movements and reply to no diplomatic note at least until you have seen me. Signed, Your Friend. Frnaklin-Bouillon."

A reply came back in about these words: "I wait for your arrival. Come at once. Your Friend, Kemal."

These cables were submitted to the Paris conference by Lord Curzon on September 23, and after that it was agreed that M. Franklin-Bouillon should leave for the East.

Since then on a friend's recommendation the war has held in suspension. So simply are things arranged when no diplomatic ceremonies preclude and two people trust each other.

This morning when Ismet Pasha, Generalissimo of the Kemalist armies, was asked by a group of international journalists to make clear the part M. Franklin-Bouillon has played in recent events, he said:

"Franklin-Bouillon has done what the whole world could not succeed in doing. He stopped for a fortnight our armies."

The world today contains several great militarists some theorists and one or two great politicians, but there are not many practical peacemakers.

CABINET MEMBERS WILL TAKE STUMP FOR FALL ELECTION

Extensive Trips to Ask for the Return of Republican Senate and House Are in Prospect.

WALLACE TO SPEAK IN ST. LOUIS, OCT. 23

Harding, However, Friends Say, Is Not Likely to Make Any Partisan Speeches During Campaign.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—Although President Harding is making no plans to take a personal part in the political campaign, virtually every member of his Cabinet, according to statements made here, will take the stump between now and election day to ask for the return of a Republican Senate and House.

Extensive trips are in prospect. The effort, it appears, however, will center in the East, New England and the Middle West, but some speeches will be made in other parts of the nation, according to present plans.

The President's friends say he is not likely to make any partisan speeches or issue any statements asking for election of Republicans.

The Cabinet, however, with the single exception of Secretary Mellon, is preparing to do its share through speechmaking in the fight for Republican victory in November. Few of the department heads have made fixed speaking engagements, but all have arranged to be away from Washington or in a position to assist the regular array of party spellbinders in late October and early November. Some dates and tours have been arranged tentatively and will be announced soon, it was stated.

Hughes to Speak at Boston.

The only definite speaking date made so far by Secretary Hughes is at Boston for Oct. 30. In addition to a full list of candidates for seats in the House, Senator Lodge, Republican floor leader and chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, is a candidate for re-election.

Hughes probably will visit New York and New Jersey shortly after his Boston speech.

Secretary Weeks will precede Hughes in Massachusetts, having accepted an invitation to speak in Boston, Oct. 24.

It is expected he will participate in the New Jersey and Delaware campaigns, with the possibility of two or three speeches in other Eastern states.

Daugherty to Visit Chicago.

Attorney-General Daugherty definitely has scheduled only two platform appearances during the campaign, at Chicago, Oct. 20, and at Canton, O., Oct. 21. It is said, however, that undoubtedly he will make other speeches, with the probability of stumping trips in Ohio and Michigan.

No fixed dates have been announced for Secretary Denby, but he is scheduled to leave Washington today or tomorrow for Detroit, to attend the Pulitzer airplane races and a brief participation in the campaign in his home State is expected.

Denby plans also to make a tour of inspection of the Boston and Portsmouth navy yards, in about two weeks. This trip, it is said, probably will include several campaign speeches, but Denby has definitely accepted no invitations.

The state of Secretary Hoover's health requires that his contemplated tour be shortened, it was announced. His physician has ordered that he limit his campaign tour to the Middle West.

Wallace at St. Louis Oct. 23.

Trips into the West are contemplated for Secretaries Davis and Wallace, the former having accepted engagements to go to the Pacific Coast. His tour, it was stated, probably will include all three of the West coast states.

The Agriculture Department head will make a stumping trip at the request of the Republican Congressional Committee, which will include speeches at St. Louis Oct. 23. Between Oct. 24 and 27 Secretary Wallace will be in Kansas and Nebraska.

Secretary Fall, who already has left Washington for his home in New Mexico, will participate in the campaign only to a limited extent in the intermountain district. He expects to be absent until after election.

No schedule has been outlined for Postmaster-General Work, although it is said he probably will make several speeches.

Chinese Protest Against Army.

By the Associated Press.

PEKING, Oct. 11.—Public demonstrations demanding the disbanding of China's huge army attended the celebration yesterday of the eleventh anniversary of the birth of the Chinese republic. Thousands of persons, led by students, paraded, displaying placards which ascribed China's present difficulties to soldiers who are charged with sapping the country's wealth and preventing the establishment of a constitutional government.

Outlawing the Children.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I'M again calling to your attention something which I have written you about several times in the last few years, as I happen to be one of the unfortunate human beings who do not own a home, but am fortunate enough to be the mother of one of the finest little girls on earth. For this good fortune, I am refused a place to live in. As I stated, I have had this experience in dozens of places, but thought conditions as such had changed, but yesterday morning I answered an advertisement for a flat to rent, on Washington, which is across the street from the school my child attends, and was delighted to be able to get something to keep her in that school, but the woman on seeing the child asked if it were mine, and then absolutely refused to let me see the flat. I had not noticed that the ad read, "Adults Only," or I would have been prepared for this insult.

I have been to see our Hon. Mayor Kiel about these conditions, but he replied he could do nothing. It seems to me, dear editor, that it is up to you to do something for these people who are fortunate in one respect to have children, and unfortunate not to be able to give them a decent home. I know some children are destructive, but property can be repaired, but when they put a ban on a harmless little girl of 6 years of age, I think it is time something should be done by the Government for these people.

There is a law against birth control and it is coming to the time when it will have to be practiced by everyone, as there is no place in St. Louis for children. I have traveled from ocean to coast, but found conditions of this kind nowhere as bad as in sleepy St. Louis, and I was born and raised here. You can refuse to insert an ad which reads "Adults only," as well as they can refuse to rent to a person with children. I am for your paper all the time; it is up to you to bring this condition to an end.

Who's to Stop Them?

Suggestions for Invalids.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

IN your issue of Sept. 30 "Alone" makes good use of a weapon more powerful than the sword, namely his pen. Several months ago various newspapers published accounts of a successful business man who was not only a cripple, but had spent nearly his entire lifetime flat on his back in bed. About the same time the American Magazine gave an account of this case and showed photographs, etc. The man had gradually worked up a magazine subscription agency with the aid of a small typewriter.

There must be thousands of cripples all over the country who would be pleased to learn of some "postal" circulating library system which would deliver books, etc., to them through the U. S. mails for a small fee. "Alone" states that there is no carrier from the Public Library. Cannot some reader suggest a means of obtaining a list of wheel-chair prisoners all over the land and of working up an exchange of books and periodicals? This list could be kept up to date as new books were added by subscribers, and a small fee charged for the service.

Think of the poor invalid in some small town or in the mountains who could perhaps "trade in" a book for one chosen from such a list and benefit from reading-matter obtainable only in the larger cities. "Alone could probably obtain a used multigraph or other copying machine from some of the typewriter repair dealers and pay monthly, thus providing for other light work.

Open Letter to the Bonus Commission.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

BONUS COMMISSION, hear me! I desire you to return all of my papers sent you to prove I was a resident of Missouri from April, 1916, to April, 1917. And in view of the fact that you have my affidavit and proof of residence during that period, and that I could in no other state claim bonus, you then disallow my claim, say I was not a resident and make me out a liar. I hold that I have the right to have a similar opinion of you.

If I had not gone to considerable trouble and spent a lot of time to get full facts, and entertained fond hopes of receiving a few paltry dollars called bonus, and believed firmly in the honor of this State, I would not have been disappointed. Missouri has shown her respect and honor for one soldier disgustingly.

She may honor her dead fittingly, but she should not forget those that live. I have been a citizen and a voter in this State, but now I think I shall move to another, as I don't like to see the people's money all paid out in high salaries when it was intended for the ex-soldiers.

THE COAL COMMISSION.

The appointment by President Harding of the members of the commission authorized by Congress to investigate and report on the coal industry is the most hopeful step that has been taken for the solution of the problems growing out of mining wages, prices and conditions.

The commission selected by the President is representative in character. Representatives of operators and miners are not on the commission, presumably to avoid any bias in the conduct and findings of the commission, but both sides will have opportunity to present their views in the hearings which will be held by the commission.

The scope of the commission's work includes all fields and phases of coal mining—ownership of mines, prices, organizations and individuals connected with the industry, labor conditions, standards and methods, wages and wage contracts, waste and irregularities of production and causes of labor disturbances.

The time for the investigation is short. Congress fixed Jan. 15 as the date for the end of investigation and the submission of the report. In that time, however, if the commission proceeds energetically, a vast amount of information may be gathered and digested. Presumably, if the work is not wholly completed an extension will be granted. But the investigation should be pressed to a conclusion in time for the renewal of contracts and mining activities in the spring.

The bitter experience of the past year has proved the necessity of a thorough reorganization of the coal industry on an efficient and equitable basis which will assure an adequate supply of coal at a reasonable price. This end can be accomplished only by assuring satisfactory, sanitary and safe conditions of labor and living wages for the miners. As a whole the men in charge of the industry have failed to meet the required conditions and a knowledge of the reasons for their failure and of actual conditions prevailing in the industry is necessary to progress. Not only will full information of conditions and causes of disturbance enable Congress to legislate intelligently, but the public will be able to form sound judgments when disputes arise.

The work of the commission, however, will only be a step in the direction of solving the fuel-coal problem. When waste in methods of production and distribution has been eliminated there will still be the question of the greater waste in the use of raw coal for fuel to be solved. There is unmeasured waste in the consumption of raw coal. By-products of enormous value go up in smoke. The chimneys of factories belch out millions in gas, oil, chemicals, the conservation of which would add vastly to the profit and value of coal and would go far to solve the wage and price problems. It would reduce the price of fuel and abolish smoke, which in itself is a large factor of economic waste. Wealth and health would be conserved by the abolition of smoke.

We are wantonly squandering our rich coal resources, and the coal industry will not be conducted on the right basis until all the valuable elements of coal are utilized and smoke is banished from industrial centers.

MOSCOW TODAY.

Things are better in Russia than they were in the first fury of the commune. The picture of Moscow, as drawn by a staff correspondent of the Post-Dispatch, is melancholy enough, to be sure, but the iron order of brutal ugliness is relaxing. It is no longer treason for a woman to wear a hat, and, accordingly, hats that were buried in fear and trembling, but in the hope of a happier day, have been resurrected and are now adorning feminine heads. Men, too, are experiencing a new freedom. That livery of bourgeoisie, of capitalism, of class distinction—the dinner jacket—is again permitted.

Those hats of Moscow's smart set are quaint, curious, prehistoric, perhaps, in the eyes of the vogue that obtains in capitalistic centers. And the evening clothes of the men are wrinkled relics of former glory. But the fact that this renaissance of finery no longer arouses the despotic wrath of Russia's rulers is a pleasing augury.

The hate of bolshevism's gods for creature comforts and graces seems to be waxing dull as the experiment unfolds. There have been other concessions, also, to human nature and to common sense. As a matter of fact, when Lenine yielded to the peasants on the question of ownership of the land he repudiated his communal philosophy and cut the heart out of his formula. But he saved his dynasty and he maintains his dynasty now by another hateful, age-old, monarchical device, namely, the army.

So, in the manners of Moscow may be read the evolution from chaos to civilization. Russia is going ahead by going back to the customs and usages of ordered society.

THE SEDALIA RESOLUTIONS.

Senator Reed is fortunate, we believe, in the massed opposition which the prohibition extremists are trying to effect. The resolutions adopted at Sedalia, where the "Eighteenth Amendment Leagues" were organized, purport to be the sentiment of the "temperance women of Missouri." The unhappy truth is that the language is intemperate, ludicrously unjust in some respects, whose authors, in the frenzy of composition, have unfairly assailed and insulted a large element of our citizenship.

As a whole there is no racial group in America more temperate and thrifty than are our citizens of German descent. To accuse such citizens of conspiring to debauch our homes by bringing back the breweries reveals fanaticism at its untruthful, uncharitable and un-Christian worst.

In this feverish indictment the German-Americans are specifically accused in the name of the German-American Alliance, but all citizens, whatever their ancestry, who do not subscribe to the most rigorous prohibition, are branded "traitors to the organic law of the land." However upright their lives, the fact that they question the wisdom, or practicability, or justice of the regulation of their personal habits and morals by Government condemns them as unclean. Such bigotry were laughable were it not so tragic.

There are many reasons why the thoughtful men and women of Missouri must find it difficult, if not impossible to support Mr. Reed. But to disqualify him because he voted against the eighteenth amendment, to shelve every other question as unworthy of mention and make prohibition the sole issue of the campaign emphasizes the obsession that prohibition has become to its unreasoning adherents.

The Sedalia resolutions, in our opinion, will occasion a serious reaction. Prohibitionists may drape themselves in the garments of Christianity and proclaim themselves the only genuine, trade-marked Americans, but their doctrine is neither Christian nor American; it is a species of opinionated tyranny utterly at variance with the teachings of Christianity's founder and repellant to American fundamentals.

THE BEVERIDGE-BREWSTER ALIBI.

"I am not familiar with the schedules of the new tariff law," said Mr. Brewster in his speech at Mexico, "but Albert J. Beveridge of Indiana, who represents the progressive elements of the Republican party, said it is a good tariff law."

Mr. Brewster, evidently, is not familiar with what Mr. Beveridge said. Like Mr. Brewster, Mr. Beveridge admitted that he had not studied the new tariff law, but several Senators of one-time progressive inclinations, in whose judgment he professed confidence, had voted for it and said it was a good law, and Mr. Beveridge was satisfied to take their word for it.

By his discussion of the tariff law Mr. Brewster has merely succeeded in hyphenating the Beveridge alibi into the Beveridge-Brewster alibi.

THE JUDAS KISS.

For the sake of romance and the welfare of the race generally we hope that the Gloucester young woman who made away with her young man by giving him poisoned kisses, will have no imitators. Courtship, already a formidable undertaking for most young men, will disappear utterly if the danger of assassination is added to the hazards. The suspension of marriage and the extinction of the species would follow naturally and logically.

Of course, it is an easy death, but what we need to discover is not how to expire pleasantly, but how to exist at all under the Fordney-McCumber tariff. The pessimists will say that it would be a good thing for the race if it did become extinct, but, again, careless driving and jay-walking have provided a sure and speedy method of extermination. What we want now is a way of enjoying the intervening period.

Two ways were left us, but the Antisaloon League has taken one of those, so that romance is practically the sole surviving comfort, and the pursuit of happiness has been confined chiefly to the young. That, too, will vanish if the girls are going to make a practice of putting cyanide in their lipsticks. Kisses were dangerous enough, without poisoning them.

MR. ANTWINE'S OPINION.

"THANKS to the Kaiser, we understand much better than we did how it is with Kings," Mr. Antwine said.

"When the Kaiser says: 'The Emperor has control over the foreign policy only in so far as the Chancellor grants it to him,' he lets in a flood of light upon monarchical government. He is speaking here of the German Emperor, and his purpose is to prove that as Emperor he could not have caused the war; but in so doing he lifts the curtain upon all monarchy and reveals a condition as old as the Arabian nights.

"The relation of the monarch to his Chancellor is precisely that of the housewife to her maid. The Kaiser tells only a story which, changing names, any housewife can tell. When his Chancellor tyrannized over him, he was helpless. Why didn't he discharge the man and get someone else? For exactly the reason the housewife does not discharge her cook. The Kaiser tells us all about it. Chancellors are hard to get. He says there are never at any time more than a few men in Germany capable of filling so difficult a place, a difficulty with which every housewife is more than familiar.

"The Kaiser was never that autocrat we thought him to be. No monarch is. Imagine King George talking back to Lloyd George! Recall Venizelos and Constantine! Does Mr. Harding, do you think, rule Mr. Hughes, or is he ruled by him?

"The Chancellor always had the Kaiser in the hole on some score. The last one left him in a hole in Holland. So it is with the housewife, as it is with all Kings whatsoever now and hereafter. Chancellors and their prototypes rule the world. The Kaiser admits what no other King has ever admitted. If he fired his Chancellor and got a new one he had to prevail upon someone to take the place. Thus he surrendered control of the empire, which the new Chancellor was always quick to grasp. This is a perfect parallel to what happens in changing cooks. It puts monarchy upon the same plane as housekeeping, a lowly and menial thing far removed from the romance and glamour with which in our ingenuousness we have made courts seem to be what they are not.

"God help Kings!" Mr. Antwine exclaimed.

Jack Blanton: By the way, have you paused to reflect on the heroism of Great Britain in the Near East crisis? Deserted by all her former allies, confronted with a militant and powerful foe, threatened with uprisings among the 70,000,000 Mohammedans within her empire, assured of the secret or open hostility of nearly all of continental Europe and with no moral support from this side of the Atlantic, she seizes her gun and, single-handed, stands forth as Christendom's champion against the bloodthirsty Turk. The fact that she has selfish interests to serve does not weaken her heroism in the least. What if she had consulted nothing but the cost, as all the other nations did, and had fled before the Turk, as all the others did, in order to avoid any sacrifice of money or blood?

THREE WEDDINGS ON CALENDAR FOR TODAY

Among Them Will Be That of Miss Katharine McNulty and George B. Fisher.

WEDDINGS in almost unending procession crowd the social calendar until October, ordinarily the month for debutantes, appears as the favorite time for orange blossoms.

Today three romances will culminate at the altar. Miss Katharine McNulty will become the bride at 8:30 o'clock of George Bernays Fisher. The ceremony will be performed at the home of the bride's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. George H. Small, 4236 Westminster place, with whom she has made her home, and the guests will remain for an informal reception.

Miss Katharine Burley will attend the bride as maid of honor, and her fiance, Linn Culbertson, will serve Mr. Fisher as best man. Miss Rachel Metcalfe of Omaha, Neb., will be bridesmaid and Ralph Bryan of Dallas, Tex., will be groomsman.

The bridal gown is of white kitten's ear crepe, draped at the skirt to display an underslip of duchesse and rose point lace. Pearls define the rounded neck line and the wrists of the long tight tulle sleeves. The crepe court train is lined with flesh-colored georgette and weighted with orange blossoms. A coronet of rose point lace will hold in place the tulle bridal veil, and the bouquet will be of roses and lilies of the valley.

Mr. Fisher and his bride will reside at 5652 Cates avenue, following a honeymoon trip.

The bride was educated at Mary Institute and Washington University. She is a member of Kappa Alpha Theta. Mr. Fisher is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Fisher, 5559 Bartmer avenue. He is an alumnus of Cornell University, and during the war he served overseas with the army.

THE wedding of Miss Virginia Elizabeth Ryan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Horton C. Ryan of Webster Groves, and Charles Fuller Phillips of Thomasville, N. C., will be solemnized at 8 o'clock this evening at the Emanuel Episcopal Church of Webster, the Rev. J. Courtney Jones officiating. A reception will follow at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ryan, 117 Helfenstein road. The decorations are to be cosmos and ferns.

The bride will be gowned in white satin, with draperies of Chantilly lace, which was worn by her grandmother. There will be a puffing of the lace at each hip, defined by a cord encircling the waistline. The four-yard court train, lined with flesh colored georgette, will be veiled in bridal tulle, fastened to her hair by a coronet of rose point lace which Mrs. James Royce Bach of Detroit, and aunt of the bride, brought from Antwerp. Edgings of the same lace will be used to weight the end of the veil. She will wear a diamond platinum bar pin presented to her by Mrs. Bach as wedding gift. Her flowers will be roses and valley lilies. The bride attendants will be gowned in taffeta, in three different colors.

Miss Pauline Fuller Phillips, of Thomasville, N. C., sister of the bridegroom, will wear lavendar, made with a full corded skirt and adorned with silver lace medallions.

The bridesmaids will be Misses Adele Stine, Ruth Ellis, Thelma Whaley, Florence Blood and Marian Whiteman. Their frocks are made like Miss Phillips', Misses Whaley and Ellis in pink and Misses Whiteman and Blood in gold. They will wear bridesmaids' veils of tulle, which, with the chrysanthemums they will carry, will match their gowns. Margaret Sample, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Sample of Webster, the flower girl, will wear white lace over white silk with lacy pantalettes below her frock. She will carry an old-fashioned bouquet of roses. Walter Rapp of Thomasville will be best man, and Page Aydlette Andrew Deason, David Kopplin, and Hart Fisher will be groomsmen.

The bride attended Washington University. Mr. Phillips is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Charles H. Phillips of Thomasville, where he will take his bride to reside. He is a graduate of the University of North Carolina. Dr. and Mrs. Phillips will give a reception for them Oct. 20.

ANOTHER wedding of this evening is that of Miss Roberta Niederlander, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. R. Niederlander of 9 Parkland place, and William R. Swain of Kansas City, Mo., son of Mrs. L. E. Swain. The Rev. Dr. John S. Bunting of the Church of the Ascension will perform the ceremony at 8:30 o'clock before the fireplace in the Niederlander home, lighted by cathedral tapers and decorated in the russet shades of chrysanthemums and Ophelia roses. Southern smilax will be used in abundance.

The wedding gown is of satin crepe, with a cascade of rosepoint lace. Rosepoint lace, cascaded down the right side of the skirt, will form the only trimming save for a shawl of the lace a family heirloom, which will be caught to the shoulders to form the train. The left side of the gown will be draped to a cascade of the satin, ending in short fish-tail train. A coronet of silver will hold the tulle veil and she will carry roses and lilies of the valley.

Mrs. William Tate of Cleveland, O., will be matron of honor. She will wear fuschia crepe satin draped and caught with a garniture of feathers. There will be a short side train. Miss Virginia Patterson, maid of honor, will be similarly gowned in yellow crepe satin. Instead of flowers, they will carry feather fans to match their gowns, the gift of the bridegroom.

SHE WILL BE ONE OF TODAY'S BRIDES

MISS VIRGINA ELIZABETH RYAN

Social Items

Society in St. Louis will be interested in the debut in Detroit, Mich., last Friday of Miss Dorothy Celimene Palms, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Louis Palms of Detroit, and granddaughter of Julius S. Walsh Sr. Miss Palms was formally introduced at a ball given by her parents at the Detroit Country Club. There were 250 guests. The debutante was gowned in white crepe romaine, heavily beaded in silver and crystal. Miss Isabelle de Mun Palms, a sister of the debutante, who is well known in St. Louis and has visited her grandfather on several occasions, was gowned in pale green crepe, appliqued with silver, and with a silver cloth girdle.

In the receiving line were Miss Dorothy Simmons, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward H. Simmons of St. Louis County, who is the guest of Miss Eleanor Jewett, another bud in Detroit society. she wore cerise crepe trimmed with gold brocade, made with the prevailing long full skirt. Miss Simmons has many friends in Detroit, having attended the Westover School in Connecticut with many of the debutantes of that city.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wiggins of 17 Portland place, will be hosts at a dinner party Friday evening at the Bogey Club.

Mrs. J. Howard Holmes of Forsythe boulevard will give a debutante luncheon today, honoring Miss Elizabeth Boeckeler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry A. Boeckeler. There will be 30 guests, among which will be Misses Alice Scott, Marceline Reyburn, Elizabeth Carter, Elizabeth Robert, Alice Clark, Christine Vieths, Margaret Turner, Rebecca Chase, Louise Woodruff, Elizabeth Terry, Eleanor Simmons, Irene Goddard and Mary Denman Clark.

Miss Elizabeth Robert, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Robert, will be the honor guest at a buffet supper to be given Oct. 31 by Miss Mary Mitchell, 3703 West Pine boulevard. The guests will be debutantes and their escorts. Later in the season, Miss Demaris Macbeth, who makes her home with Miss Mitchell, will give a similar affair for her own friends.

Miss Elizabeth Grayson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Grayson Jr. of 4357 McPherson avenue, returned Saturday from the East. Miss Grayson spent the summer in White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., with her grandfather, Judge Henry S. Priest, and Mrs. Priest, and later visited in Boston and New York. Judge and Mrs. Priest are still in White Sulphur.

THE wedding of Miss Katrine Dallmeyer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Dallmeyer of Jefferson City, and Robert W. Otto, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Otto of Washington, Mo., will take place at 8 o'cloc ktomorrow evening at the Methodist Episcopal Church in Jefferson City, the Rev. Dr. James E. McDonald officiating. The altar where the ceremony will be performed will be decorated with baskets of pink chrysanthemums and cathedral candelabras. A reception will follow at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Dallmeyer.

The bride is a graduate of Lennox Hall in St. Louis and of Vassar College. She has frequently been the guest here of Miss Lucy Butler and Miss Dorothy Claggett.

Mr. Otto is a graduate of the Northwestern University in Chicago and is Assistant Attorney-General of the State of Missouri. He is a member of the Jefferson City Country Club.

Miss Myrene Houchin of Jefferson City will be maid of honor and Mrs. John Guy Gibson of Jefferson City will be matron of honor The bridesmaids will be Misses Mary Church, Elizabeth Church and Helen Clark of Jefferson City, Marie Hall of Springfield, Ill., Alma Cotton of Columbia, Mo., and Isabel Grimes of Pittsburg, Pa.

Edmund Otto of Washington, Mo., brother of the bridegroom, will be best man. The groomsmen will be Attorney-General Jesse W. Barrett of Jefferson City, Carl Otto, brother of the bridegroom, St. Louis; Raymond Kahmann, St. Louis; Russell J. Tibbe, Washington, Mo.; Victor Essen and Robert Ewing Dallmeyer, brother of the bride, Jefferson City. The ushers will be William Allen, E. E. Towles, Walter Sloat and Stratton Shartel, all of Jefferson City. The train bearer will be William Augustus Dallmeyer Jr.

'THE FAITHFUL HEART' AVOIDS THE TREMOLO

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—"The Faithful Heart" is a play which ought to be reviewed over a telegraph wire attached to the critic's orchestra seat. Writing now, some 10 minutes after the final curtain, we are aware that Monckton Hoffe's comedy is old-fashioned and somewhat excessively mellow and sentimental. But that thought was seldom with us while the play was in progress. Within the theater it creates a spell and, while the incantations last, it seems true and is moving.

Even now we recognize that it was adroitly written and beautifully played. Hoffe's skill lies in the fact that, whenever he reaches a point where tradition tempts him to tramp upon the tremolo, conscience whispers "Go slow," and in every act except the epilogue he listens to conscience. The result is a play which makes somewhat familiar material much more charming than usual.

Effective Stage Control.

For instance, the most effective scene is a meeting between a father and an 18-year-old daughter of whom he has never heard. The information as to his paternity is in a letter which the girl gives to him. We had an uneasy feeling that the man was going to open the letter, read a line or two and exclaim, "My God!" As a matter of fact, he did nothing of the sort. He merely talked casually for a moment or two without even tearing the envelope, and then ever so slowly began to understand what it was that he was going to read. Then he said nothing at all, but looked at the girl.

Tom Nesbitt plays the man and does it admirably. It is almost as simple and as fine as anything we have seen all season. But then Flora Sheffield does just as well as the girl.

Economy in Emotion.

In the prologue of the play we see a young mercantile officer saying good-by to a girl in the parlor of a seaport inn. It is tricked out a little with off-stage marine noises, whistles and such like, but the effectiveness of the scene depends almost entirely on the extreme economy with which Nesbit and Miss Shefield indicate the emotional implications of the situation.

Nesbitt we have watched before in at least one brilliant performance, but we had no notion that Miss Sheffield was half so fine. We would have to think back to Eva Le Gallienne in the park bench scene of "Liliom" to find a somewhat similar scene carried through with an equal absence of waste motion and vocal excesses.

Next, it is 20 years later and the young sailor is a Lieutenant-Colonel about to be demobilized from the British army in France. He is engaged to a swagger young woman and her people are bent upon putting no end of opportunities in his way.

The Choice They Make.

It is at this point that his daughter turns up and he finds that he must make a choice. He is disposed to take his daughter's destiny into his own hands, but she forbids him and tells him that he hasn't the right. "You must remember you're illegitimate," she tells him. In the end the illegitimate father and his rightful daughter make the choice together and sail away on a tramp steamer.

The epilogue in which the father goes back to the old hotel and has the ancient music box fetched out in order to reproduce the scene of his leave-taking is quite a bit too mechanical. Hoffe has yielded at last and put his foot upon the platwriting pedal which makes everything come out a little soft and shaky. But until this point we found the play most ingratiating.

In addition to the work of Nesbitt and of Miss Sheffield there are first-rate performances by Daisy Markham, Daisy Belmore, Lionel Pape and George Thorpe.

ARTISTIC TREAT FOR K S D LISTENERS-IN

Radio Audience Indicates Approval of New Singer; Address on Lumber Tonight.

Listeners-in on the radio program broadcast by Station K S D last night heard a singer new to the radiophone, and if the numerous telephone calls coming in from local and distant points following the program by this artist are an indication of the pleasure of her audience, her return engagement for an entire program later in this month will be heartily welcomed.

The singer was Mrs. Norma Hopkins Bosworth, and her program consisted of some of the older of the modern songs. Her voice is clear and true and she sings with excellent taste and finished technique. Her performance was made still more successful by the artistic accompaniment of Mrs. Florence Ferris Hutchison.

The first half of the program last evening was given by Jack Burke, St. Louis lyric tenor, and R. Boyd Gholson, pianist, of East St. Louis. This part of the program was a combination of popular music of the old-fashioned type, and it, also, elicited numerous compliments from the outside, which came to Station K S D by telephone.

Earl C. Rinearson, baritone, and Bernice Simpson, a young St. Louis pianiste, will be the artists of this evening's program. Rinearson will have as his accompanist the St. Louis organist and pianist, Paul Friese. An address on the place of lumber in our daily life also will be a feature of tonight's entertainment. Julius Seidel will be the speaker.

PRESS DINNER IS PLANNED

Newspapers' Relation to Public Affairs Will Be Discussed.

By the Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 11.—Plans for a discussion at a dinner in Washington April 21 of the newspaper in its relation to public affairs by men of national and international prominence, were made at a meeting of the Board of Directors of the American Society of Newspaper Editors here yesterday. The dinner will mark the close of the annual meeting of the society, which the board voted to hold in Washington April 20 and 21.

The place and time were chosen so that members from a distance might combine the meeting with that of the Associated Press and the American Newspaper Publishers' Association in New York the following week.

Davis Heads Community Council.

J. Lionberger Davis was elected president of the Community Council last night at a meeting in Central High School. Other officers chosen were Harry Wallace, first vice president; Bernard Greensfelder, second vice president; Charles Stix, treasurer, and the Rev. John J. Butler, secretary. St. Luke's Hospital was admitted to membership in the council, making 90 agencies now in the organization.

Kendrick Alumni Election.

Archbishop Glennon will speak tonight at the banquet of the Kendrick Seminary Alumni Association at the Missouri Athletic Association, the closing event of the alumni association's annual reunion. The Rev. William Sloan of Granite City was elected president of the alumni yesterday, to succeed the Rev. James J. Downes. Other officers chosen were the Rev. Blase Sheffer of St. Aloysius' Church, vice president; the Rev. E. H. Amsinger of St. Mary's, secretary; the Rev. Leo A. McAtee, Holy Innocents', treasurer, and the Rev. Alfred G. Thomson of Holy Angels' Church, historian.

Walker Hill Estate to Widow.

The estate of Walker Hill, one of the executive managers of the First National Bank, who died in New York last week, is bequeathed to his widow, Mrs. Jeanie M. L. Hill, by his will, which was filed yesterday. The document was drawn Dec. 14, 1887. No estimate was made of the value of the property.

IF SKIN BREAKS OUT AND ITCHES APPLY SULPHUR

Just the moment you apply Mentho-Sulphur to an itching, burning or broken out skin, the itching stops and healing begins, says a noted skin specialist. This sulphur preparation, made into a pleasant cold cream, gives such a quick relief, even to fiery eczema, that nothing has ever been found to take its place.

Because of its germ destroying properties, it quickly subdues the itching, cools the irritation and heals the eczema right up, leaving a clear, smooth skin in place of ugly eruptions, rash, pimples or roughness.

You do not have to wait for improvement. It quickly shows. You can get a little jar of Rowles Mentho-Sulphur at any drug store.

DEMOCRATS ATTACKING HYDE TO DIRECT ATTENTION FROM REED

Brewster said. "When you find a candidate wilfully attempting to mislead the voters, what should you do? Put the stamp of approval or of condemnation upon him?

Liquor Issue Discussed.

"My opponent talked on prohibition in his opening speech in Mexico. He faced both ways and I defy anybody to tell what he meant by what he said. Since that time he has said nothing on the subject, but he has been hiding behind the skirts of a woman he has had speaking for him. The woman tells the women in the audience not to be afraid of Reed on prohibition. And he sits on the stage and smiles when she talks. Then he has some man who talks prohibition, and who leaves with the audience the impression that Reed is wet, and Reed sits and smiles while the man is talking.

"My opponent has had little to say on the subject except on the question of search and seizure. Every bootlegger in the State indorses every word that my opponent said. If they can find a candidate who will oppose searches and seizures in their places they are for him. I can say they are not for me, none of them.

"Senator Reed makes the issue only to get votes because he knows the eighteenth amendment cannot be repealed. He knows that the members of the lower house of Congress would not dare vote to repeal the Volstead act because he knows they would be afraid to so vote and return to the country districts which sent them to Congress.

"Reed Trying to Fool Voters."

"But Senator Reed is using that to get votes just like he appeals to the farmers, to the women and to the labor organizations. He doesn't tell one of them anything he ever has done for them nor does he promise to do anything, but he picks out something he thinks will fool them, something that hasn't anything to do with the question of whether he ever has or ever will serve their interests. He dishes that out and thinks he has their votes.

"I believe the people are tired of a man running for office and trying to fool the people by appeals to class prejudice, and by trying to array one part of the people against another part. I don't believe any man can fool all the people all the time."

The political situation in Pike County appears favorable to Reed, that is, it looks like he will get at least the usual Democratic majority, which is somewhat in excess of 100. And there are indications that he will win more Republican votes than he loses Democratic votes.

Pike County Democrats usually vote the ticket pretty straight and there is little probability that many of them will scratch Reed. He carried the county over Long by approximately 1500. A large part of the Republican vote in the town of Louisiana is a negro vote. Democrats here say that a considerable portion of this vote is controlled by a negro gambler, and that this will go to Reed. James E. Pew, chairman of the Republican County Committee, however, denied this. Pew said the negro vote would go to Brewster. He said there would be many Democrats who would scratch Reed.

Gets Two Years for Shooting.

By the Associated Press.

POPLAR BLUFF, Mo., Oct. 11.—George Hardin, a farmer, was sentenced to two years imprisonment yesterday after he pleaded guilty to shooting and seriously injuring John Eldridge, who was fishing in a boat on Black River two months ago. Hardin testified thae he shot Eldridge by mistake. He claimed his life had been threatened by a neighbor named Vaughn and that upon seeing Eldridge in the boat he mistook Eldridge for Vaughn and fired.

Costume Designer Opens Furniture Shop

Styles in dress and styles in furniture alike change with the times, but quality outlives the style. This week, at the Prufrock-Litton Furniture Company, Fourth and St. Charles, you can buy quality furniture at a saving. Their sale of sample suites presents values that surprise shoppers.

You can pay too much or too little for clothes

The man who pays a high price pays an unnecessary premium for quality. But the man who pays too little is even worse off, because poor quality is often a waste of the entire purchase price.

KUPPENHEIMER
GOOD CLOTHES

Then you get dependable all-wool fabrics, faultless tailoring, original and exclusive style, at the lowest price consistent with quality.

The price of Kuppenheimer Good Clothes has come down, while the standards of tailoring have been maintained.

AMERICAN HISTORY FOR AMERICAN CHILDREN

"There is black magic on board."

By HENDRIK VAN LOON,
Author of "The Story of Mankind."

(Copyright, 1922.)

During endless weeks the voyage continued and the sailors complained more bitterly than ever that all these fine promises would not do them any good and talked of open mutiny. They were very much frightened by some of the things which they saw. One day a great meteor (a piece of a star which has flown through space until it lands upon the earth) dropped into the water near the ships with a terrible splash. A little later they came into a part of the ocean where the weeds were so thick it looked as if the ships were sailing through a meadow. They called it the sea of Sargasso. Then one morning, to the terrible consternation of all on board, the compass appeared to be out of order. Instead of pointing to the magnetic pole, the little needle went through strange maneuvers and apparently could not find its proper balance. "Verily," the sailors said, "there is black magic on board," and even the sight of some birds could not reconcile them to the idea of being separated further and further from their homes. At last, on the 11th of October, the "Pinta" fished up some wooden sticks which seemed to have been carved by the hand of man. At 10 o'clock, of that same night Columbus thought that he saw a fire on a nearby shore. He was certain that he had reached the Indies and promised a reward to the first man who should see the land on the next morning.

That night very few of the sailors went to bed. At 2 o'clock in the morning of the 12th of October of the year 1492, Rodrigo de Triana, a sailor on board the Nina, saw America. The riddle had been solved. Columbus, as we have said before, did not know that he had found a new continent. But we owe it to his courage and his beliefs in himself that the ocean was at last crossed by the ships of a modern European state. The voyages of the Norsemen had been of great interest to the intrepid men who understood them. But Europe did not hear about these until many centuries later. Then the news was of too vague a nature to be of much value. Prejudice and greed and the silly remarks of the large number of people who always shout, "It can't be done" about anything that is new, had almost prevented the expedition of Columbus. When he proved that it could be done, this same crowd suddenly turned around and revered the despised Genoese as a hero. Be it said to the everlasting glory of the great explorer that he was not discouraged by his disappointments and was quite indifferent to praise.

To Be Continued.

ROCK ISLAND MAN, SLAIN IN FIGHT, SAID TO HAVE FIRED FIRST

First Statement Made by Two of Men Held in Connection With Street Affray.

By the Associated Press.

ROCK ISLAND, Ill., Oct. 11.—First statements of any of the four men held here in connection with the killing of John Conner Looney Jr. and the wounding of two others last Friday in a street fight said to have been the result of a war between rival factions of the underworld, were made yesterday by "Crimps" Holzapple and George Buckley to newspaper reporters.

Holzapple said the shooting was precipitated by Looney, who fired the first shot. The shots that followed, Holzapple declared, were fired in self-defense. He denied having any part in the shooting, although admitting he witnessed the fight. Buckley said he was present when the shooting occurred, but did none of it himself.

Reports that Federal officers are here to gather evidence concerning illicit liquor traffic and other forms of vice were received with surprise and excitement. Meanwhile, local authorities have expressed an intention to clean up the city by continuing raids on saloons and other illegal resorts.

COMMISSION FOR COAL INVESTIGATION NAMED

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—President Harding yesterday announced the personnel of the commission which is authorized by an act of Congress to make an exhaustive investigation in both the bituminous and anthracite coal fields with a view to recommending legislation designed to bring tranquility to this industry.

John Hays Hammond of Washington, an internationally known mining engineer, heads the list. The other members are former Vice President Marshall, Judge Samuel Alschuler of Chicago; Clark Howell, editor of the Atlanta Constitution; George Otis Smith, director of the United States Geological Survey; Dr. Edward T. Devine, New York City, and Charles P. Neill, manager of the Bureau of Information of the Southeastern Railways, who formerly was Labor Commissioner of the Government.

Will Meet Within 10 Days.

The commission will meet in Washington within 10 days to organize, it was stated at the White House. It is expected to hold hearings, both in this city and in the various coal fields, and is required, under the Borah-Winslow act, to make its first report to the President and Congress not later than next Jan. 15. This report would deal with the bituminous industry, but a separate report of the anthracite committee would be required on or before next July 15.

Among other things, the commission will inquire into the ownership and title of mines, the prices of coal, organizations and persons connected with the industry, both in production and distribution. Profits of producers and distributors for the last 10 years, labor conditions, wages, wage contracts, waste and irregular production and the causes of labor disturbances in the coal fields.

$200,000 Appropriated.

Also, the commission is to inquire into and make recommendations regarding the standardization of the mines, with the possible closing of those unable to maintain that standard, standardization of the cost of living conditions among miners and the advisability of legislation having to do with Government or private ownership, regulation and control.

The commission is expected to divide itself into subcommittees, which would conduct simultaneously inquiries in the several principal coal fields, such as the central competitive, the Southern, the Western and the anthracite districts. A fund of $200,000 has been appropriated for the inquiry, designed to be the most exhaustive ever conducted by any agency of the Government. The commissioners will receive a salary of $7500 a year each.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 11.—Police last night recovered a truck belonging to a local furrier, in which nearly $7000 worth of furs were stolen at noon. None of the furs was recovered.

Syrup Pepsin Loved By Hosts of Babies

Half a teaspoonful will make a fretful youngster happy and playful

THE mother has her choice of many remedies for her baby's minor ills, but she should be careful which remedy she selects lest she do the child harm. What might be safe for herself may do injury to an infant. You will find that if the little one cries and doesn't want to play that its bowels are constipated. First look carefully to the diet and give the child one-half teaspoonful of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. You will then see results in a few hours. You will not have to force it on babies or children: they actually ask for it, it is so pleasant-tasting and free from griping.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a compound of Egyptian senna and pepsin with agreeable aromatics. The ingredients are stated on the package. It is a mild, gentle vegetable laxative that everyone finds effective and pleasant. It is better for you and yours than purgatives, coal-tar drugs, or salt waters and powders, which may concentrate the blood and dry up the skin; or mercurial calomel, which may salivate and loosen the teeth.

Use a safe laxative like Syrup Pepsin, and especially for the children, for invalids, growing girls, nursing mothers, elderly people, and persons recently operated upon who need bowel action with the least strain. Mrs. Lillian Brenington of Woodruff, S. C., always gives her children Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and Mrs. A. E. Blondin of Muskegon, Mich., will not have any other laxative in her home. Your druggist will supply you, and it only costs a cent a dose. Try it in constipation, colic, biliousness, flatulency, headaches, and to break up fevers and colds.

ANY FAMILY MAY TRY IT FREE

Thousands of parents are asking themselves, "Where can I find a trustworthy laxative that anyone in the family can use when constipated?" I urge you to try Syrup Pepsin. I will gladly provide a liberal free sample bottle, sufficient for an adequate test. Write me where to send it. Address Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 513 Washington St., Monticello, Illinois. Do it now!

HEALTH, ENERGY AND ENDURANCE FOR A BUSY, SUCCESSFUL WINTER

YOU are planning "big things" for this winter, but you can't accomplish much if you are run down, played out, listless and easily fatigued before your busy season fairly commences. Thin blood and low vitality, your legacy from a long hot summer, are responsible for your lack of energy and endurance; for your poor appetite and jangled nerves; for that thin, pale, drawn look that causes you so much anxiety.

What you need is Gude's Pepto-Mangan—that famous old tonic and blood enricher. It has no equal as a builder of "pep" and vigor, vitality and stamina. With a fresh supply of rich red blood in your veins the old spring will come back to your step—the ruddy color to your cheeks—the keen appetite for your breakfast—the driving power for a big day's work—the calm nerves and sound, refreshing sleep.

Gude's Pepto-Mangan is the favorite household remedy in hundreds of thousands of homes; it has been prescribed by physicians as a tonic for young and old for over 30 years—and during all that time its formula has not been altered, nor its strengthening, invigorating ingredients changed.

Get it today and begin to take it. Ask for it by its full name—Gude's Pepto-Mangan. The full name is on every package, your druggist has it—in liquid or tablet form, as you prefer.

SHEERIN NOMINATED FOR COUNTY JUDGESHIP

After a deadlock extending over two meetings, Daniel Sheerin of Maplewood was nominated over Raymond Walsh of University City as the Democratic candidate for Associate County Judge of the First District of St. Louis County, by the County Central Committee at Clayton last night. The action was to fill the vacancy on the ticket occasioned when no Democrat filed for the office in the primaries.

Sheerin, although not connected with the Clean Election League's "fusion' 'ticket, had the support from the first of the five members of the Democratic County Committee favorable to the fusion idea, while the five "antifusionists" opposed him. Tony Blomes of Meramec Township, a member of the latter faction, swung to Sheerin's side last night and broke the deadlock.

As the Clean Election League is known to regard Sheerin favorably, and as Wilfred Jones of Maplewood, nominated for the county judgeship in the First District by the fusionists, has stated that he will withdraw, it is held probable that the fusionists will indorse Sheerin in the race against the regular Republican candidate, Fred Stille, the present Judge. Jones' name was not included on the fusion ticket recently filed with the county clerk.

City Attorney Robert Powell of Kirkwood and George Barnett, a Webster Groves attorney, were unanimously nominated as candidates to fill the vacancies for Circuit Judge of the First and Second Districts, respectively, at last night's meeting. The opponents will be John W. McElhinney for the First District and Judge G. A. Wurdeman for the Second, nominees of both the Republican and fusion tickets. The fusionists are regarded as likely to support Powell and Barnett should Judges McElhinney and Wurdeman decide to withdraw from the fusion ticket, as it was at one time indicated they might do.

Montgomery Hord was nominated by the Central Committee for Constable and William H. Tiffin and Lee Killian for Justices of the Peace in St. Ferdinand Township. Similar vacancies in other townships will be filled later.

Clean Election Candidates "on Parade" Before Women.

A number of the Clean Election ticket candidates for offices in St. Louis County in the election Nov. 7 were "on parade" at a luncheon yesterday given by the St. Louis County League of Women Voters at the American Annex Hotel, in celebration of the determination of the women to come out and actively support the ticket.

"This is the first time in American history that the women have come out for any one ticket," said Mrs. T. Walter Hardy, president of the league. "We feel that we should celebrate the occasion."

It was the concensus of opinion, apparently, among the candidates and the members of the league present, that the objection to the Clean Election ticket filed by the opposing politicians in the county last Saturday offered one of the most trying crises. A hearing on the objections, which were said to be purely technical in nature, will be held today in the County Court.

Plan to Keep Up Fight.

Should the objections be sustained, the Clean Election League of the county intends to take the fight into the Supreme Court at Jefferson City, for final action. There they hope, on a writ of mandamus, to get action allowing their ticket to be presented to the voters.

"We have every reason to believe the law is with us on this," said Porter Henry, chairman of the Executive Committee. "The Progressive party did the same thing when it came into existence after the primary in 1912. Their action was upheld by the Supreme Court, and we believe ours will be, too."

The Clean Election League will show the court the nominations petition filed last Thursday and certificates of nomination, which, Henry stated, are all that is necessary to make the nominations legal.

"Ax and a Ku Klux Klan."

In speaking of remedies for the county election situation, Henry voiced what seemed to be a popular sentiment when he said the best remedy probably would be "the ax and a Ku Klux Klan to clean the bosses out."

Referring to the objections against the new ticket, as frivolous, Henry said: "They say we have not enough names on the petition. The requirement by law is about 870. We have at least 900. None of these persons voted in the primary.

"And in that objection where they say we don't give the residence of the candidate, it is interesting to note the candidates all received advice from the County Clerk today, requesting that they appear in court for the hearing tomorrow. They had the addresses, without doubt."

Mrs. Hardy suggested printing sample ballots for the purpose of educating the women how to vote correctly.

Age Limit for Governor Set.

By the Associated Press.

JEFFERSON CITY, Oct. 11.—The Constitution Convention today adopted a section of the new Constitution which provides that the Governor and Lieutenant-Governor shall be at least 35 years old and shall have been citizens of the United States for 10 years, and residents of Missouri for not less than seven years before election. This provision is the same as contained in the present Constitution.

Engineer Faints; Engine Runs Wild.

By the Associated Press.

POPLAR BLUFF, Mo., Oct. 11.—An engine of the Butler County Railroad, operating from here to Piggott, Ark., with a passenger coach, ran wild Monday when Roy Wilson, the engineer, fainted and fell on the floor of the cab. The conductor made his way to the engine and controlled the train, which met with no accident. It was believed that the engineer was burned when he fell against the boiler.

BEATEN OKLAHOMA CANDIDATE TO APPEAL TO SUPREME COURT

By the Associated Press.

WOODWARD, Ok., Oct. 11.—Charles Swindall, defeated candidate for the Republican nomination for Congress from the Eighth Oklahoma District, will carry to the State Supreme Court his fight to keep the name of McGarber, the nominee, off the ballots for the November election.

This announcement was made by Swindall's attorneys after District Judge Cullision yesterday dissolved the injunction obtained by Swindall restraining the Election Board from placing Garber's name on the ballots.

Swindall charged that Garber, through the "Garber-for-Congress Club," had sent $10 bills to several voters in the August primary. He said if given an opportunity he could prove the charge "and many others."

In applying for the restraining order Swindall alleged Garber had spent approximately $75,000 to win the nomination.

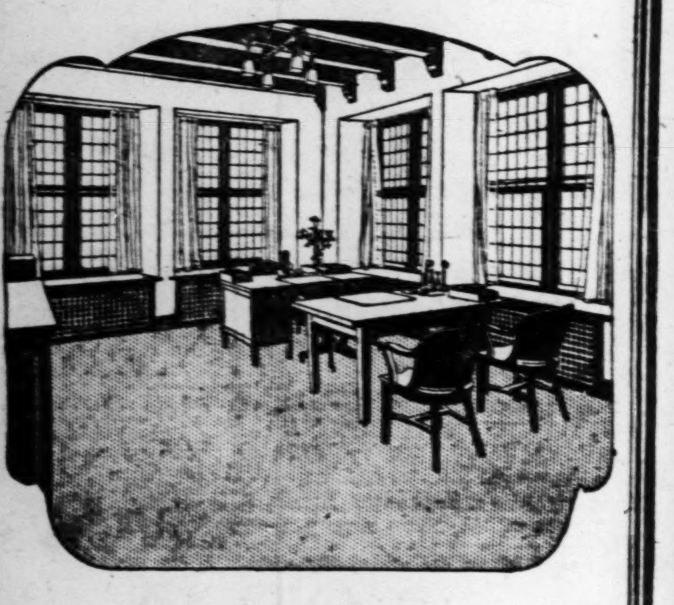
Ready for Use—Better Than Traps



Armstrong's Linoleum

for Every Floor in the House

Step number one toward a better-looking office

IN an office the floor is the key to the way the office looks. A clean floor, a dignified, handsome, impressive floor demands that the other furnishings shall be better than ordinary.

This floor of Armstrong's Battleship Grey Linoleum in the general offices of Wm. F. Warner and Company, St. Louis, lends an air of dignity to the other furnishings. It tones in so beautifully with the walls, woodwork, and draperies that it is literally a part of the office.

Modern linoleum is made so strong and durable, so attractive in color and design, that it is regarded as a highly desirable floor for shops and offices, as well as for public buildings.

Linoleum is easy to clean. Grease and dirt do not sink into it. An occasional waxing and polishing keeps it looking like new. Properly laid, linoleum is waterproof, smooth, and firm. A floor of Armstrong's Linoleum is quiet and restful, and is not expensive.

Ask your architect, contractor, or any good linoleum merchant about Armstrong's Linoleum. We shall gladly send him data and specifications for laying linoleum over concrete or wood floors. Or write for a free copy of our 48-page book, "Business Floors."

SURE WAY TO GET RID OF BLACKHEADS

There is one simple, safe and sure way that never fails to get rid of blackheads, that is to dissolve them.

To do this get two ounces of calonite powder from any drug store—sprinkle a little on a hot, wet sponge—rub over the blackheads briskly—wash the parts and you will be surprised how the blackheads have disappeared. Big blackheads, little blackheads, no matter where they are, simply dissolve and disappear, leaving the parts without any mark whatever. Blackheads are simply a mixture of dust and dirt and secretions from the body that form in the pores of the skin—pinching and squeezing only cause irritation, make large pores, and do not get them out after they become hard. The calonite powder and the water simply dissolve the blackheads so they wash right out, leaving the pores free and clean and in their natural condition. Anybody troubled with these unsightly blemishes should certainly try this simple method.

The Latest From the Womeniscient George—Stephen Leacock Informs the English That They Are Discovered—I. H. Lionberger Dips Into Economics.

BY OTTO HELLER.

"THE UNWELCOME HUSBAND," by W. L. George. (Harper & Brothers.)

URSULA TRENT earned the well-advertised "feminist" some hard knocks and many hard dollars. George's new book betrays his anxiety to be again hard hit with our coin, but also shows him disposed to dodge the worst of the knocks.

I always find this writer very trying to my nerves. For one thing, he brings out the most hateful part of my congenital self, that lurking moralist whom a writer's artificial flippancy invariably resuscitates from my subliminal ancestral burying ground. George simply can't reconcile himself to it that he has missed for good being a Frenchman and a Bohemian, and that to trip the light fantastic his toe is too irredeemably bourgeois and British.

Besides, he makes me waver in the pride I take in never reviewing books I haven't read. This time, for instance, I almost gave him up after 178 pages. My curiosity about the sequel and outcome was not piqued. Did hell threaten or heaven invite? I didn't know or care. Yet once more principle subdued prejudice, and in the sweat of my brow I plowed through to the end. That's why I am able to outline the history of Mr. George's newest "beautiful, courageous" heroine, a woman caught in the trap of an unfortunate marriage, and "whose heart and mind pull in opposite directions." Her name is Mrs. Caldecot. The husband, to whom she gave just a just-so life, has been spurlos versunken for many, many years. He left her for the sufficient reason that she didn't put anything on her face. After five years of widowhood (she can't tell—grass or turf?) enters into her life Bob Rodbourne, a young man ruined at 10—by being brilliant. After eight years of this affair Bob "met up" with Patricia Neale, "a girl who didn't know anything." The more he loved her the more he disliked her. On p. 73 the lovers kiss a kiss that almost exceeds in length the limit set by the National Board of Censors, and then fall into an interminable discourse upon their elongated kiss.

Caldecot turns up—a villain thrice dyed black (-guard, -mailer, -leg). Amiable enough, for one so hard up. "Don't call me Geoffrey. It sounds so cold. Call me Geoff and let everything be rapture and roses."

He must have money. There's a lady in the case, and she's dashed expensive.

"Why don't you go and live on her immoral earnings?" from the loving wife.

"I can get more out of you and quicker."

Geoff named the price. Two thousand pounds. It was then that weakness came over Mrs. Caldecot.

About this time Bob "meets up" with an accident. Falls off a horse, narrow escape, just lands on his head. Damaged goods? Patricia to Mrs. Caldecot: "Take him back—he never belonged to me." Caldecot "meets up" with Stephen Britford, who cares so "immeasurably" for Mrs. Caldecot that he will pay 5000 quid to the husband for staging a "badger game" to compel her to marry him. Read it in this morsel of the author's choicest diction: "Britford was ready to befoul Mrs. Caldecot herself, so that he might reduce her to a creature without a will, to a creature fit to be taken and enjoyed. There was no limit to the intensity of his love." The frame-up leads to a sensational nighty-night scene in the hallway of Mrs. Caldecot's house. Geoffrey, Stephen, Claire, detectives, 'n everything.

Geoff, the old rake, shows signs of a change of heart without repentance or reform. Reason? Has been chucked by the dashed expensive Vera. Also "meets up" with a woman of the streets who calls him a coughdrop.

Claire becomes reconciled to Geoffrey through pity for his trouble (cirrhosis of the liver). Mark the gallantry of her spirit.

Some people tell me I am all wrong about disliking and dispraising W. L. George. Their protest makes me feel good, for it tells me that I know more than they. He wrote a clever book once, possibly twice, and his talent was spent. He still enjoys a front-page reputation for unmatched knowledge of the feminine soul. But the only relation to psychology that I discover in him is his striking physiognomic resemblance to the late Prof. Hugo Muensterberg. Thoughts are not to be found in his writings, only sweepings of ideas. His brain is without flint and steel—no fire, no scintillation. Just a tedious sort of cleverness derived from an affected heartlessness. He loves to pose as the sad dog. "If a man were to marry all the women he kisses," and that sort of blague. Of a genuine "mot" he no longer shows himself capable. His epigrams run in this style:

"Women are awful fools at fifty."

Let me quote a bit of his "brilliant dialogue," because it seems to apply so fitly to himself:

"I should have thought it was very nice to have someone to do your hair for you, and set out your clothes."

"That part's all right. Only when a maid's useless she's a nuisance, and when a maid's useful she's a tyrant."

And I say: Bravo, George!

* * *

Mr. George, we fear, as a writer to men has defaulted. What man cares two hoots for his frivolous backstairs and week-end chatter, his meticulous descriptions of bathroom appointments, and his elaborate layouts of toilettes and dessous? However, his popularity among the ladies, and still more among the ladies' maids, is likely to continue. His view of the feminine world is the view from behind the dry goods counter and the peep into the boudoir. Claire Caldecot loved underclothes. So does W. L. George. He raves over "chemises of crepe de chine hardly bluer than the morning sky in springtime—brassieres like cobwebs of red silk—a sumptuous heap of ninon, shell pink or straw yellow, or rather heavy champagne silk or sea green milanese." He knows what's "good" this season. He has got the whole outfit at his finger's end—strings and buttons and shoulderstraps and all. As a novelist we haven't much use for him. But what a wonderful poet of undies ads he would make!

It's fair he should be given the last word, after these carpings. Says W. L. George: "Well, we all have our penchants and prejudices."

So, why should not I have mine?

"MY DISCOVERY OF ENGLAND," by Stephen Leacock. (Dodd, Mead & Co.)

CANADA'S foremost humorist—and one of her ablest economists—has incorporated in this jolly account of his recent tour of Great Britain a greater store of critical wisdom respecting the shortcomings of his home Dominion and the abutting States than is harbored in those multitudinous diaries where, vice versa, cisatlantic ways are paraded past a European reviewing stand.

Simultaneously with the general "crime wave," a rising tide of lecturers and literary "ladies and men" from England has lately washed upon the shores of the North American continent. English intellect has dumped its bulk (we are not so easily taken in by appearances as to have prominently in mind the tabernacular figure of G. K. Chesterton) on our ground. For four or five years now, Britishers who in their own country maintain a habitual dignity of silence have lectured themselves hoarse in America, and carried away our good money with their bad impressions. Prof. Leacock has done his bit, doubly ex cathedra, as being an economist with a sense of humor, towards establishing a truer balance of trade in "Impressions."

In all conscience, that thing has been grossly overdone against us. Too many of our foreign visitors affront their huge American audiences by a contemptuous lack of preparation. They read us snatches from their published memoirs or describe their horizontal agonies while dressing a la Pullman, or talk to us about uncommonly flatheaded folk who part their hair and their names in the middle, and for this drivel they get as much out of us in one hour as the person who teaches our children makes in a year. Leacock makes capital fun of our childish enthusiasm towards those visitors. In America what the people mainly want is to see the lecturer, just as the people who are crazy about animals flock to the zoo to look at a new giraffe. "They don't expect the giraffe to do anything in particular," says Mr. Leacock. It's worth $2 to them to see Mrs. Asquith or Mr. Chesterton. English audiences expect more, that's why those lecturers keep the peace at home. It is all of one piece with that ineradicable snobbery which, we have lately been told by a member of the defunct House of the Romanoffs, makes a title of nobility today carry the bearer farther socially, financially, matrimonially, in New York than in any other part of the world. "It is a known fact that if a young English Lord comes to an American town he puts it to the bad in one week. Socially the whole place goes to pieces. Girls whose parents are in the hardware business and who used to call their father "pop," begin to talk of precedence and whether a Duchess Dowager goes into dinner ahead or behind a countess scavenger."

Mr. Leacock rightly complains about the habitual incivility of our "civil servants" as compared with their English colleagues. But why single out a class when the trait is fairly general? Fundamentally, the American is socially wellmeaning, perhaps more so than all other nationalities. His frequent external want of polish is the logical consequence of an educational curriculum in which gentle manners occupy no time and space. Our educators, themselves usually the products of ungentle schooling, are yet to discover the remarkable softening and sweetening effect of the kindly gesture, the pleasant voice, the "please" and "thank you," upon the general intercourse.

The decline of serious study in America came forcibly home to Prof. Leacock while at Oxford. But one should follow with caution and reserve his defense of that ancient castle of educational conservatism. Be it remembered that Leacok is one of the few who still bemoan the admission of women to the higher studies! Still, what he has to say about the two types of universities is well considered. and his characterizations are superbly different from the complimentary poppycock oracled about our institutions of learning by foreigners like Mr. R. Kipling: "You have here a great institution," or young Wales, who, on receiving a facile LL.D., stated with characteristic royal originality: "McGill has a glorious future."

"One searches in vain in the Oxford curriculum for any adequate recognition of the higher and more cultured studies. Strange though it seems to us on this side of the Atlantic, there are no courses in Oxford in housekeeping or in salesmanship, or in advertising. * * * The Oxford student is thus cut off from a great deal of the larger culture of our side of the Atlantic."

Oxford is little touched by the American passion for visible efficiency and visible equality, principles which have inserted themselves in a place where they have no right to be. Inequality is the breath of life in a university. As for efficiency, may not the peculiar vagueness of the organization of his work constitute a college teacher's excellence? Gladly do I mix my tears with Prof. Leacock's over the shabby plebeianism of American student life. The life around us is what forms us in the student age. The American student gets too little education by the ways of luxury. He is too sordidly surrounded. The cafeteria style of living is relatively inexpensive and absolutely anticultural.

Mr. Leacock is troubled at the prospect of prohibition coming to England. London, on the mere chance of its coming, is already the same "city of dreadful night" as Chicago or St. Louis. It may no doubt seem a wise and virtuous thing to go to bed early. But it is a terrible thing to have to go to bed early by Act of Congress. He foresees that the benefit of prohibition in England, just as in America, is to fall on the poorer classes. There is no desire to interfere with the rich.

* * *

Mr. Leacock corrects the widespread impression about the English people's lack of humor, and the exorbitant attribution of humor to Americans. The reviewer confesses to a fellow feeling on this point. Sometimes he perceives about him a sense of humor that seems humor without sense. The humor of bad spelling, or bad English, does not seem to flourish in England. Also, the English evidently believe that there are places where "humor" is out of place. The pulpit, probably. The bench, decidedly. The sallies loosed against helpless defendants occasionally by our judiciary would draw ire and fire from the English bar. A Kenesaw Mountain Landis would be compelled to quote his Blackstone more and his Joe Miller less. Maybe some judicial decisions would be less like jokes if some of our Judges were less humorous. Other precincts occur to one which in England, though not here, are by hallowed tradition sacrosanct to the joker. Mr. Leacock, who himself lives largely, I should say, by his wit, points out nevertheless to all fellowmen in Canada and the United States who may think of going to England that all business over there is not opened with anecdotes introduced by "that reminds me." He vouches for the fact that when you meet a director of the Bank of England he does not say: "I am very glad to meet you. Sit down. There was a mule in Arkansas once, etc." How they do their banking and preaching and lecturing and teaching without that mule and similarly recollected darkies, Scots, Irishmen and Jews, Mr. Leacock does not say. He does not know. But they manage it.

Defenders of the Faith.

"THE MEANING OF PROPERTY," by Isaac H. Lionberger. (The Stratford Co.)

"THE THINGS THAT ARE CAESAR'S, A DEFENSE OF WEALTH," by Guy Morrison Walker. (A. L. Fowle, 61 Broadway, New York.)

OUR honored fellow citizen has ventured here into the realm of economics. The author of "The Felicities of Sixty" has obviously read a great deal in that field, but he rather loses himself in the maze of his varied readings. Two instances will suffice: "Life, liberty and property are declared by our Declaration of Independence to be among the inalienable rights." This is a queer mash concocted from a passage of the Declaration of Independence which says that life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness are inalienable rights, and from the fifth amendment of our Constitution which, among others, provides that no person shall be deprived of his life, liberty or property without due process of law. Surely to a thinker of Mr. Lionberger's cultured stamp the concepts of property and the pursuit of happiness cannot be identical and interchangeable. And here is another mixed brew: "Capital may properly be regarded as accumulated labor"—this is the socialist theory of Karl Marx. "The origin of private property is in service and self-denial"—this is the theory of our safely and sanely bourgeois professors.

Natural it is that Mr. Lionberger's conclusions from premises so queer are equally queer, to say the least. Take this one: "To allow the capitalist usury is to encourage him to do good. None but those ignorant of affairs would venture to prohibit so fruitful a source of good." Well, well! But it is a consoling thought that this author has more than once shown courage about changing his mind.

THE fourth edition of Mr. Walker's astounding brief in behalf of wealth, published originally about three years ago, is in striking consonance with the enunciations of Mr. I. H. Lionberger. Mr. Walker does not mince words in expressing his brand new theory that any interference with the accumulation of wealth is destructive of civilization. The rich are our doers and thinkers, he holds. Every material comfort we have has come, not from manual labor, but from the creative, untiring brain power of the man of wealth who has generally achieved more for the world than he has saved for himself, bless his good soul. To the publisher we owe the information that Mr. Walker's name will soon become more famous than that of Adam Smith!

"THE GHOST GIRL," by Edgar Saltus. (Boni & Liveright.)

EDGAR SALTUS has written numerous books, most of them tales of mystery and adventure. Two weeks before his recent death he turned over to his publishers the manuscript of "The Ghost Girl," which was published posthumously, and which happens to be as replete with thrills and exciting situations as one could wish. It narrates most interestingly the adventures of a man whose wife is injured in an automobile accident on their wedding night, but who, though she is called dead, enjoys a funeral service and is buried, refuses to believe her dead and spends his time day and night searching for her after the discovery that the vault has been opened and her coffin removed. In the end he finds her, but there is lacking the usual happy reunion and the beginning of life anew. The story is well written and 'different."

FICTION IN TABLOIDS.

"POLLY THE PAGAN—HER LOST LOVE LETTERS," by Isabel Anderson, with a foreword by Basil King. (The Page Company.)

Mr. King in his introduction to this novel on an international theme praises the author's quickness in perceiving its potentialities. Mrs. Anderson has had entree not merely to foreign houses and hearts, but to foreign points of view. In her game she plays the New World against the Old, and the Old World against the New, in the spirit of comedy, not without its tragic points. The story is conveyed through letters and the journal of an American girl traveling in Europe.

* * *

"THE JUDGMENT OF CHARIS," by Mrs. Bellie Reynolds. (George H. Doran Co.)

If you had run away from an all-too-persistent lover and an all-too-gorgeous family—

If you were taken under the wing of a kindly middle-aged millionaire and invited to become his secretary—

Would you expect complications? Charis did, and her expectations were realized.

"THE TRAIL OF THE WHITE MULE," by B. M. Bower. (Little, Brown & Company.)

This is another Casey Ryan story. Casey Ryan is more than ever Casey Ryan. White mule, as you know, is moonshine, and moonshine, as you know, is illicit whisky. Casey hits the trail of white mule—neither as a drinking man nor as a bootlegger, but, on the contrary, armed with the mighty bludgeon of the law.

* * *

"IN THE FAVOR OF THE KING," by Hawthorne Daniel. (Doubleday, Page & Company.)

Here we have for a theme the famous expedition of Francisco Coronado out of Mexico to find the Seven Cities of Cibola, of fabulous wealth.

* * *

"THE CUCKOO'S NEST," by Christine Jope Slade. (Houghton-Mifflin Co.

How Zuriel Whistler wriggled free from suburbanism and struck out for the land of romance with her mother plodding anxiously behind, is told with zest, humor, and a knack for character-drawing.

* * *

"BIG LAUREL," by Frederick Orin Bartlett. (Houghton-Mifflin Co.)

The scene of this whirl of romance and adventure is in the southern mountains made familiar to novel readers through the stories of John Fox.

* * *

"THE WHELPS OF THE WOLF," by George Marsh. (Penn Publishing Co.)

The husky dog and his devotion to one master, plays a prominent part in this story of the Hudson Bay country. The tale deals chiefly with the sufferings and hardships of the trapper in the north country, and of the perils that constantly surround him. The plot is not unusual nor are the situations new. It is, to say the most, merely another story of the frozen north, with the usual hero, a villain or two—and a girl.

* * *

"SAND," by Olive Wadsley. (Dodd, Mead & Co.)

Another romance of the desert.

* * *

"CAPTAIN POTT'S MINISTER," by Francis L. Cooper. (Lothrop, Lee & Shepard Co.)

* * *

"THE FIGHTING EDGE," by William Macleod Raine. (Houghton-Mifflin Co.)

Bob Dillon, who pares potatoes for a construction outfit, and seems to be a hopeless coward, makes of himself in precisely 800 pages a man "who will measure up to the stern standards of the frontier."

* * *

"THE GIFT OF THE DESERT," by Randell Parrish. (A. C. McClurg & Co.)

Mel-O-Drama. The beautiful heroine gets in just as many tight and dangerous places (and out again) as Nick Carter ever did. The book abounds in such expressions as: "Never fear, little girl, I'll protect you." * * * "You are a wild little filly, but I'll tame you," etc.

* * *

"Mummers in Mufti" could be called a story of theatrical life, though the central figure is neither an actor nor a playwright, and the whole scene is laid away from Broadway. It is, however, a picture of a musical comedy on tour.

* * *

"WHISPERING SAGE," by Harry Sinclair Drago and Joseph Noel. (The Century Co.)

In Nevada, Utah and some neighboring grazing territories there are thousands of Basques, descendants of Celts of the Spanish Pyrenees. Among this environing element plays the story of a fight for water rights that a lot of people are going to receive with enthusiasm.

"TOLD UNDER A WHITE OAK TREE," by Bill Hart's Pinto Pony. Edited by William S. Hart. With Illustrations by J. Montgomery Flagg. (Houghton-Mifflin Co.

An acceptable gift book for the movie enthusiast or for the connoisseur of horses, not for the lover of literature. "Bill" Hart, for all he rides splendidly and acts well, is not much of a writer. The idea of the little book was clever, the execution is paltry.

In the Literary Letter Box

ILLUMINATING though unrelated phenomena in the field of the native theater: The Provincetown Players announce an interim. Already their group is scattered. Interment, not interim. And a pity, for something could have been built on their name, reputation, subscription list, good will. . . . The Neighborhood Playhouse announces an interim. 'A different story here. A playhouse, a staff, a school, a definite purpose which the directors wish to define still more accurately. Behind closed doors—doors closed only to the public, not to the student—preparations will proceed for the ensuing season. . . . The Little Theaters sprout like mushrooms and grow and die—like mushrooms. . . . Agitation for and against censorship; appointment of an overlord, Augustus Thomas; gambling for the riskiest stakes in the history of our stage and right on top of the most disastrous season, financially, our theater has ever known! Are we mad, masters, or just hurrying along so rapidly we can't see the pattern?

In that willingness to gamble for things worth the toss, I see the keynotes to our advancing theater. We are using Europe as preceptor, not as the safe source of commercial gain after the manner of the old days of the Boucicault adaptation and the Frohman importations. Occasionally the old spirit prevails, as in the reaching out for the secure plums of the French and British play markets. Sometimes, too, the motive is simply to fill a gap on our own stage. But increasingly, and in the coming season more than ever, we pick from the Old World's sample room exactly those specimens which seem most likely to provide further and richer stimulus to our own endeavors.

"WE must look to our laurels," begins an English critic in "The Manchester Guardian," discussing "Producing in Little Theaters" by Clarence Stratton (Holt). "This book is a concise guide, but it is also, by reason of the examples and illustrations drawn from the American Little Theaters, both a record and a challenge. Have we in England traveled so far as to be able to refer to Mr. Laurence Housman's 'The Chinese Lantern' as a great favorite with skilled amateurs, or to that charming bit of dramatic history, 'A Harlequinade,' by Dion Calthrop and Granville Barker, as admirably suited to amateur actors and audiences? Mr. Stratton has written a thorough manual for producers.

"THERE is a wide gulf between a naturalist and a nature lover," says Mrs. Gene Stratton-Porter. "The naturalist devotes his life to tracing families and sub-families, dissecting, analyzing and working with Greek and Latin terms of resounding and disheartening combinations. The nature lover does not care in the least about species and intimate details concerning anatomy couched in Greek and Latin terms which cannot possibly be remembered. He delights in the woods and fields, the drama of wild life, the domestic architecture of the birds, the exquisite coloring of the butterflies and meadow flowers. He is eager to learn the simplest name for the creatures he meets afield and the markings, habits and characteristics by which they can be identified."

WILFRID SCAWEN BLUNT, one of the most picturesque figures in British political and literary life of the past half century, died last month at the age of 83, at his home at Southwater, Sussex, England. Poet, architect, sculptor, member of the diplomatic service, famous breeder of Arab horses, and lifelong bitter opponent of Britain's imperial policies despite his own lineage (he comes from one of the oldest of British houses), he was one of the notable figures of the Victorian age and the succeeding years down to the time of the war, when on account of his failing health he retired to his country estate.

Blunt was of distinguished appearance (Margot Asquith, one of his closest friends, called him 'the handsomest man she knew") and was widely popular. He was a friend of Oscar Wilde, of William Morris, and of Francis Thompson (whom he "discovered"); of Cardinal Newman; of Balfour, Asquith, of Edward VII, Lord Cromer, George Curzon, and many other leaders of British life.

"AXIOMS FOR AUTHORS."—Men and women frequently have the calmness of spirit to enjoy much more deeply the great works of literature when they have ceased to fret themselves with the fever of yearning to make some.

It is frequently said in a waggish way that reviewers never read the books they review. Well, a man long familiar with horses does not have to spend a day with a horse to note its points.—Robert Cortes Holliday in The Bookman.

"THREE ASSES IN BOLIVIA" is the title of a new travel book from Houghton-Mifflin Co. It is written by one of the "Three Asses," a young Englishman, Lionel Portman, who possesses a fresh sense of humor and a keenly observant eye. The book first appeared in England where the dignified London Times unbent long enough to say some nice things of it—'the most diverting volume of travel which has appeared since Mark Twain's Innocents Abroad set all America and England laughing."

Contribution Box

"A GATE OF CEDAR," by Katharine Morse. (Macmillan.)

THIS unusual first book of verse, though issued early in the year, has only lately come to the reviewer's table. Varied, musical, modern but restrained, many of these short poems have a real and spirited quality of vitality held firmly in leash. The variety swings from such etchings as "A Sunset" and "A Japanese Print" through vividly imaged nature pictures to such wild songs as "Dan Kellogg" and "The Privateers." One can almost say what Miss Morse's earliest reading has been: at a bold guess, Will Carleton, Longfellow, Tennyson, Stevenson, Henley, Matthew Arnold. Knowingly or not, she derives from these, and must have read the moderns.

With a surer choice of words, a little more discontent with her diction and a patient willingness to work for just the right color and tang, Miss Morse would closely approach Miss Teasdale. She is especially tender and delicate in those lines shyly depicting the awakening of a girl's first love. One feels in reading them that one has intruded into a sanctuary, and thinks back literally to her foreword, "I pipe not to the world, I pipe to my own heart."

Especially good, to the reviewer's taste, are the gravely ironic "Triptych in Ash and Ebony," "The Regicide," the rollicking "Horsehair Sofa," "The Portrait," limning a smug old opportunist, and "The Way of Righteousness." There is wit in some of her satires. But "Gettysburg" attempts a feat beyond the powers of any but a very great and experienced artist, for the line between dignity and banality is too vague to be scribed by any but the highly trained hand.

There are many lines that sing, and this poet has bravely clung to rhyme and meter almost everywhere, but with a fine freedom that shows the cynical she is not bound by the worst of the old tradition. Her work exhibits her as not yet a great poet, but a good one, and what makes her writing worth attention is the evidence of quiet ease and of exuberance in repression—the hopeful grace of reserve power. Lyrically, she is conspicuous in a flock of trivial prose-writers who resort to typography to make lines look like verse. This may not be the most appropriate time to mention it, but it is interesting to observe that free verse tends to find the place where Bliss Perry thinks it should be, alongside of the conventional forms, not above them. In the art poetical it is what futurism, cubism, vorticism and the other tangential departures have been to painting and sculpture — legitimate aspiration, earnest effort, rightfully demanding attention, but only if the artist has first proved himself a master of the fundamental and the conventional. To escape trammels, one must first have known them. Anisfeld and Bloch can draw exquisitely, and they are entitled to a respectful hearing when they enunciate a new doctrine.

There is still another point of view. Mr. Mencken is almots the only competent critic alive who thinks that nothing but the lyrical form is poetic; but some of his best friends admit that he knows little about poetry. The connection between music and poetry is not so close as some men wish us to believe. One may recall the feeling of some distinguished poets against music, amounting to hostility. Sidney Lanier made a daring and patient effort to bring music and English verse into scientific wedlock, and to most minds he failed. Our verse, even in its most rigid forms, is too fluid for that.

MAN—you are busy. You have no time to go shopping.

You read about Tom Wye Knit Jackets, and if we could pin a jacket to every advertisement you would be glad to look at it.

Today, and for a few days, every store in town which has Tom Wye Knit Jackets is going to display them in the window. That makes it easy for every man to see them.

Tom Wye is the knit jacket you would wear on a fishing trip or in the office. You would wear it at a football game or in the classroom.

Father would like it and so would Son.

In the windows you will see many rich heather mixtures. If you examine them closer you will like the stretch and elasticity of the fabric produced by the exclusive Tom Wye stitch.

You will admire the tailoring—the shipshape pockets that hug closely to the jacket without sagging—and you will have faith in the strong reinforcing where you know the strains will come.

Mrs. Koerner Is Winner Over Mrs. Marx in Feature Match In District Golf Tournament

Miss Pep, Low Medalist in Event, and Mrs. Wasson, Present Titleholder, Are Scheduled to Play Tomorrow in Third Round Contest.

By Joseph F. Holland,

BELLERIVE COUNTRY CLUB, Oct. 11.—Mrs. Kent Koerner of the Bellerive Club defeated Mrs. E. J. Marx Jr., Westwood, 1 up in 22 holes, in the feature match of the second round of the women's district golf championship tournament today.

Mrs. Koerner was 3 up at the end of the first nine, but Mrs. Marx squared the match by winning the first three holes coming home. She went 1 up by winning No. 13, but they finished the 18 all square. Mrs. Koerner won on the twenty-second when she had a 5 against a 6 for Mrs. Marx. Mrs. Marx stroked the incoming nine in 43.

The cards:

Mrs. Koerner—

Out	5	4	7	6	5	5	6	6	8
In	6	6	6	6	5	5	6	4	3
	6	4	5	5

Mrs. Marx—

Out	5	5	6	7	7	5	8	7	7
In	4	5	5	5	6	5	5	5	3
	6	4	5	6

Mrs. G. E. Mix, who yesterday sprang a surprise by eliminating Miss Audrey Faust of the Country Club, 1 up in 19 holes, was defeated in the second round, 2 up and 1 to play, by Mrs. E. Lansing Ray, a former State champion.

Miss Virginia Pep, low medalist in the tournament, advanced to the third round, when she won from Mrs. V. E. Taylor, 5 up and 4 to play. Mrs. Lynn E. Wasson, the present title holder, won from Mrs. L. P. Aloe, 7 up and 6.

A surprise came when Mrs. M. R. Parrott of the Kirkwood Club eliminated Mrs. M. J. Isler after a close match, 2 up and 1 to play.

Mrs. Maurice Obear was the winner in the longest match in the tournament, when she eliminated Mrs. J. H. Douglas, 1 up in 24 holes. Going to No. 16, Mrs. Douglas was 2 down, but she squared the match at No. 18.

Today's Results.

Tomorrow's Pairings.

CHAMPIONSHIP CLASS.

Miss Virginia Pep vs. Mrs. L. E. Wasson.

Mrs. M. R. Parrott vs. Mrs. M. M. McCain.

Mrs. E. L. Ray vs. Mrs. Dodridge Farerell.

Mrs. Kent Koerner vs. Mrs. Maurice Obear.

Weather conditions were more favorable today. The sun shone for the first time during the tournament and the cold and rain of two previous days had vanished. It promised better golf.

Two swings of a golf club and only two sent Miss Faust down to defeat yesterday.

One of those two strokes was a short putt which Miss Faust missed and the other was a drive which veered to the right and was lost in a clump of trees. The one allowed Mrs. Mix to square the match and the other gave her a victory merited by her steady play.

Missed Putt Squares Match.

Coming to the eighteenth green Miss Faust held a lead of one hole. She was on the green with her rival and the play finally simmered down to a point where the sinking of a putt slightly longer than one foot would have given her the match. She took her stance, putted and missed. Mrs. Mix putted and the ball thudded into the cup to give her the hole and square the match.

The pair trudged to the nineteenth hole. Mrs. Mix drove first and her lie was straight down the fairway. Miss Faust drove and the ball veered sharply into a clump of trees to the right of the fairway. A search failed to locate the ball and Miss Faust forfeited a stroke to play another.

That stroke was too much. Mrs. Mix continued her steady play, dropped a putt for a five and the match was over. Another "upset" had been recorded and Miss Faust had been relegated to the consolation class.

Miss Pep Shoots 92.

Miss Pep made the lowest score of the tournament in winning her match from Mrs. C. B. Abney, five up and three to play. She completed the round in 92 strokes, which bettered the performance by which she won medalist honors by one stroke.

The driving contest was won by Miss Pep, whose three drives totaled 571 yards. Mrs. Lynn E. Wasson, present champion, was second and Mrs. E. Lansing Ray third.

HANNEGAN WILL BE OUT OF BILLIKENS' LINEUP IN GRINNELL CONTEST

St Louis University will take the field against Grinnell Saturday, minus the services of Hannegan, halfback and the best punter on the squad. Hannegan suffered an injury to his arm yesterday in scrimmage and it is feared that the member was broken If the latter proves to be the case, he will likely be lost for the remainder of the year

With Hannegan out of the game, Fullback Klausner will be called upon to do the kicking for the Billikens.

Sarazen Plans Tour.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—Gene Sarazen, national open and professional golf champion, who is recuperating from an operation for appendicitis in a Yonkers hospital, will tour the Southern States and the Pacific Coast this winter with Jock Hutchison, former British champion, it was learned today. Ball Players on Tour of Orient to Sail on Ship Flying a Foreign Flag

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.

THE National Merchant Marine Association has telegraphed Kenesaw Mountain Landis, urging him to ask the American baseball players to take American ship on the barnstorming tour of the Orient. It appears that the Americans have reservations on a foreign flag ship from Vancouver to Yokohama, though the President Madison sails from Seattle and the President Cleveland from San Francisco about the same time.

Both the American boats are well stocked with ginger ale, lemon soda, grape juice and near-beer—and, if the ice cream bar is ready by sailing time, will offer nut sundaes as well,

Under these circumstances the association would like to know why the ballplayers overlook the American liners.

VETERAN JOCKEY AFTER HONORS AT HAWTHORNE

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 11.—Youth and age hooked up in a riding duel at Hawthorne track yesterday—the one personified in 17-year-old Eddie Petzholdt and the other in the 34-year-old veteran Johnny Nederisand, as usual, youth got the call. Petzholdt, most successful rider of the meeting, steered home two winners and three second place horses in the five races in which he had mounts.

Kederis, who has been riding as if with renewed youth, got to the wire in front twice, finished barely in the money once and had three horses which took mud from the heels of others all around the deluge course. Petzholdt's two victories gave him a total of 14 for the meeting and the revivified veteran of all the good and bad tracks in America ran his string to nine.

HAGEN AND BARNES ARE BEATEN BY BRITISH STARS

By the Associated Press.

PELHAM-MANOR, N. Y., Oct. 11.—George Duncan and Abe Mitchell, British professional golf stars, yesterday defeated Watler Hagen, British open champion, and Jim Barnes, former American title holder, 5 up and 3 to play, in a 36-hole exhibition match over the links of the Pelham Country Club. Admission proceeds for the match were turned over to the benefit of the Pelham Summer Home for Cardiac Children.

Burton, Aggies' Star Halfback, to Miss Piker Game

Injury to Side Will Keep Player Out — Bachman's Eleven Uses Forward Pass.

By the Associated Press.

MANHATTAN, Kan., Oct. 11.—Getting ready for the first Missouri Valley Conference contest of the present season, Coach Charles Bachman's Aggies are putting just a little more time into signal practice and scrimmage and executing plays with just a little more care than previously in preparation for the game with Washington University at St. Louis, Saturday.

The Wildcats will not have the services of Ding Burton, star right halfback and important link in the much-feared Aggie forward passing combination, at St. Louis. Burton received a painful injury to his side in the Washington game, which will keep him out of the game two weeks. Clements, a backfield man, who has been on the hospital list for the last 10 days, and Brandley are probable candidates to replace Burton against the Pikers.

Scout Ted Curtiss, who observed the Washington-Rolla game, in which the Pikers won, 14—6, reported possible concealed strength on the part of the Pikers. The Aggie mentors figure that Washington was saving its strength for the Aggie game, recalling the 21-0 drubbing handed them at Manhattan last year.

The Aggies have reason to be chesty over the 47-0 victory against Washburn. Their early season form was the best evidenced for many years. The forward pass worked well, all four ends, two quarterbacks and four halfbacks used in the game employing it with good results. The Wildcats kept Washburn from completing a single first down.

There is still much doubt as to what impression Bachman's charges would make upon a team more nearly equal to them in football brains and ability. They ran down the Ichabods ruthlessly, with splendid self-confidence and finish. Minus their tendency to foul and fumble, the Aggies will present a real danger to the laurels of any one of the conference teams which they will meet between now and Thanksgiving.

The Playing of the Yankees in the Late Series Was Enough to Drive the Colonels Nutty

Rules Committee Explains the Play After Touchdown

Try for Point Must Be by Any One of Three Methods and Play Can't Be Converted.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—Football officials in games played throughout the country have given such conflicting interpretations of the two important changes in the rules, inaugurated this year, one of which changes radically the scoring system of the game, that the Rules Committee of the American Intercollegiate Football Association has issued a statement in an attempt to clear the situation.

Most of the trouble is over the new rule 10, which is designed to change the play after a touchdown is made from a try for a goal from a place kick, to a "try for point," through one of three methods. Some teams, electing to "try for point" by kicking goal, have claimed the point when the kick failed but one of their men recovered the ball and rushed it behind the opposing goal.

In some instances referees and other officials have erroneously upheld the contention, E. E. Hall, chairman of the Rules Committee, said in issuing the statement. Hall pointed out that a team having chosen to "try for point" by kicking, lost when the kick failed, and the instant it did fail the play automatically was ended. The new rule, he added, does not permit the conversion of a play.

Rule Specifies "One."

"Rule 10," says the statement, "provides that a team which has made a touchdown may add one additional point to its score by successfully executing in a single play any one of the following:

"By a goal from field; by completing a forward pass in the end; or by carrying the ball across the line.

"The words any 'one' are significant and should be liberally construed. Accordingly, should such team attempt to kick a goal and the attempt be blocked by the defenders of the goal, the play ends then and there. The ball is dead and any attempt to recover and rush the ball across the goal line is useless."

The remainder of the confusion is over the new rule regarding substitutes (rule 3, section) which provides that "a player who has been withdrawn from the game during the first half may return at any time during the second half. A player withdrawn during the second half may not return to the game."

The Rule on Subtsitutes.

Concerning it, Hall's statement says:

"While this rule does not in terms refer to a player who finished the first half but was withdrawn during the intermission between the two halves, the purpose of the rule is clear and there is no reason why such a player should not be allowed to return to the game any time during the second half."

The new "try-for-point" rule will make the spectators' seats near the two goal lines very attractive, once the coaches and the public come to realize the significance of the idea, said Hall. It enabled an attacking team to use any possible trick play which it would not otherwise attempt, because of the impossibility of losing the ball.

In "the try for point" a team has a point to gain, but nothing to lose.

AUBURN ON WAY EAST FOR BATTLE WITH ARMY

By the Associated Press.

AUBURN, Ala., Oct. 11.—Confident of victory, the Auburn Tigers today are en route to West Point for their clash with the Army Saturday. The game will mark Auburn's first invasion of the Northland, and during the past few weeks Coach Mike Donahue is said to have rounded out one of the best football teams the Alabamans have sent forth to conflict in recent years.

BRITTON EASY WINNER IN BOUT WITH KELLY

By the Associated Press.

HAVANA Oct. 11.—Jack Britton, the welterweight champion, last night easily defeated Jimmy Kelly of New York in a 12-round decision bout here. Although Britton landed almost at will his blows failed to do much damage to his opponent. Kelly was unable to score a telling blow throughout the fight. Britton's weight was announced as 149 pounds and Kelly's as 149½.

Paterson's All-Star Soccer Team Expects to Reach National Final

Eleven Made Up of Crack Players From Todds and Other Eastern Clubs Regarded as Likely Contender for Championship Now Held by the Scullins of St. Louis.

By John E. Wray,
Sport Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—Meet Mr. Adolph Buslik, lads. He says he wants to know you—all of you who are soccer players and fans. He adds that before long you St. Louis rooters will all know him.

That will be when the Scullins, the Millers or whichever St. Louis soccer football team survives to this year's national championship final, encounters Buslik's eleven for the Unietd States cup.

Mr. Buslik is Semitic. He doesn't care who knows it. He thinks a transfusion of his racial pecularities into the Scotch-Irish-United States circulatory system of American football matters will make its business policy brighten up like the face of a new dollar. And it's dollars to rubles that Mr. Buslik is correct in this particular. As to his claim that he and his men must be eliminated from the football final before St. Louis can repeat, let us look around.

The Todds football eleven broke up, following its defeat by the Scullins in the title final, last spring. It wasn't the shock of defeat that smashed it. Nor yet was it the defection of Harry Ratican, the crack center forward, now with Fall River, and coach of the West Point soccer team. It was just because the Todds' promoters weakened on the soccer proposition.

Acquires Paterson Franchise.

So, enter Buslik of New York. Mr. Buslik is a sportsman. "Bullets" Tom Cahill says so; and when a Cahill vouches for a Buslik, there must be either a high personal regard or a low U. S. F. A. treasury. Take your pick. In any case Buslik has taken over the Paterson, N. J., franchise and park and most of the Todd players of last year, as the nucleus of the team with which he hopes to win the championship.

To this nucleus he has added the pick of other clubs and it is a line up truly worth consideration. Here it is in full, as given to me by Buslik himself, with each player's former affiliation:

	Position.	For. Team.
Pete Renzulli	Goal	Todds
Joe Reynolds	Right back	J. and P. Coates
Will Whitehead	Left back	Todds
Jim Scott	Right half	Third Lanarks
Will Freyer	Center half	Todds
Will Herd	Left half	N. Y. F. C.
Tommy Dugan	Outside right	N. Y. F. C.
John McGuire	Inside right	Todds
J. Hemingsley	Center	Harrison F. C.

One might think that, as eight out of 14 of this squad are former Todds, and the Scullins whipped the Todds last year, the Patersons would be more than half whipped before they began.

But again it's different. The additions Buslik has made to fill in the team make this a formidable eleven. There are only four American-born players of the combination—Renzulli, Reynolds, Dugan and Hemingsley, but they are real stars.

Defeated Fall River Rovers.

This team received a real test a few days ago when it played the New Fall River team and gave it a sound trimming. It is true that the Fall Rivers were without the services of Ratican that day; but Ratican is slipping—Buslik is authority for the statement. The verdict of the Fall River newspapers was this, after the game: "The Rovers (Fall River) were completely outplayed by the strong Paterson combination."

All of which should serve to put the local clubs on their guard and prevent them from believing they have a monopoly of soccer football ability in this country. St. Louis has all American born soccer players and it plays American style. St. Louis club-builders should make sure that no weak representative of the city falls before any imported talent, thus lessening the value of American tactics.

In this connection there is another point to be watched—Bethlehem has gone back to Bethlehem and to its old tactics—that of importing foreign football players. Bethlehem has not cut any considerable figure for several seasons and that is not to the liking of Mr. H. Edgar Lewis, who represents the Bethlehem company. He wants a winner or nothing. It was he who first found out Ratican and took him away from St. Louis. This time Bethlehem has gone to Europe for a team to conquer St. Louis. If you doubt it, here is his brand-new stars for the coming year with the teams they represented last season:

John McFarlane, Partick Thistles team, Glasgow, Scotland.

Daniel McNiven, Partick Thistles, Glasgow, Scotland.

John Rattray, Raith Rovers, Scotland.

Frederick Faulds, Reterskill, Scotland.

Robert Terris, Liverpool Football Club.

Thomas Raeside, King's Park Sterling (England).

John Young, Dundee Hibernians (Scotland).

Malcolm Goldie, Clydebank, Scotland.

Besides these he has William Forrest of the old Bethlehem team, William A. Highfield, imported from abroad the year before, and several others from last year's team (known as the Philadelphia Football Club).

The quality of this imported football talent is not fully known here. But it is certain that the Partick Thistles, from which two players came, is in the first division Scottish league, and that Terris comes from the team that won the British championship, Liverpool.

MANAGER FOLEY SEEKS NEW OUTSIDE RIGHT

The opening of the St. Louis Soccer League season at High School Field Sunday will find two teams in the process of rebuilding.

The Scullins, winners of the national championship last season, will take the field without the services of Cliff Brady, star forward, who was injured in a baseball game two weeks ago. The Barrett Hoover, formerly the DeAndreis, are seeking an outside right to replace Gerd Kehrman who is out of the city.

Manager Billy Foley has sent out an appeal to all soccerites who would aspire to the outside right position to gather with the Barrett Hoovers on Grounds 4 a Fairground Park Saturday afternoon for a practice workout.

George Hand, Foley's substitute outside right of last season, has signed with the Gillespie team. The return to the game of Matt Diedericksen gives Foley a surplus of forwards, but none of the squad is an outside right.

Yale Crippled For Iowa Game

Four Stars, Including Jordan, May Not Play Saturday.

By Davis J. Walsh.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—The old and time-honored "wolf cry," a piteous, heartfelt bleat, has gone out from under the New Haven elms, where they had a regular he-man football team until a few days ago. The team, so it now appears, is club-footing its way about the Yale bowl on crutches and most certainly is in a deplorable state.

Of course, this has nothing whatever to do with the fact that Tad Jones' Yale eleven is to play Howard Jones' Iowa outfit in the big bowl on Saturday. The date is without significance. The boys have merely gone and got themselves injured at an inconvenient moment and Yale, perforce, cannot expect too much from them at this time.

Perhaps Yale is not "wolfing" at all. It may be that Jordan, O'Hearn, Becket, Miller and the rest of them are too badly hurt to play or bruised and battered just enough so that Ted Jones does not care to take a chance with them against a hardy foe in the early season.

Believe us, if Yale starts the team that is now playing as the 'varsity, Iowa State will go back to its home with the victory. It has seven veterans of the original eleven that rushed through the Western Conference to the title last year, and although the departed ones are none other than the two Devines, Slater and Belding, the end; Howard Jones has developed some good men to fill in the vacancies.

Perkins, a high school star of 1920, is attempting to fill Aubrey Devine's all-American shoes at quarterback. It is a large order, but Perkins is doing well and has won the place over Shuttleworth, second string quarter last year.

Belding's place at one of the wings has gone to Hancock, who packs 195 pounds on the hoof and can beat 11 seconds for a hundred yards. A piano-mover type of football player, name Engledinger, weight 210 pounds, has caught on in the tackle position of the famous Slater.

DREYFUSS INTIMATES SCHMIDT WILL BE TRADED

By the Associated Press.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Oct. 11.—President Dreyfuss of the Pittsburg National League Baseball Clum, intimated today that Catcher Walter Schmidt may not be with the Pirates next season. There have been rumors that Schmidt may be sold or traded. He and Dreyfuss have been at loggerheads for two seasons, chiefly because of Schmidt's salary demands.

Pikers to Hold Net Event.

The Washington University student tennis tournament will open Thursday afternoon. There will be events in both singles and doubles. A large entry is expected and the winners and finalists will be considered as likely prospects for the varsity tennis team. Last year the student tournament attracted an entry of 47 players in the singles and 14 teams in the doubles. There will be a new title holder as Charles Sauselle, last year's winner, has been graduated.

WEIL, HUSKY LINEMAN, REPORTS AT WASHINGTON; KURRUS HELPS COACHES

Paul Weil, husky line candidate at Washington, who has been on the sick list for the last 10 days, reported for action yesterday. The former Soldan star scrimmaged with the second team. He may be used for part of the game against the Kansas Aggies Saturday. Coach Rider now has Weil Volland, Morton, Gould and Kurrus to choose from to fill his right guard position, Gragg satisfactorily filling the place at left.

The varsity team had a long workout, but no scrimmage. Practicing of new plays, rehearsing old ones and running signals took up most of the time. Schnaus and Greene did a lot of booting from placement, while Thumser, Greene and Lyle punted.

Bill Fries at center looked good, and Coach Rider is confident that the southpaw will be able to relieve Cantwell whenever necessary. Volland at guard showed strength on the defense and will probably see action with the regulars Saturday.

The Piker coaching staff now numbers four. In addition to Coach Rider and Assistant Coaches Applegran and Davis, Ollie Kurrus is devoting his time every afternoon to coaching his former team mates

All seats for Saturday's game will be reserved and in addition to the concrete stands, bleachers are being erected on the north and west sides of Francis Field.

FRANK CHANCE TO BUY CLUB IS RUMOR IN EAST

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—Reports that Frank Chance, former Chicago Cub star and manager, and Barney Oldfield, wealthy automobile race driver, were contemplating the purchase of a baseball club in the East were heard here during the world series.

The pair sat together at the Polo Grounds and were said later to have conferred with some of the major league club owners regarding their plans.

Chicago Teams Have Hopes.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 11.—Chicago Nationals and Americans still held hope today of getting through their city series before too much opposition from the onrushing football season. Rained out four successive days, the clubs expected today, weather permitting, to stage the third game at White Sox Park. Each club has won one game. Four victories will decide the series.

Football Practice in Mud.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 11.—If Big Ten football teams are destined to play in the mud next Saturday, the weather thus far this week has given them plenty of opportunity to accustom themselves to a slippery ball and soggy footing. Rains which have been general throughout the Western conference have compelled the teams to resort to anti-skid practice. Downpours failed to stop regular drills during the forepart of the week.

DEMAND BROADER IN ACTIVE TRADE ON STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—The Evening Post, in its copyrighted financial review today, says:

"Trading on the Stock Exchange today continued in large volume and the tendency of prices was in the main toward higher levels. The demand for stocks covered a broader field than during recent sessions and, while a few of high priced industrial issues continued to climb, this feature of the market was les sonsuicuous. For the first time since the September break in stock prices, the standard railroad issues displayed a considerable degree of activity at somewhat higher prices. The bond market was steady, although the long-term Liberty issues were slightly lower. Call money was in greater supply than was the case earlier in the week and, although the renewal rate was fixed at 5½ per cent, call money was quoted at 5 per cent about noon and during the last hour of trading the rate was again lowered to 4½ per cent.

"The foreign exchanges were sronger, and it was evident that the market had reached an oversold condition in the trading of previous days and that the discounting o fthe effects of the unfavorable situation in the Near East had been carried somewhat too far. Although commercial bills were not in active demand, sterling moved up ⅝ of a cent to $4.43½, indicating that the heavy sellers were being driven to cover. French francs also were up 3 points to 7.57 cents, and lire were up 2 points at 4.28 cents. German marks at .03⅞ of a cent recovered ¼ of a point. Most of the other continental exchanges also registered gains, and the South American currencies were likewise strong.

Steel Industry Situation.

"While transportation is still the governing factor in the steel industry, an increase in production during the past week indicates that all rail conditions are improving. Today the Steel Corporation and the leading independents are operating at slightly over 70 per cent of capacity, according to the Iron Age, which is considerably higher than the September average, and in spite of lack of cars for moving finished steel from the mills more blast furnaces have been blown in. Prices, meanwhile, are somewhat easier. The gain in unfilled orders of the Steel Corporation last month, it is pointed out, correspond closely to the corporation's share in rail orders taken before Oct. 1 when the higher price scale became effective. Car building continues to be a feature."

Standard Oil of N. J. to Disburse 400 Pct. Stock Dividend.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—The most important item in today's financial news did not become known until some time after the close of the markets. This was the proposed increase from $110,000,000 to $625,000,000 in the capital of the Standard Oil of New Jersey and the subsequent payment to shareholders of a 400 per cent dividend in stocks.

COTTON CLOSES HIGHER AFTER NARROW RANGE

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—What appeared to be a final settlement of the perplexing Turkish problem had a stimulating effect today on sentiment in English cotton circles, while prices abroad advanced about a quarter of a cent at one time, bringing an average gain of 20 points in New York, trading as a whole continued to show the general quieting down noticeable through the day's session.

Both hedge selling and speculative realizing resulted on the upturn, supplying just enough contracts to offset the trade demand. Character of mill buying, in its expansion to a scale that has absorbed contracts from an extensive profit taking movement without material recessions, attracted general attention. With all dry goods reports reflecting an upward trend in prices as well as a wider distribution and spot advices indicating a firm basis in the South there was nothing in the outlook to change sentiment.

A general feeling that on a basis of the market might be called upon to supply more cotton, had its effect on some operators. This did not mean a belief in any radical change in the course of prices, but merely that a resting spell would not be an unnatural development of the situation under the circumstances. There were not many contracts wanted for trade interests on scale orders to encourage selling. On every occasion houses with mill conections had buying orders in May to execute, it was said.

Evidence of the rapidity with which cotton has matured and been picked was furnished by the weekly weather summary. The Texas crop is reported virtually all picked. In Georgia only a few scattered fields remain ungathered. This explains why very little attention is paid to the question of frost, which, in an average season, becomes a decided market factor at this date.

The proximity of the holiday probably influenced fluctuations to some extent during today's trading. Evidently there was a disposition to even up scattering accounts over tomorrow's adjournment and the possibility of developments of one sort or another while the markets on this side are closed probably restricted fresh ventures.

The market remained very quiet during the middle of the afternoon with December holding around 21.83c, or about 15 points net higher at 2 o'clock.

Fluctuations were mostly within a 15-point range throughout the day, market finally closing at an advance of about 15 points. December closed 21.86c to 21.88c; March closed 21.84c.

New Orleans Spot Cotton.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 11.—Spot cotton steady. Quotations revised. Sales on the spot, 612; to arrive, 688. Low middling, 21.03c; middling, 21.13c; good middling, 21.88c. Receipts, 9076; stock, 161,[illegible]. Futures closed steady at net advance of 10 to 19 points.

Wall Street News and Comment

—SPECIAL DAILY—

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—Lower quotations for high-grade investment bonds of the type legal for savings banks prevailed today. Price losses were in most cases only fractional, but large blocks were available to anyone who cared to bid. Atchison General 4s sold at 89⅛ early in the day. At this price they were nearer the low than the high of the year to date. The high for the year was 93⅛, reached on July 15, and the low was 80 on Jan. 4. Union Pacific 4s sold down to 91. The high for the year was 96⅝ on July 14 and the low 86 on Jan. 4. These two bonds were fairly representative of the market for this class of security. Other high-grade issues in supply included Atlantic Coast Line 4s, Northern Pacific 3s and to a less degree United States Steel sinking fund 5s. Whether this measures the competition of the new Government loan or whether it indicates greater demand for money for commercial purposes cannot be said. In some quarters predictions of a higher current charge for money are freely made.

Outside of the high-grade issues the market was irregular with second-grade and speculative bonds doing somewhat better than yesterday. St. Louis San Francisco issues were all active. Toledo, St. Louis & Western 4s advanced. Union Bag and Paper 6s and Western Union 6½s went higher in the early trading. United States Rubber 5s and American Smelting & Refining 5s were lower.

Liberty Bonds were irregular but generally lower. A return of 4¼ per cent for 25 years on an obligation of the U. S. Government, it must be admitted, is not likely to be duplicated for a long time to come, was the way one comment put it. Foreign bonds were firm and in most cases higher. An interesting development was the decision of the directors of United States Realty to offer to their stockholders a new issue of preferred stock the proceeds to be devoted to the retirement of the outstanding debenture bonds. The bonds are redeemable at 105.

Day in Stock Market.

The most important item in today's financial news did not become known until some time after the close of the markets. This was the proposed increase from $110,000,000 to $625,000,000 in the capital of the Standard Oil of New Jersey and the subsequent payment to shareholders of a 400 per cent dividend in stocks.

How far this extraordinary gratuity has been measured by the 50-point rise within the last fortnight remains to be seen. But this action by the N. J. company throws the other Standard Oil disbursements of the last week quite in the shade.

The stock market closed irregularly but for the most part steady, with Standard of N. J. and Studebaker in particular demand.

Speculative imagination which has been conjuring up stock dividends involving the splitting up of capital account, was naturally stimulated by the big stock distribution announced overnight by the National Biscuit Co., followed by a similar declaration this morning by the American Radaitor Co. Both of these actions had been foreshadowed and pretty well discounted by the extensive rise which their stocks have had during the last few weeks.

• • •

Mexican Petroleum.

More fireworks in Mexican Pete and Pan-American today, carrying the former above 200, once again brought forth the usual crop of wild rumors regarding both companies.

• • •

Industrial Alcohol.

Talk of a contract with one of the big Standard Oil units for its entire fuel alcohol output was one of the reasons behind the sharp advance today in the shares of the United States Industrial Alcohol Co.

• • •

National Lead.

With interest in possible stock distributions stimulated anew by the big dividend on National Biscuit, the street today picked out National Lead as another company which might possibly be doing some melon cutting before long. This was the theory back of the rise in the stock.

Financial Notes.

Stockholders of the Stutz Motor Car Co. will hold a special meeting Nov. 1 to vote on an issue of $1,500,000 fifteen-year 7½ per cent convertible sinking fund gold debentures, of which it is intended to issue $1,000,000.

Michigan Drop Forge Co. today declared the regular monthly dividend of 25 cents per share on common and an extra of 23 cents, both payable Nov. 1 to stockholders of record Oct. 25.

• • •

F. W. Woolworth Company.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—Directors of the F. W. Woolworth Co. today declared a regular quarterly dividend of $2 on the common stock and $1.75 on the preferred. They also voted to call for retirement on Feb. 3, 1923, all of the outstanding 7 per cent cumulative preferred stock at 125, which will require approximately $11,470,000, all of which will be provided from cash on hand.

OIL SHARES ARE QUIETER ON NEW YORK CURB

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—Oil shares on the Curb Exchange were quieter today than on any day since the beginning of the recent upward movement, with price changes confined to narrow limits in comparison with the violent upward swing of the last two weeks.

Declaration of the regular quarterly dividend of $3 per share on Gillette Safety Razor was announced and this stock made a new top at 250.

The Way to Save

Partial Payments

6% to 7% Interest

Thousands of men and women are now laying the foundation of future independence by the purchase of safe First Mortgage bonds on Partial Payments. Are you insuring your future happiness in this easy and practical way?

Our plan is unusually simple and liberal. You select one or more of our bonds, in any amount up to $1,000 and pay down 10% of the purchase price. After nine more equal payments you are the owner of a sound investment returning 6% to 7%. And on every one of your ten payments you draw full interest from the time it is made.

There are other interesting features of this plan. Write for "Circular A" which describes it, and for our leaflet, "Facts about Peabody, Houghteling & Co."

Grain prices closed strong on the Merchants' Exchange today after recovering from an opening setback. Liverpool closed ⅛d off after ⅛d higher start. Wheat was sold first on the peace news from Turkey and later bought partly on same account. Estimate on world supplies, report of mill buying and firmness of corn on reported export demand also were factors.

In the local cash grain market red winter wheat was 1c to 2c higher, with hard wheat a full 2c higher. There was good milling and export demand. Cash corn was 1c to 2c higher and strong. Receipts were light. Cash oats were ½c to 1½c higher on good demand.

The three Northwestern markets combined today had 2757 cars of wheat, compared with 3038 a week ago. Minneapolis today receiving 448 cars, Duluth 522 and Winnipeg 1787.

Local wheat receipts, which were 127,200, compared with 152,400 a week ago, included 47 cars local and 59 cars through. Corn receipts, which were 67,600, compared with 102,700 a week ago, included 42 cars local and 10 through. Oats receipts, which were 60,000, compared with 50,000 a week ago, included 23 cars local and 7 through. Hay receipts were 78 tons local and 34 through.

Primary receipts of wheat were lighter than a week ago, being 1,882,000 bushels. Corn receipts were lighter than a week ago, being 1,249,000 bushels. Oats receipts were heavier than a week ago, being 917,000 bushels.

Sales of cash grain today were: No. 2 red winter wheat, $1.19@1.20; No. 3 red winter wheat, $1.16@1.18; No. 4 red winter wheat, $1.13@1.15; No. 5 red winter wheat, $1.08; sample grade red winter wheat, $1.07@1.20; No. 3 red garlicky wheat, $1.10; sample grade red garlicky wheat, $1.11; No. 2 hard wheat, $1.14; No. 3 hard wheat, $1.13; No. 2 yellow hard wheat, $1.14; No. 3 yellow hard, $1.13; sample grade yellow hard wheat, $1.13; No. 3 dark hard wheat, $1.22; No. 2 mixed wheat, $1.12.

CHICAGO, Oct. 11.—A strong bull movement developed in the wheat market after the first 30 minutes of trading. The volume of business was the largest in weeks and there was a broader outside interest. There were no new developments in the situation, but the bull side obtained a leader and assumed more aggressive tactics. Peace in the Near East and lower cables caused a decline in prices at the start. On the dip the bulls picked up the wheat, adopting a slogan of "peace and prosperity," and as prices responded shorts became frightened. Some selling of May developed around $1.10, but this was insufficient to check the advance more than temporarily. Near positions of wheat are developing strength because of a shortage occasioned by a car shortage. Premiums in the local market were unchanged, but at Minneapolis premiums were 1c to 2c higher. An increase of 25,500,000 bushels in the world's available supply last week, reported by Bradstreets, was without effect.

Wheat closed ⅝ to 1⅛c higher, Dec., $1.08⅝ to ⅞; May, $1.10¼ to ⅝; July $1.03⅛.

The action of corn was the same as in wheat. Prices started lower, but shorts became frightened when wheat rallied and covered, and later the buying power broadened materially. Offerings tightened up. Exporters are bidding strong premiums for cash corn in near positions and spot premiums were quarter cent to half cent better. Receipts were smaller.

CORN was ⅝c to ⅞c higher, Dec. 62⅝c to ⅞c; May, 64⅝c to ⅞c; July 64⅝c.

Oats were affected by the action of other markets. Trade was not large. Cash situation is stronger with premiums higher.

OATS were unchanged to ⅝c higher; Dec. 39⅝c; May 40c; July 38⅝c to ½c.

October liquidation gave provisions a heavy tone. Lower hogs also had a depressing effect.

Today's Dry Goods Market.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—There was no sign of waning strength in the market for cotton cloths today. Demand for the standard print cloths was strong and while nominally quotations for 64x60s and 68x72s was regarded at 9¼ and 10¼, respectively, many sellers were holding out for increases. Sheetings also were well supported with slight improvement in quotations on some descriptions. Mills making cotton and silk mixtures are well booked into next year, it was reported. Osnasbergs and sateens continued active. Awning duck manufacturers are expected to announce spring prices this week in some cases. The silk market was fairly steady, but activity in trading was less marked. Quotations on canton 20-22s were off 5c a pound with a 2½c drop in Kansai No. 1.

New York Sugar.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—The early raw sugar market was firmer and refiners were bidding 3⅝c for nearby Cubas cost and freight equal to 540 for centrifugal with holders asking ⅛c more.

The market for refined sugar was firmer owing to the advance in raws and prices were advanced 15 points by most of the local refiners to the basis of 6.75c for fine granulated. A better inquiry was reported for both domestic and export account.

Sugar futures closed irregular approximate sales, 30,700 tons; Oct., 3.60c; Dec., 3.54c; March, 3.16c; May, 3.20c.

London Wool Auction.

LONDON, Oct. 11.—The wool auction sales opend firm yesterday with offerings of 10,279 bales. There was a large attendance. Compared with last series, close merinos advanced 5 to 10 per cent, cross-breds and fine combing, 10 per cent; medium, 7 to 12 per cent, and other grades were unchanged at 5 per cent dearer. There was active home and continental buying.

HOG OFFERINGS HEAVY AND PRICES DECLINE

NATIONAL STOCKYARDS, Ill., Oct. 11.—Receipts today, estimated: Cattle, 6000; hogs, 12,500; sheep, 2500; horses and mules, 200.

CATTLE—A moderate offering found steady to strong sale, with the strength applying to some classes of butcher stock. Trains were late and numerous consignments were not included in these sales. Quality of the offering graded medium to common, with only a few loads of well-finished steers or yearlings represented.

Quotations: Best corn-fed steers and yearlings, high, $12.25; bulk, $10 to $11; native grass steers, bulk, $6 to $7.50; western grass steers, bulk, $4 to $6.50, butcher cows, bulk, $3.50 to $5.75; cutter cows, bulk, $2.75 to $3.25; canner cows, bulk, $2.35 to $2.50; heavy beef bulls, bulk, $4 to $4.50; bologna bulls, bulk, $3.50 to $4.25; stocker and feeder steers, range, $3.50 to $7.25.

HOGS—Receipts fair in volume at 12,500 head and there was a carry-over of 6000, making the aggregate supply 18,500 hogs, a heavy offering. Buyers were again bearish and the best butcher hogs 180 pounds and up sold mainly $9.60@9.80, ranging 10@15c lower than early Tuesday. Pigs and lights were generally 15@25c under yesterday's best time. Hogs from 150 to 170 pounds sold at a wide range of $8.75@9.50; from 130 to 150 lbs market was largely $8.25@8.75. Under 130 prices showed a range of $7@8. Packer sows lower, heavies and mediums selling largely at $7.50@7.75 and lights at $8. Stags $6@7. Market very slow at the decline.

SHEEP—Sheep and lamb market ruled steady with Tuesday. Buying on a fairly active basis. Best native lambs going to city butchers were quotable up to $13, while packers held their high bids down to $12.75, a figure identical with that of yesterday. Sheep continued to sell at $5.75.

HORSES AND MULES—The horse market averages steady to strong for the three days this week, with improvement centering largely on smooth, fat Southerners. Receipts were moderate, the commission offering comprising over 500 natives and more than 100 Western consignments. Mules, under a commission run of 1000 for the three days, vary from steady to slightly easier.

Livestock Elsewhere

CHICAGO, Oct. 11 (United States Department of Agriculture).—Cattle—Receipts, 13,000; beef steers rather slow; mostly steady; liberal share of run still back; early top matured beef steers, $12.75; some held higher; best yearlings, $12.35; bulk beef steers of quality and condition to sell at $9@11.25; better grades beef cows and heifers strong; veal calves strong to shade higher; other grades and classes largely steady; supply of Western grassers moderate.

Hogs—Receipts, 19,000; lighter weights, 10c to 20c lower; packing sows steady; bulk, 170 to 220 lb. averages, $9.60@9.75; few choice, 225 to 250 lb. butchers, $9.80@9.85; top, $9.85, one load; bulk packing sows, $7.75@8.25; desirable pigs around $8.85; heavy, $8.75@8.90; medium, $9.55@9.75; light, $9.35@9.75; light light, $9@9.35; packing sows, smooth, $7.90@8.50; do rough, $7.35@8; killing pigs, $8.50@8.90.

SAYS MRS. HARRIS WAS "KEPT BY GAMBLER"

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—The first witnesses were examined yesterday before Municipal Justice Spiegelberg in connection with the annulment proceedings of Beverly D. Harris, former vice president of the National City Bank, against his wife.

One of the witnesses declared Mrs. Harris was the former "kept woman of Eli Raynor, a notorious Memphis gambler."

"I am absolutely positive," he said when cross-examined. "Emphatically!"

The witness, Eugene R. Avery, testified that he kept a photographic supply store in Memphis; that he has known Eli Raynor for 15 years to be a notorious Memphis gambler; that between 1910 and 1912 Eli Raynor occupied the two floors above the photograph store with Ella Lee, and that this Ella Lee is now Mrs. Beverly D. Harris.

"How do you know Ella Lee and Mrs. Harris are the same?" he was asked.

"I went to room 1731 at the Biltmore last Thursday," he replied, "and there I recognized her and talked with her. I told her I was the one who kept the store below her for two years in Memphis and she said: 'Oh, then you are the kodak man.'"

Caruthers Ewing, counsel for Harris, pointed out that the whole annulment proceedings now hang on this one point: "Was Mrs. Beverly D. Harris, formerly Ella Lee—such that she was guilty of fraud, which Mr. Harris has only lately discovered, when she represented herself as a respectable woman in Houston, Tex., in 1915, and soon after married him in St. Louis? She has already denied under oath in her affidavits that she was Ella Lee."

The second witness was put on the stand to show, according to attorney for Harris, "that not only was Mrs. Harris a common woman before she married him, but she has never ceased to be one—that as recently as last May she was with a man at the Hotel Chisca in Memphis even after this litigation had been started."

The witness, a negro waiter, Sam Campbell, testified that on the morning of May 6, he served breakfast to Mrs. Harris and an unidentified man at the Chisca, and he then identified a breakfast check for a grape fruit, rolls, tea and cereal, signed "B. D. Harris."

"She signed that," he said.

In reference to the application for $40,000 counsel fees and $25,000 expenses which Mrs. Harris has just made in the Supreme Court, Ewing replied for Harris that his wife's wild extravagance before he left had driven him into practical bankruptcy, and that now, although she says she is penniless, he learns that she is spending about $400 a month living at the Biltmore and that her bills are always paid in cash.

In reply, counsel for Mrs. Harris announce that they intend to apply for a trial by jury and that "the trial will be a long one and bitterly fought."

WEISENBURGER INSTALLED AS HEAD OF ADVERTISING CLUB

Twenty-First Anniversary of Founding of Organization Observed at Banquet.

The twenty-first anniversary of teh organization of the Advertising Club of St. Louis was observed last night with a dinner at Hotel Statler, followed by the installation of officers and a program of speeches.

As is known, the slate of officers for the coming year had been agreed upon in advance by nominating committees and there was no opposition. The new officers are: President, Walter B. Weisenburger, assistant to the president of the National Bank of Commerce; first vice president, Frank W. Swann, of the Samuel Cupples Envelope Co.; second vice president, R. Fullerton Place, editor of the Mid-Continent Banker; third vice-president, Joseph P. Licklider of the D'Arcy Advertising Co.; secretary, George Gayou of the Advertising Slide Co.; and treasurer, Sam J. Keiffer, president of the Keiffer Drug Co.

Edward T. Hall, retiring president, reviewed the club's activities of the past year, stating that membersip had been increased from 600 to 800.

In his speech of acceptance, Weisenburger stressed the importance of advertising, not only to the firms advertised, but to the entire city. He said the future growth of the city will be in direct proportion to the agressiveness shown by the advertising methods of St. Louis firms.

AUTO DRIVER FINED $100 FOR LEAVING SCENE OF ACCIDENT

Eugene J. Moynihan, 20, Did Not Stop After Machine Struck Man, July 29.

Eugene J. Moynihan, 20 years old, was fined $100 after a jury had found him guilty in Circuit Judge Miller's court yesterday of feloniously leaving the scene of injury to Bud Jones, a negro, of 4032 Lucky street, run over by Moynihan's automobile at Whittier and Easton avenues, July 29.

Moynihan declared he did not know of the accident until he was arrested, but the policeman who took him in custody testified Moynihan had admitted knowledge of it. Another witness said he called after Moynihan, who turned and looked at Jones lying in the street and then sped on. Jones was unable to tell what struck him.

INCREASE SHOWN IN EXPENSES OF CITY

Costs for Past Half Year Were 331,467 More Than for Corresponding Period Last Year.

Expenditures of the St. Louis city government for the first six months of the fiscal year 1922-23 were $331,467.75 greater than for the same period last year, according to a statement compiled today by the Comptroller. Expenditures for the first half of this year, which closed last night, were $7,985,714.58, as compared with $7,654,246.93 for the same period last year.

The increase is due, in large measure, to additional expenditures in the Department of Parks and Recreation and the eleemosynary institutions, it was explained.

Expenditures in some of the departments listed in the compilation, with the increase over the same period a year ago, follow:

TRIAL BEGUN OF MAN WHO KILLED ESTRANGED WIFE

Woman Testifies Shot Was Fired After Clyde Sarver Asked Wife to Return to Him.

Trial of Clyde H. Sarver, 33 years old, of Cross Plains, Tex., on a charge of first degree murder in connection with the shooting of the wife, Mrs. Pearl Sarver, 24, on April 15 last, was started today in Circuit Judge Killoren's Court.

Mrs. Sarver, who had been separated from her husband for three months and was living with her father, John Gibbs, 2953 Cass avenue, was killed by Sarver when seated in a motor bus about to depart from the end of the Cherokee car line for Fenton, Mo. Sarver told the police after the shooting he had gone to Texas to work and his wife refused when he asked her to go there. He came to St. Louis to effect a reconciliation. He declared that he had not intended to shoot his wife, when he drew a revolver, but wanted to frighten her into returning with him. She was accompanied by her son, Clyde Jr., 5 years old.

Miss Amelia Kreienheder of High Ridge, Mo., a passenger in the bus, testified a shot was fired after she heard Mrs. Sarver refuse a request by Sarver that she return to him. Bryan McClain of Fenton, bus operator, testified Sarver left the bus with a revolver in his hand, then came back protesting the shooting was unintentional. Mrs. Sarver died in her husband arms, McClain said. Sarver attempted to escape, but was knocked down by bystanders and held until policemen arrived, McClain said.

THREE PAROLED FROM PRISON

All Were Sentenced in 1921 to Terms of Two or Three Years.

My the Associa'ed Press.

JEFFERSON CITY, Oct. 11.—Three prisoners were paroled today by Gov. Hyde as follows:

John C. Turner, who was convicted in Scott County in August, 1921, and sentenced to two years for forgery; John Prine, convicted Sept. 24, 1921, in Webster County, for felonious assault and sentenced to three years, and Leslie Lowe, convicted Oct. 5, 1921, in Iron County, and sentenced to two years. Lowe, it is said, was convicted on evidence of having passed a check which was stolen from a store in Ironton. The check was payable to A. J. Keith. An affidavit by Mrs. Keith, on which the parole was based, was to the effect Lowe did not cash the check. Turner's parole is effective today and the other two tomorrow.

City News in Brief

SAMUEL J. HAILS OF 1525 MARCUS avenue, looking for a room near Theresa and Bell avenues, last night, stopped two men of whom he made inquiries about the neighborhood. They took him to a house, he said, and one of them offered to give him lessons in sparring. While Hails was trying to ward off blows from the would-be fighter the second one pushed him to one side and both ran away. Hails said he missed his watch immediately thereafter.

A MAN WALKED INTO THE GROCERY of Morris Prevelleki, 214 South Sixth street, at 8:40 p. m. yesterday drew a revolver and ordered Prevelleki to a rear room, where the robber made him remain while he took $25 from the cash register and backed out of the place.

Prisoners Overpower Jailer.

PINE BLUFF, Ark., Oct. 11.—Three negro prisoners, one charged with murder, last night overpowered the jailer here, locked him with 15 other prisoners in a large cell and made their escape. As they left they fired several shots into the cell. No one was wounded.

BETHLEHEM'S PURCHASE OF LACKAWANNA FIRM COMPLETED

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—The Bethlehem Steel Corporation's purchase of the Lackawanna Steel Co. was completed yesterday.

The deal was closed formally by the Bethlehem board of directors in the forenoon, and in the afternoon the Lackawanna delivered instruments for passing title to all its properties in exchange for Bethlehem stock and cash, it was announced by President E. G. Grace of the Bethlehem corporation.

The Lackawanna company, he said, was arranging to deliver to its stockholders their pro rata share of Bethlehem securities and cash upon surrender of Lackawanna stock held by them, the exchanging process to begin about Oct. 27.

Grace declared there was no foundation for rumors that Bethlehem was negotiating for properties of the Midvale Steel and Ordnance Corporation, or any other steel-making concern.

U. S. NAMES LABOR DELEGATE

GENEVA, Oct. 11.—The State Department of the United States Government has nominated a member of the consulting commission of the International Labor Bureau, complying with the request of Albert Thomas of France, chief of the bureau.

The commission will investigate the problem of disinfection of wool and fur, and will study methods for the prevention of infection to workers and herds. In announcing that an American had been appointed, the reply stated that he would collaborate in a semiofficial consultive capacity. The appointment is favorably received here, inasmuch as the United States has adhered neither to the League of Nations nor to the International Labor Bureau. A complete refusal of the request was anticipated.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of our darling mother, Fredericka D. W. Pilger, who departed this life Oct. 11, 1917.

We cannot say, and we will not say
That she is dead; she is just away.
With a sweet smile and a wave of her hand
She has wandered into a happier land.
We think of her still as the same; we say

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

The Post-Dispatch reserves the right to reject any query. Personal and telephone calls, or answers by mail, cannot be given attention, except letters on medical questions of undoubted sincerity, when accompanied by stamped addressed envelope.

SALLIE.—Inquire of the Police Department concerning positions and rates of salaries.

HELEN.—It would take a letter about four weeks to reach St. Louis from China.

WILLING YOUNG MAN.—The paint shops from which you buy your paints will give you pointers and suggestions on all this work.

A READER.—To remove rust from nickel: First grease the articles well; after a few days, rub them with a rag charged with ammonia. If the rust spots persist, add a few drops of hydrochloric acid to the ammonia, rub and wipe off at once. Next rinse with water, dry, and polish with tripoli. There are oil dressings on the market for cleaning leather.

CONSTANT READER.—Missouri is abbreviated "Mo." in order to avoid confusion with Mississippi, the first four letters of which, also the first and last letters, being the same. Nothing appears in the history of the State as to the origin of the abbreviation, but a gazeteer published in 1835, only 15 years after admission of Missouri into the Union, gives Mo. as the abbreviation, while that of Mississippi was Mi. Supposition is that the order for use of "Mo." was issued by the Postoffice Department, and for the reason stated.

DAILY READER.—Dutch Apple cake recipe is: 1 cup scalded milk, 1-3 cup butter, 1-3 cup sugar, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 yeast cake, 2 eggs, 2¾ cups flour, melted butter, 5 sour apples, ¼ cup sugar, ½ teaspoon cinnamon, 2 tablespoons currants. Mix first four ingredients. When lukewarm add yeast cake, eggs unbeaten, and flour to make a soft dough. Cover, let rise, beat thoroughly, and again let rise. Spread in a buttered dripping pan as thinly as possible and brush over with melted butter. Pare, cut in eighths, and remove cores from apples. Press sharp edges of apples into the dough in parallel rows lengthwise of pan. Sprinkle with sugar mixed with cinnamon and sprinkle with currants. Cover, let rise, and bake in a moderate oven 30 minutes. Cut in squares and serve hot or cold with whipped cream sweetened and flavored.

INTERESTED.—The dome of the original Capitol building at Washington was constructed of wood, covered with copper. This was replaced in 1856 by the present structure of cast iron. The entire weight of iron used is 8,909,200 pounds. The dome is crowned by a bronze statue of Freedom, which is 19 feet 6 inches high and weighs 14,985 pounds. The height of the dome above the base line of the east front is 287 feet 5 inches. The height from the top of the balustrade of the building is 217 feet 11 inches. The greatest diameter at the base of the dome is 135 feet 5 inches. The rotunda is 97 feet 6 inches in diameter, and its height from the floor to the top of the canopy is 180 feet 3 inches. The Senate Chamber is 113 feet 3 inches in length, 80 feet 3 inches in width, and 36 feet in height. The galleries will accommodate 1000 persons. The Representatives' Hall is 139 feet in length, by 93 feet in width and 36 feet in height. The room now occupied by the Supreme Court was, until 1859, the Senate Chamber. The Capitol Building stands on a plateau 80 feet above the level of the Potomac. The entire length of the building from north to south is 751 feet 4 inches, the greatest dimension from east to west is 350 feet. The area covered by the building is 153,112 square feet.

LEGAL INFORMATION.

(By a Member of the St. Louis Bar Association.)

LIFE-TIME READER.—The employe cannot collect wages for the 2½ hours he waited for his pay, but can only collect wages due up to the time of his discharge.

S. M. C.—If the person in whose favor the draft was issued notifies the bank that he never received the draft and never endorsed it, the bank is legally justified in requiring an indemnity bond before paying the draft.

W. B. H.—You can put a mechanic's lien on the property, but whether you can "make it stick" is doubtful. If the amount involved is large enough to make it worth while, you should consult a lawyer.

L. U. R.—If you marry in another state before a divorce has been granted, your wife can have you prosecuted for bigamy. You cannot compel her to get a divorce, but can sue for one yourself if you think you are entitled to one.

MRS. C. M.—1. Whatever amount the Probate Court allows as the lawyer's fee will have to be paid by the estate. 2. The administrator is entitled to an allowance for his services. Five per cent of the amount disbursed is the fee usually received. 3. Taxes must be paid on personal property, such as cash, as well as on real estate.

PERPLEXED.—1. If the mortgage has been recorded you can obtain a copy from the Recorder of Deeds, but you will have to pay for it. 2. In our opinion you do not have to pay all the $122.50. You are entitled to a reduction in the interest and insurance charges proportionate to the time involved, or approximately five-sixths. 3. The present holder of the notes would foreclose, not the auto brokerage company. You should consult a lawyer on this case.

P. D.—The person cannot be compelled to pay the note which is lost unless B executes an indemnity bond to him, in at least double the amount of the note, with two securities, conditioned to indemnify the person paying the note against all claims by any other person or account of such note, and against all costs and expenses by reasons of such claims. As the amount in your case is large, it would be safer to demand such a bond before paying the note, assuming the note in your case was negotiable.

MEDICAL QUESTIONS.

Health and sanitation questions of public interest only will be considered. Diagnoses or treatment of individual cases will not be given.

B. D.—We advise a complete and careful physical examination. If your trouble is persistent there is a constitutional cause.

VICTIM.—The vaccines are the thing for you. They should not be discontinued. If no other arrangement can be made apply for admission to the city hospital.

PORXY.—We believe your chances for improvement are at least fair. You do not say whether or not a Wassermann was made and if so it's showing. If possible we advise anti-syphilitic treatment be pushed.

MURRAY.—We advise you continue the pills, they will not do you any harm. After taking regularly for some time you can cut the dose to 2 or even 1 for a long time. Without knowing the exact condition present we cannot say as to the cure excepting to state that a good many such cases have been cured.

C. C.—1. Baking soda is generally administered to correct hyperacidity of the stomach. It is detrimental if one persists in using it too long. 2. There is probably a catarrhal condition in the nose causing this trouble. Take equal parts of salt, sugar and cooking soda, mix it thoroughly. Of this mixture dissolve 1 teaspoon in a pint of water and use as a cleansing douche, afterward spray the nose with bland oil such as liquid vaseline or pineoleum oil.

X. X. X.—Blackheads which are mainly caused by a sluggish performance of the skin may be eliminated by the following stimulating ointment: 1 dram precipitated sulphur and 1 ounce of rose water made into an ointment and rubbed into the face at night. Another splendid application is as follows: 2 drams of vinegar, 3 drams glycerin, 4 drams of kalolini. This forms a soft paste to be spread over the face at night and if possible in the morning. When applied on the face the eyes should be kept shut on account of the pungency of the vinegar. It dissolves the plugs, so they can be gently expressed, care should be taken not to use too much force for fear of inflaming the skin.

MOTHER.—Hiccough is due to a spasm of the diaphragm. A tight-fitting abdominal bandage placed on the baby will frequently check this spasm. One drop of Hoffman's anodyne may be given every hour to a baby 1 year old, and every half hour to an older child. 2. To make barley water add 1 tablespoonful of pearl barley to 1 quart of cold water, boil 2 hours, adding water from time to time. Strain through muslin and add enough boiled water to make 1 quart. When the barley flour is used mix 2 tablespoons of the flour in a little cold water, add 1 quart of water and boil 15 minutes. Strain through muslin if there are any lumps, and add enough boiled water to make 1 quart.

Attention, Mr. Used Car Buyer!

We believe that you can buy a Used Automobile from us with the same confidence of honest value that you can a suit of clothes, a pair of shoes or other wearing apparel from any of the leading retailers of this city.

Our many years of experience, plus our facilities for serving the automobile public, together with the valued Studebaker franchise, makes this concern one where the buyers of the Used Automobile can safely place his confidence.

We cordially invite your inspection of the following—OUR SPECIALS for this week:

1922 Ford Coupe.
1921 Essex Touring.
1921 Studebaker Special 6 Touring.
1920 Dort Touring.
1921 Hudson Speedster.
1922 Buick Roadster.

We will give terms to please. Pay while you ride. Open evenings.

A DAILY DOUBLE PAG

"Bigger the Woman—Bigger Her Success"

"Fat Ones and Tall Ones," Says Head of New York League of Business and Professional Women, "Command Most Power and Inspire Most Confidence."

By FAY STEVENSON.

(Copyright, 1922.)

WHO is the successful business woman?

The "fat" or "big" woman or the little fluffy ruffles, baby type of woman?

When it comes to holding down a good fat job, rising to the head of your profession or being proprietor of an enterprising business, which woman has the advantage, the big woman or the little woman?

"The 'fat' woman or the tall woman every time," says Mrs. Elizabeth Sears, president of the New York League of Business and Professional Women. "It really is surprising what the big, portly, all-powerful woman can 'put over.'

"There is something about a big woman which commands attention at once. Her very physical stability lends force and strength to her character. She has a more natural poise and dignity, a better approach to people, usually a better understanding of them, and people seem to have confidence in her size—but she must wear the right clothes."

"Why?"

"Because the big woman attracts attention to herself the moment she enters a room or an office, and if she is well groomed and appropriately gowned she holds that attention, but if she is shabby or dressed in the clothes intended for a small woman she loses the attention and the power that her size commands."

We were standing in the center of the great ballroom at the Commodore where the Women's Activities Exhibit was at its height. Clever business women were established in booths all about us displaying their success as both business and professional women. Mrs. Sears swept her arm about the room as she said, "Look for yourself; do you notice that most of these women are large, capable-looking women? Are they the timid, smiling, little, meek women? No, they are women who are all at least over five feet, and while I wouldn't dare call any of them fat, they are all a rather plump, well-fed group."

"Then is it a matter of brains or size that accounts for success?" I asked.

"I told you that we big women can get away with a great many things," laughed Mrs. Sears, thus avoiding the necessity of committing herself. "You know yourself that while a number of small men succeed in the business world they are handicapped in the beginning. A large, good looking he-man always finds the road to success much easier. Men seem to have confidence in a big fellow. He looks like capital. And I firmly believe it is the same with women. The big woman makes a good appearance. She looks like business—big business—and if she is well dressed she has a forceful, emphatic way of putting things which inspires confidence.

"A good-sized woman at the bar or in any profession makes a better impression than a little baby woman who looks as if she needed a chair to stand upon. And the woman who is conducting her own business in any line who is big and prosperous looking certainly adds a vast amount of confidence and faith in her patron's eyes."

Then Mrs. Sears explained that even the little woman could add to her charms by wearing less fluffy, doll-baby clothes and give the impression that she is a good deal larger than she really is.

"The little woman who wears plain, dark clothes, who does her hair in a commanding, business-like way rather than some fizzy, too much coiffed style can do much for herself and lend that same substantial atmosphere to her character that the fat or large woman possesses," declared Mrs. Sears.

"I am placed in a position to meet many business and professional women and I know of several cases where clever 'little' women have lost good opportunities because they were 'too small' for their positions. One particular case stands out distinctly in my mind. A splendid opening for a saleswoman and buyer was vacant and one of the executives of the firm suggested a small woman who was exceedingly capable and bright. But the other executives all shook their heads with a 'She's too small; my word, man, we want a full-sized woman. Put Miss (never mind her name) in that position. She looks like business.'

"It just happened that the woman selected was not half as clever or tactful as the smaller woman, but her size and her clothes took the position. She put things over by sheer physical force and knowing how to take advantage of her size.

"Too many large women try to squeeze into clothes made for the perfect 36. And that is where they make the mistake of their lives. They bring out all the awkward features of their size and because they know their clothes are not fitted for them or to them they are self-conscious and lose their magnetic force and positiveness.

"The feminine, dainty trinkets and gewgaws that look well upon a perfect 36 or a petite 34 do not add grace or beauty to a perfect 44. They make her the laughing stock of her sex and it is up to the big or fat woman to fit herself with clothes which look as if they were made for her and help her to carry out the forceful personality which she possesses with her size or height."

So, girls, eat all the lobster salad, candy and French pastry you desire, and if anybody suggests you are getting fat and better die or roll around on the floor every morning, just arch your eyebrows, heave up your chest and tell them that the most successful business and professional women are fat or tall and that the more "pounds" in your willowy figure will mean just so many more "pounds" in your envelope each week.

Helps for the Mother

By EMILIE HOFFMAN

ONE day brought in three inquiries from mothers as to how to get a baby to go to sleep early evenings. All three have the same complaint, that they would like their evenings free to perform the duties neglected through the care for the children during the day.

If the bad habit of going to bed with mother has been formed it will require time and patience to break it. A baby should be attired for the night when it gets its early evening feeding, which should be between 6 and 7 o'clock, at the convenience of the mother. At the next feeding, as long as the late evening feeding is continued, the child should not be unduly aroused by being played with. If quietly fed the average child will fall asleep directly. A healthy infant thus trained will sleep from 6 at night until 6 in the morning.

In the above-mentioned cases the child should be put to bed at 6 o'clock or 7, if more convenient, the room darkened and door closed. For a few evenings the child will rebel and probably exercise its lungs vociferously. It will require great perseverance and determination on the part of the mother to go through with this ordeal, but the opposition will grow weaker each night and in less than a week the child will go to bed at this seasonable hour without protest. Sleep is so very essential to the child that no sensible mother would hesitate to establish the custom of putting baby to bed before 7 o'clock.

Every cry of the baby has a little meaning of its own and should not be disregarded. If it is a continuous fretful cry your child, probably, is hungry. The cry of pain is sharp and loud and comes at intervals. Usually there are other symptoms of distress, such as drawing up of the legs and contraction of the features. Real illness is indicated by the long, fretful cry in which the moaning is clearly perceptible.

When the little man kicks and stiffens out his body while crying lustily you can label it as temper. Spoiled infants will cry if not indulged in any formed habits. This cry can readily be determined by granting the desire and then withdrawing the favor.

C., by asking for the same number and inclosing a cents in coin.

NUT CAKES

TWO eggs, 1 cup brown sugar, ½ teaspoon salt, tablespoon baking powder, 1 cup flour, 1 cup pecan meats cut in small pieces.

Beat eggs slightly, add brown sugar and beat together. Sift baking powder, salt and flour. Stir lightly into eggs and sugar. Add nut meats and bake in small, shallow buttered tin in a moderate oven 20 minutes.

This quantity will make from 20 to 24, depending upon the size of the tin.

The Daughter of Helen Kent

By Sarah Comstock

CHAPTER VII. (Continued)

"Je suis desolee! But, as woman ever must, I submit!" mourned Mrs. Hobson with bovine playfulness and gave her guest a clinging hand. She sank back into the dining room tide. He seized his possessions in the cloakroom, and was hurrying toward the outer door as if to make sure of escape before recapture, when Helen became conscious that an imp had leaped into her own eyes and waited there in ambush. It was not her doing; the imp acted of its own volition. Such haste was the gentleman making that he had almost passed the lady standing shadowy against the wall when the imp, flashing forth, arrested him.

"Ah—good afternoon, Mrs.—Mrs."—— ("I won't help him out!" Helen inwardly chuckled.) "Mrs.—ah, Mrs. Kent!" he recalled at last.

She held out a hand of greeting. "So Dr. Aspden flees from our hospitality?" she challenged, while the imp fairly gloated in amusement at the gentleman's ignominious retreat.

It was only within the past fortnight that the doctor's return to his old suite had been effected, and, oddly enough, Helen had not once chanced to meet him. On the day of his return there had occurred a great rattling of the door between the suites—evidently its security was being well tested. Miss Muldoon had caught Mrs. Kent's eye and had buried her giggle in a handkerchief; and there the matter had ended.

"A busy doctor can't give himself even Sunday off for pleasuring," he began his apologies. Plainly, the unexpectedness of the meeting was causing him embarrassment. "I—I—rarely take time for teas"—— he muttered, edging away.

"You mean you detest them," Helen finished for him. "I should have known it. Anyone should have known it. Mrs. Hobson should have known it." (Helen observed to her thoughts that Mrs. Hobson's tactics of pursuit had outdone themselves to achieve this capture. Already she had traced the steps—Mrs. Hobson, as a policy holder in the Monroe Mutual, had contrived to meet the distinguished physician, and her usual pressing invitations had ensued, pressed to the point where refusal was impossible.) "My acquaintance with you has been restricted to one sole and very brief occasion, and yet I know precisely your opinion of teas."

At that moment something within his eyes gleamed, and she saw it. It flashed in sudden response to the imp within her own. With that gleam his irritable embarrassment melted. "At least," whispered her imp to Helen, "he's not trying to get away just now."

In the moment's pause she observed him swiftly. How distinguished he appeared, she suddenly realized—somehow he towered, by mere personality, above others. The carelessness of dress which she had noted on an office day had disappeared; he stood before her, a fine and dignified figure, conventionally attired, perfectly groomed.

"Perhaps," he said, still with that gleam, "I may have given you reason to think of me as a churl." It was not apologetic; it was amused.

"I think of you as a man. By which sign I know that you would enjoy a cup of that coffee"—she sniffed the air in suggestive enticement—"if you could get it in some quiet spot where you would not be trampled to earth, and where you would not be chattered at by ten at a time, and where you could sit comfortably at a table. It's in man's nature to resent having to poise a cup and plate in midair, while accepting a sandwich with one hand and cake with the other, like a Japanese juggler manipulating his balls."

She saw the swift response in his eyes. It flashed at her as if she were temptation incarnate for that instant. Then he wavered—

"There is a little tearoom upstairs, never used during these big functions," she pursued softly. "You will be safe there from discovery—a maid will bring us coffee—really, I am in need of a cup, and my headache refuses to face that crowded room. There are times when I can't mingle with a throng of humans without realizing that they don't differ one whit from any cage or pit in the Bronx Zoo at the feeding hour. And now I appeal to your sympathy as a physician to see that I have my coffee in quiet"——

Small-talking, she had led the way down a side hall, and into an automatic elevator. Dr. Aspden was following. Upon his lips, moving again and again to speak, there appeared protestation; but the protestations failed to find their opportunity.

Helen summoned a passing maid. "Bring us coffee—sandwiches—everything there is—for two. In the tearoom." And the little elevator sprang into flight at her touch.

"Well?" Helen opened at last.

"Well, indeed! I, a middle-aged physician with a reputation for integrity, having already bidden my original hostess good-by and hastened away from her hospitality, find myself here!"

Her elbows were on the table, her chin rested in her palms. A slender mirror behind Dr. Aspden showed Helen herself in panel framing; the sketch vividly incisive, an impression of impudent eyes and earrings jettily twinkling between upcrowding furs and forward-tilting hat. A vision of Dr. Aspden's original hostess rose, a moment's imaging of that lady as she would appear did she know the truth—florid, hurried, cacklingly indignant, shrill with outrage—and Helen saw her own imp in the mirror fairly putting thumb to nose.

"But now that you are here," she said, "now that you've signed your contract with Mephisto, and are here"—she waved a hand that took in the alluring room with its half-dozen restfully vacant tables, the gay draperies delightfully carrying out the color scheme of a tall screen, the cheery plate shelves, the windows overlooking old and ordered gardens—"now that the die is cast, confess," ordered Helen, "that you like it!"

"That I like it is, I believe, what is disturbing me most." And across the table the two imps, more perilous imps by far than those that wigwag from younger eyes, made signal of mutual and delectable wickedness.

"Don't let it disturb you! The sign of the true epicure in sinning is that he never foretastes his repentance while the sin is still freshly plucked and sweet."

"Believe me, I'll not spoil the flavor of this fruit by any foretaste of repentance! Perhaps, on second thoughts, my disturbance comes from the knowledge that I'm never going to repent."

"You can drown even that in the cup." Maid and tray were at the door. The burnished pot, with its slender spout gave forth a steam of pungency; dainty cups were set forth; sandwiches and cakes were placed at hand, and the two were left alone once more.

And now he suddenly relaxed, as if giving way completely to the seduction of it all. "It's shameless and it's jolly!"

Filling his cup, "There's a curious effect these nervous headaches of mine always produce," she informed him. "They make me shameless. I have never yet come through one of them without blackening my record to a still inkier shade. And now, to eclipse all former sins, I have abducted the guest of a fellow club member!"

"Adam?"

"My utmost flattery is to retort by calling you 'Eve.' I have always felt Eve to be the primary argument for suffrage, the great original proof of woman's power of initiative. It was she first knew a good thing when she saw it; it was she had the courage to take it; and she was generous enough to pass it on. It was sporting of her, too, not to throw back Adam's words at him; she could have called him a liar, could have declared that he passed the apple, and there would have been only his word against hers"——

"But hers wouldn't have been credited. Being a woman, her statement would never have been believed."

"Not believed, but accepted. It's a matter of courtesy to accept a woman's statement against a man's. Eve must have known that—every woman knows such things. So it comes to this: she simply refused to avail herself of the privilege at her husband's expense."

Helen mused. Then the panel sketch flashed back at her a sudden audacity, flashed mischief——

"How then, is it," she inquired, "that, cherishing so great an admiration for the first Eve, you have never succumbed to any of her successors?"

He was spared an answer. The sound of approaching chatter came up the stairs. There were deep male voices in the background, and against them, in bright relief, the soprano laughter and ecstatics of women.

"Dear me!" Helen became uneasy. "I thought a South Sea island couldn't be safer than this today! This floor is never used except on week-days. The other rooms are rented for studios"—the voices were drawing ever nearer—"It sounds"—She gasped, and rose, catching her breath—"It sound like—like—Mrs. Hobson"——

Dr. Aspden also rose. "It—is Mrs. Hobson," he breathed.

"Charming little studio," they heard her down the hall. "I use it for my classes in dramatic expression. So inspiring—that view of the rose arbor and fountain—so quaint—a fountain!" Murmurs and exclamations approved the fountain.

Helen leaned forward across the table. "A second more," she whispered, "and she'll be upon us!"

"Eve," his whisper demanded desperately, "have you no resource—no trees of the garden amongst which we may hide—this time?"

For a wild moment her eyes beat against the four walls of perilous captivity. Then, "There's nothing less banal," she told him in horror, "than the screen!"

He glanced at it, lifted his hands in a gesture of martyred helplessness that seemed to groan, "And Fate heaps this insult upon the dignity of a sober middle-aged man!" But he bowed to the yoke.

"Time-worn farce shift, I submit!" he murmured. He paused. "But this?" and he pointed to the abandoned feast for two.

"Leave that to me." She clapped shut the screen's fold upon him, and only in the nick of time. Mrs. Hobson's party descended.

"And this is our bewitching tea room," that lady guided. "Oh—why, Mrs. Kent! So sorry! I thought the room was never used on Sunday!" Mrs. Hobson's prominent eyes took in the table and rested with interest upon Helen. Behind her half a dozen grouped themselves; some of the young people had followed in restless curiosity, and among them was Bec.

"Of course I never dreamed of intruding!" pressed Mrs. Hobson, nevertheless leading on into the room.

"I assure you it's only a pleasure to share this delightful view." Helen waved her hand hospitably toward the garden. "I was too tired for the dining room, and so I had my coffee served here." She watched Mrs. Hobson's eyes count cups.

"So kind of you to let us come in. Over there"—Mrs. Hobson addressed her guests as if they were on a Cook's tour—"you get a glimpse of the old church—so quaint!" She led them to the windows. "And here—" her hand clasped the edge of the screen: she was about to draw its folds back to make room for the sight-seers——

It was a moment for any hazard—and Helen hazarded. With ostentatious stealth she jogged Mrs. Hobson's elbow. The others were all intent upon the gardens below. Mrs. Hobson turned, stayed her hand; her eyes inquired.

Detesting the subterfuge, but driven, Helen glanced significantly toward Bequita; then lingered over a deep wink.

GOOD AMERICAN FOOD

By WINIFRED BLACK

GOOD-BY to the "a las."

Farewell to "filet mignons" and so long to "beef au jus" and a long, long adieu to the "demitasse."

French menus are out of the fashion.

Hurrah!

Now let's talk plain English and be done with it. Why print the name of a perfectly good American steak in French, and think that it will taste better that way?

Why imitate French food, anyway, in American hotels?

French food is excellent—in France.

Nobody can make a salad like a Frenchman and no regular American cook ever really made a true omelette with fine herbs and had it taste like anything.

Here's a Suggestion!

But this is America—not France, and American cooking, is as good as, if not better than, any cooking in the round world.

No, I don't mean fried steak and stewed rhubarb and two or three lonesome little prunes and a dish of canned peas—that dinner is worse than any French dinner or German or Italian dinner that was ever served to a hungry man.

I mean the good old-fashioned broiled steak and baked potato, and lettuce and tomato salad with plenty of oil and a generous dash of good vinegar, and hot biscuits and gravy, and green peas fresh from the vines, and corn on the cob with a regular serving of regular butter, and a strawberry shortcake or a fresh cherry pie to top off with—beat that if you can anywhere on earth!

Why doesn't someone open some good, plain old-fashioned American taverns somewhere along the road, with Father at the gate to show you where to turn in and Mother in the kitchen putting the scallops around the edge of the pie with a four-tined fork, and Daughter in the dining-room passing the biscuits and seeing that there are plenty of hot ones?

England is full of old-fashioned inns—you can drive up to any one of them at 4 o'clock in the afternoon and get homemade bread and homemade butter and homemade damson jam and Devonshire cream and real tea anywhere in almost any English village. No French cooking there and no imitation of it.

There's Money in It.

It's the same way in Germany—apfel-kuchen and real coffee. Have you ever tasted them under a blossoming apple tree, on a cool day in fall, with the apple trees flaming to dull gold and the sunlight on some ancient river below?

An omelette and a salad and a cup of black coffee with little French rolls and unsalted butter and a vine leaf full of strawberries, fresh from the vine, served with the stems on—that's France—no imitation American or imitation English there!

Come on, John and Mary, go back into the kitchen, come back into the dining room—load our old-fashioned American table with old-fashioned American food. Never mind the entrees and the hors d'euvres—we'll get along without them today. Tenderloin steak, rare if you please—cottage fried potatoes, corn on the cob, and who said blackberry roll, with cream sauce?

Set such a dinner as that before a hungry man just once and he'll drive 20 miles to stop at your door again.

French food for France. English tea for England, and let the Germans eat cinnamon in their mashed potatoes and enjoy strawberry soup and beer soup if they will—let us go back to Griggsby Station, where we used to be so happy and so poor, and have some chicken potpie and cornbread and greens and call it a day.

A BORROWED dime is wrapped in a handkerchief. A spectator holds the dime through the cloth. Suddenly the performer shakes out the handkerchief. The dime has disappeared!

A handkerchief with a broad hem must be used with a dime previously sewn in the hem. In placing the borrowed dime in the handkerchief the performer really retains it in his hand, but allows the spectator to feel the dime that is in the hem, which is folded inside the cloth. To made the dime "disappear" the performer simply takes one corner and shakes out the handkerchief.

Some of the Reasons Why WISS Shears Cut Best and Wear Longest

Remember, a coat of shiny nickel plate may hide poor quality and many defects. It makes all scissors and shears look alike. What is under the nickel plate is what you want to know.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

The Glad Surprise of the Young Fox

By Thornton W. Burgess

Appetite we often see
The thief of wit may prove to be.
—Old Granny Fox.

CREEPING in the bushes along the stone wall on the edge of the Old Orchard the young fox at last came to the end. Just a little way off was Farmer Brown's henhouse. The young fox, peeping out, was disappointed. The henyard was on the other side of the henhouse and he couldn't see it. Little thrills of excitement ran all over him. Here he was close to that place which his mother had once warned him to keep away from. Not a thing had he seen to frighten him. Everything about Farmer Brown's barnyard and dooryard was as quiet and peaceful as his old home in the Old Pasture. There wasn't a hint of danger anywhere.

But the young fox didn't intend to take any chances, so he lay down right where he was and watched and waited. He was trying to make sure that things were as safe as they seemed, a thing a wise fox will always do. Twice while he lay there the young rooster crowed. The young fox could tell from the sound that that young rooster must be just on the other side of that henhouse.

"I can run across to that henhouse as quickly as I can wink my eye," thought that young fox. "Then I can steal along close to it on the back side, and no one can see me."

He waited a few minutes longer, and then swiftly darted across to the henhouse. With that between him and Farmer Brown's dooryard he felt quite safe. Keeping close to the henhouse, he stole along until he could peep around the corner of it. There he found a queer substance he had never seen before, but which he could see through quite as well as if it were not there at all. It was the wire netting of the henyard fence.

Right then and there the young fox had a glad surprise. It was one of the gladdest surprises of his short life. Walking about, almost under his nose, were many big, stupid-looking birds. Suddenly one of them stretched his neck, opened his mouth and forth came that sound which he had first heard over in the Green Forest, and which had so puzzled him.

"That must be the rooster!" exclaimed the young Fox to himself

"That must be the rooster!" exclaimed the young fox to himself. "And he is nothing but a big bird." Those others must be the hens Sammy Jay told about. My, my, my, what good eating they must be! And they look stupid. They do so. It shouldn't be any trouble at all to catch one." You see the young fox had not yet discovered that there was no way of getting through that wire fence.

My, how his mouth did water! He forgot everything but the desire to catch one of those hens. He forgot that he was where his mother had warned him to keep away from. He forgot that there was such a thing in the Great World as danger. He could think of nothing but his stomach, and what a feast one of those big birds would make. He knew now what a rooster and hens were. And the thing he wanted most of anything was to know what they tasted like.

For some time he lay with just his sharp little nose poked around the corner of the henhouse. He had eyes, ears and nose for nothing but those big birds. After a while he got to his feet and began to creep along the henyard fence. That wire netting puzzled him. He tried it with his teeth and soon found that he couldn't bite through it. Then he began to look for a hole big enough to get through. Around the bottom of the fence wide boards had been nailed, and by crouching low and almost creeping the young fox kept himself out of sight of the hens. He reached the further corner of the henyard without finding an opening. Then he crept along the end of the henyard in the same way. So intent was he on what he was doing that he didn't even notice that now he was in plain sight from Farmer Brown's house and dooryard. You see, he hadn't room for anything in his foolish little head but the thought of those hens.

MAXIMS OF A MODERN MAID

By MARGUERITE MOOERS MARSHALL

PERHAPS Eve was the first young lady to remark that the man she loved must be strong enough to pick her up and carry her off over his shoulder. But the football players are still falling for that one.

Just as moving day exposes all our damaged goods to public view, so the matrimonial moving days in the divorce courts are as sadly revelatory of shabby sentiments, broken illusions and worn-out sessions.

It is usually incorrect to speak of the professional bachelor's "checkered past"—for half the squares on the checkerboard are white!

Consider the co-respondent; she toils not, neither does she spin, yet the virtuous woman on all her alimony is not arrayed as one of these.

One truble with married life is that so many couples seem to think they are hitched tandem, instead of shoulder to shoulder, and they never quite settle which is in the lead.

Apple Dumplings

ONE and one-half cups flour, 2 level teaspoons baking powder, 1 teaspoon butter, ½ cup milk, 6 apples. Sift together thoroughly flour and baking powder. Work in butter with tips of fingers and add milk. Place on a floured board, pat and roll out to a little less than one-half inch in thickness. Peel apples, cut in halves. Cut dough into rounds large enough to inclose the apple halves. Place in buttered steamer and cook over boiling water for 30 minutes. Sections of peaches may be used instead of apples.

LUX FOR DISHWASHING

At last—relief from the three-times-a-day coarsening of the hands

THROW one tablespoonful of Lux into your dishpan—turn on the hot water. The flakes foam up into the richest, thickest lather you have ever had for dishwashing.

Three times a day you can wash dishes in this lather and still your hands will not be rough or red. Lux contains no free alkali or any other ingredient that could hurt the most sensitive skin—it is as easy on your hands as a fine toilet soap.

Begin today to wash your dishes the Lux way—don't permit your hands to have the old three-times-a-day-in-the-dishpan look. One package of Lux will last for 44 dishwashings—more than two weeks. Start using it now. Lever Bros. Co., Cambridge, Mass.

Just a tablespoon to a pan. A single package does 44 dishwashings—all the dishes for more than two weeks.

LUX
WON'T REDDEN HANDS

Lux leaves your glassware sparkling without a trace of soapy film—your silver lustrous, your china spotlessly clean.

THE PATHS OF GLORY.

THE curfew tolls the knell of parting day,
  A happy smile the scrappy Giants wear;
The Yankees homeward plod their weary way,
  And with their lamentations fill the air.

  The experts have ceased talking through their hats;
The atmosphere is flat and out of shape

Far from the madding crowd's ignoble strife
  The abdicating King of Swat will fly;
Along the cool, sequestered vale of life,

Await alike the inevitable hour:
  The paths of glory lead but to the sticks.

TOO TRUE.

The man on the sandbox says one of the oddest things about the late series was the odds on the Yankees.

If the one of whom is expected the least jumps in and does the most, Jack Scott is beyond question the hero of the series.

Both the New York teams had a Scott, a Smith and a Meusel. Right there the resemblance ceased.

TOPSY-TURVY.

WATCH 'EM GROH.

BIG men from little mascots grow
  And though they may be tiny,
They hope in course of time to Groh
  As big as little Heine.

MAYBE.

Maybe Heine Groh was so little that Babe Ruth didn't see him when he bumped into him.

The man on the sandbox says that when opposing powers start "digging in" it means that the people will soon be digging up.

THE COMEBACK.

OLD Mars was dead and in his grave,
  A victim of the war;
He got a hair-cut and a shave
  And came right back for more.

Above his corpse we counted ten,
  And buried him in France,
But he has come to life again
  And wants another chance.

He says it was a lucky punch
And at the European bunch

We thought that he was down and out,
But now he wants another bout
  To vindicate himself.

A MODERN IMPROVEMENT.

MY FAVORITE STORIES

By IRVIN S: COBB.

ONE WAY TO BEAT THE GAME.

Those who in their youth were addicted, or subsequently have been addicted, to the good old American game of seven-up will appreciate a little tale which Frank I. Cobb, chief editorial writer of the New York World, told.

Cobb, who was born in Kansas and reared in Michigan, went to a town in the former state to call upon an elderly uncle on a matter of business. He arrived about supper time. His aunt received him and welcomed him, telling him that her husband would propably be along shortly.

"Oh, no," said his aunt in a resigned tone. "He's down at Number Two Engine House claiming low."
